Russian News Agency Accuses Finland of Stirring up Hatred

Official Dispatch Alleges Plan To Foster Anti-Soviet Policy and Cause Hatred of Russia

Moscow, Nov. 16 (Thursday) (AP)—Societ Russia made the sharpest press attack yet upon Finland today, accusing Finnish ruling circles of fostering an "anti-Soviet policy."

The attack, in the form of a dispatch by Tass, official Soviet news agency, from Helsinki, Finnish capital, was almost as bitter as the press campaign which preceded the Russian march into Poland last Sept. 17.

The dispatch, distributed for publication in this morning's newspapers, based its tirade against the Finnish government for what it said was confiscation of an issue of the magazine Soichtu. The magazine has printed articles friendly to the Russian government.

Says Finns Show "Hate"

Tass charged that the Finnish army and press were instructed to "hate Russians"; that teaching in the schools was conducted along the same lines, and that "the leaders of the anti-Soviet campaign of lies are the most reactionary elements who are dreaming of spreading the boundaries of Finland all the way to the Urals (in Russia)."

"The English bourgaisie has supported this anti-Soviet attitude," the dispatch added.

Foreign observers agreed that the Tass dispatch was another threat in the Soviet campaign to force the Finns into an agreement in a short time, or else was the prelude to direct action.

The long-drawn negotiations with Finland began Oct. 7 after Russia had obtained from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania the right to establish considerable military, naval and air forces in the North Baltic. Moscow has demanded a readjustment of frontiers near Leningrad, and naval bases in North Finland and at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland.

U. S. Again Attacked

Meanwhile, the Soviet press campaign extended to the United States for her "anxiety concerning Finland."

A. N. Bakh, oldest member of the Soviet parliament and members of the Academy of Sciences, in a letter to the newspaper Trud, organ of Soviet trade unions, declared the American government should show more concern over countries nearer home.

(United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt on Oct. 12 asked the Kremlin on behalf of his government to refrain from any action

Search of Girl's Trunk Forbidden In Crater Case

Judge Refuses To Permit Opening in Hunt for Actress's Diary

New York, Nov. 15. (AP)—The nine-year search for a clue to the fantastic disappearance of State Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater pointed today to one of seven trunks held in a hospital for a demented ex-showgirl.

The law ruled that seventh trunk could not be opened.

It thus became a "mystery trunk," although it may contain only odds and ends from the past which haunts the clouded mind of the girl. Crater is supposed to have visited her in her Manhattan apartment that night in 1930 when he vanished.

May Contain Diary

Counsel for Mrs. Stella Crater Kunz, the remarried widow who seeks $60,000 double insurance indemnity, said he believed the unopened trunk might contain a diary. If so, the book might, he thought, throw light on Crater's last hours of life in the hot glare of broadway's night spots, which the justice frequented.

Six of the seven trunks have been opened by hospital authorities—and apparently they found nothing worth reporting to police. The key to the seventh has not been found.

Fishing Expedition

Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins emphatically rejected as "a fishing expedition" the motion of Emil K. Ellis, the widow's attornye, for permission to examine the contents of all seven trunks. He also refused to let Ellis inspect the various hospital records of Jean Covell, known along broadway as June Brice.

Ellis grasped at the trunk angle of the perplexing case only after a vain interview with Miss Brice last

Hagerstown Boy Killed Hunting

Hagerstown, Nov. 15 (AP) — The season's first hunting tragedy in Washington county was recorded today with the finding of the decapitated body of William Rhodes, 14, beside a wire fence on a farm a few miles south of here.

The body was identified by Cecil Rhodes, father of the dead youth, by clothing worn by his son.

Deputy Byron Bender said the youth apparently stacked a loaded gun against a post and when he sought to climb through the barbed wire the trigger of the .20 gauge gun was jarred and a shell exploded. The end of the barrel was only a few feet from the youth's head.

Two dogs stood guard over the dead youth until corn huskers found the body.

Wheeler Demands Probe of Defects In New Warships

Senator Wants Facts about Top-Heavy American Destroyers

Would Dismiss Those Responsible from Government Service

Washington, Nov. 15. (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) demanded today a congressional investigation to place responsibility for the construction of what he called "top-heavy" destroyers for the United States navy.

Asserting that he could see "no excuse whatever for a thing of this kind happening," Wheeler said he thought the facts ought to be laid before Congress before it votes on new defense appropriations.

Acting Secretary Charles Edison acknowledged recently that the navy had found that some of its newest type destroyers lacked sufficient stability. But he contended that the defects were not serious and said steps were being taken to remedy them. Today Edison reiterated that the ships were good craft.

"Eminently Satisfactory"

"They are eminently satisfactory, as good as we or anybody else has got," he said. "They are at sea in all kinds of rough weather in the neutrality patrol and none has turned over."

He explained that the defect was that the destroyers lacked the desired margin of safety in making turns at high speed, under certain conditions. Such changes as shifting ammunition storage space, and changing the centre line of torpedo tubes will be made, he said, when facilities are available.

But Wheeler said he was "reliably informed that it is extremely difficult if not impossible ever to remodel a top-heavy ship, even at great expense, so that it will thereafter perform satisfactorily."

"Whoever is responsible ought to be reprimanded and dismissed from the government service if they are government people," he added.

"If it is the shipbuilders who are responsible—and I cannot conceive that they would be if they built according to specifications—then they ought to be made to pay damages."

Edison, touching on other subjects at his press conference, guardedly suggested the possibility that the navy may be designing cruisers fast and powerful enough to cope with such craft as Germany's 10,000 ton "pocket battleships."

General Ashburn Removed as Head Waterways Corp.

Chester Thompson Succeeds Him on Unusually Short Notice

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Commerce department abruptly ousted Major General T. Q. Ashburn today from the Inland Waterways Corporation, which he had headed since its formation in 1924, and installed Chester Thompson as president.

J. Monroe Johnson, assistant secretary of commerce, explained on behalf of Secretary Hopkins that "the general built up a fine transportation system but the secretary and I have thought for a long time it needed a little rejuvenation."

General Ashburn told reporters, however, that he was asked to resign because "there was a constant serious disagreement of policy ever since the transfer of the corporation to the department of commerce as to whether the inland Waterways Corporation should continue to operate as a privately-owned corporation as provided for by law or was to become a bureau of the department of commerce."

Ashburn added that Johnson demanded he resign within one hour.

Thompson, forty - five - year - old native of Rock Island, Ill., and former mayor, was picked, Johnson said, because of his active promotion of waterway development for a number of years. He served in Congress from 1932 to 1936.

Thompson was sworn into the $10,000 a year job immediately and became head of a corporation which claims a net worth of $10,021,005 in barges, terminals and profits.

Last year the corporation hauled 2,767,210 tons of merchandise, including huch grain, on the Mississipi, Missouri, Illinois and Warrior rivers.

The "profits," however, have been disrupted frequently by the railroads, which have opposed the barge lines on the grounds that they were a subsidized competitor.

The British submarine Thetis is beached in a North Wales bay after being hauled from the bottom of the sea, to which she sank on June 1, carrying ninety-nine men to their death. Old Barkentine Leaves Boston To Explore Antartica

The Bear Carrying Equipment for Byrd's Southern Expedition

BY FRANCIS E. CAREY

Boston, Nov. 15 (AP)—The old barkentine Bear, which once carried the law to the roaring camps of Alaska during the gold-rush days, prepared tonight for exploration of 1,000 miles of uncharted, gale-swept coastline in Antarctica, as a companion craft preceded her toward the Polar seas.

Her partner in the venture, motorship North Star, sailed at dawn today as lead-off ship for the United States Antarctic service's projected exploratory and possible land-claiming venture to the bottom of the world.

Under command of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the expedition is the government's first Antarctic venture in 100 years.

The North Star's sailing was as uneventful as some itinerant tramp steamer's departure, and she was well on her way tonight for Philadelphia, first stop in a southward journey that will take her through the Panama Canal to New Zealand and Little America.

Will Have Crew of 62

She carried forty-five of the sixty-two men who will remain on the ice for the expedition, and on her broad decks and in her holds was jammed seventy-five per cent of the expedition's equipment, including a twenty-seven-ton snow cruiser.

Scheduled to sail next week to keep a new year's rendezvous with the North Star in the Bay of Whales, the square-rigged Bear was ready to cruise outer Boston harbor tomorrow to test her performance under a new Diesel engine that replaces her auxiliary steam power.

The Bear began her career in the bloody business of seal-hunting, aided the navy on an expedition to rescue survivors of the ill-starred Greely expedition to the Arctic in 1884, and for a generation served as a combination good Samaritan and policeman among the ice packs off Point Barrow. She also participated in the last Byrd expedition.

George Is Granted Right To See His Eileen in 10 Days

Lowther Brings Miss Herrick into Court and Judge Is Sympathetic

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — George Lowther, third, who went to the law courts to establish an unabridged right to court Eileen Herrick, won his point today in a compromise that was at least amicable for the record.

After a brief private hearing in the chambers of State Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel, the young broker's habeas corpus suit against Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick, Eileen's socially eminent parents, was dismissed with this understanding:

1. That 20-year old Eileen, who was declared by the experts to have been one of the most "glamorous" of all the debutantes two years ago, should remain for ten more days in the hospital where she has been resting.

2. That after that time George should be allowed to see her as often as he wishes — and marry her, too, if it's all right with her.

This solution of a singular court action—which Lowther had brought in an effort to show that Miss Herrick was being detained against her will in her parents' fashionable east side home to prevent his seeing her—was anticlimatic against the events that had preceded it.

Father Belligerent

Chief among these was a half-shove, half-blow directed at the big, broad-shouldered young broker by Eileen's slight, gray-haired father.

This exchange occurred just as Miss Herrick and her nurse appeared in the bleak marble corridor of the Supreme Court building some 2½ hours after the scheduled start of the hearing, and Lowther rushed to her with arms outstretched.

Her pretty, pale face set, her eyes coldly looking straight ahead, she took no apparent notice of his advance, and at that point Herrick, his pince nez bobbing upon his thin nose, rushed up, crying out shrilly: "Get away from her!"

As he shouted, his arm moved in

Murry Guggenheim, Philanthropist And Industrialist Dies at Age 81

Partner in Huge Mining and Smelting Firm Gave Away Millions

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Murry Guggenheim, 81, partner in the Guggenheim brothers mining and smelting firm and a leading philanthropist, died after a short illness today in his Fifth avenue home.

One of seven sons of the late Meyer Guggenheim of Philadelphia, who turned from importing embroidery and lace to found a fortune in western mining ventures, Murry was credited with being the expert of the family on metal markets.

When these interests were merged in the American Smelting and Refining Company in 1901, he headed the finance committee and later the sales department.

His philanthropies included donations of millions of dollars to Mount

Roosevelt Causes More Speculation As to Third Term

Says He Hopes To Attend Dedication Ceremonies in January 1941

May Have Meant He Does Not Expect To Run in 1940

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt started another flurry of speculation about the third term question today by an offhand remark with which he prefaced an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the Thomas Jefferson memorial.

"This is the second occasion on which I have had the privilege of coming in an official capacity to this site," he said, "and I hope by January, 1941, I shall be able to come to the final dedication of the memorial itself."

Mr. Roosevelt's present term expires on the 20th of the month he mentioned and the dedication is scheduled for that month.

Whether his statement was a reiteration of the hope previously expressed, that he may retire from public life on that date, was the question that it raised.

May Not Plan To Run

If the statement was applicable to the third term question—and men in Mr. Roosevelt's position do not lightly make assertions which contain political connotations — it may have meant that the president does not expect to run again.

But, at most, it was far from definite and left the third term question still unanswered. However, the question has such a tremendous bearing upon the current political situation, that any dim light which may be cast upon it is considered of high importance in Washington.

The president spoke beneath a cloudless November sky, his speaker's platform framed in derricks and guy wires. A few hundred persons were present, standing below the president on a rough wooden platform or upon the muddy bank of the nearby tidal basin.

The memorial is to complete an architectural cross, of which the Lincoln memorial, the White House and the capitol are the three other ends and the Washington monument the center.

The president had words of praise, consequently for Washington and Lincoln as "many sided" men

Germany To Build A Better Europe, Von Papen Claims

Ambassador to Turkey Reveals Plan for "European Commonwealth"

Istanbul, Nov. 15 (AP)—Germany's ambassador to Turkey, Franz Von Papen, indicated in an interview today that Germany plans to establish a "European commonwealth" after the war—if she wins it.

The envoy, who has just returned from conferences in Germany with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, hinted at the scheme in these words:

"England proposes a European commonwealth for the future. She has had ample time since the last war to establish it. Now it will be Germany's turn to look after this plan."

Of Germany's war aims he said: "It is quite clear what Germany is fighting for. It is to avoid a repetition of the tragedy of Versailles and to build a better Europe.

"It is to do away with once and for all the necessity of European nations fighting each other twice in a century to establish 'European equilibrium.'"

Babe Ruth Helps Thin Out Turkeys

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Babe Ruth turned on the old batting eye today and helped open Maryland's fall hunting season to the tune of two turkeys (shot in flight), eight ducks, and eight pheasants.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor bagged one turkey, seven ducks and eight pheasants. Others in the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club party included Senators Neely (D-WVa) and Taft (R-Ohio). Sixty club hunters bagged a total of 200 pheasants, 250 ducks, and 120 turkeys.

London, Nov. 15. (AP)—Four merchantmen were added today to the mounting shipping losses since the start of the two and one-half month old European war. The latest victims were one British, one Greek and two Lithuanian ships.

(Today's sinkings aggregating 5,558 tons, brought the known losses to 126 vessels totaling 494,675 tons, of which sixty-seven have been British, fourteen German, seven French and thirty-eight neutral.)

The 790-ton British coastwise tanker Woodtown went down in undisclosed waters after an explosion. Nine of her twelve crewmen were reported lost.

Greek Ship Hits Wreck

The 2,216-ton Greek steamer Georgios sank off the east coast of England after striking a half-submerged wreck. A coast guard life boat rescued her crew of twenty-two.

The first casualties suffered by the little Baltic state of Lithuania were reported with the sinking of the 1,607-ton Panevezys and the 945-ton Nida off the Estonian coast.

Brief dispatches from Kaunas, Lithuania's capital, failed to say what caused the sinking of the two freighters. The Nida carried a cargo of British coal.

Germany May Retaliate

(Semi-official quarters in Berlin said Germany would retaliate by disrupting Britain's coal exports if the British carried out a reported threat to "make it impossible for German goods to be carried on neutral ships to neutral countries."

(The subject of the Nazi retaliation, these quarters said, "would be the same as Britain's in trying to make neutrals buy elsewhere than Germany—namely, to get Britain's customers accustomed to buying elsewhere."

(The Nazis coupled this declaration with an announcement that a German submarine had sunk 26,000 tons of enemy shipping single-handed and in addition returned to its base with an unidentified prize vessel.)

German reports of sharp minor actions on the west front which ousted French poilus from hill-top lookout positions aroused military interest because of the potential importance of the scene of operations.

Japs and Chinese In Furious Clash In South China

Former Believed Trying To Cut Rail and Highway "Lifelines"

Hongkong, Nov. 15 (AP)—Chinese forces on the coast of Kwantung province in south China battled today against a new Japanese attack believed aimed at China's rail and highway "lifelines" to the outside world through French Indo-China.

Japanese headquarters here announced that combined army and naval forces had landed near Pakhoi, 300 miles west of Hongkong on the Gulf of Tonking.

Jap Warships in Action

Chinese government spokesmen acknowledged that the attack had been launched, but denied that troops had landed. Chinese shore batteries, it was stated, engaged in furious artillery engagement with forty Japanese warships lying off the coast.

The Chinese said the attack occurred 45 miles west of Pakhoi and 35 miles east of the border of French Indo-China. Through Indo-China run the "lifelines" that have been China's chief route for supplies from abroad since the closing of virtually all of her seaports by Japanese occupation.

The scene of the attack, in addition to being near to French Indo-China, is just north of Hainan Island, the occupation of which last Feb. 10 by the Japanese brought inquiries from both Great Britain and France as to Japanese aims.

The Japanese then replied the occupation would continue only long enough to wage war against the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Today the Japanese foreign office in Tokyo said of the new attack that "the Japanese government will adhere strictly to the policy hitherto pursued toward third powers."

Capone Hiding In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Evening Bulletin said today it had "learned definitely from a highly-authentic police source" that Al (Scarface) Capone is in Philadelphia or a nearby surburb.

The newspaper quoted the same source as saying the erstwhile Chicago gang leader is being treated at a local sanitorium for pareisis (partial paralysis affecting muscular motion).

Two federal agents accompanied Capone to Philadelphia, the newspaper said it was told. They will leave next Monday when his sentence for income tax evasion expires.

The gang leader served the sentence in Alcatraz prison.

The newspaper said it understood Capone's whereabouts here was being kept secret to prevent any interference from the Philadelphia underworld.

Five Huntington Gambling Dens Raided; 31 Persons under Arrest

Twenty-two State Police Seize Nearly $3,000 in Cash

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Striking quickly after several weeks of undercover work, a contingent of twenty-two state police raided five Huntington gambling establishments today, arrested thirty-one persons and seized nearly $3,000 in cash.

Sheriff O. M. Phipps termed the raid the "largest in the city's history."

Captain George Skeen, of the state police, in charge of the contingent recruited from Charleston and other southern West Virginia detachments, also listed extensive gambling equipment seized, but declined to estimate its value.

Those arrested were arraigned before Magistrates Ezra Midkiff and Carl Mynes and ordered held on $500 bond each for action by the grand jury.

The gambling paraphernalia was placed under guard at a Huntington warehouse.

Hundreds of Hunters Get Limit Of Wild Fowl on the Opening Day

Senator and Mrs. Tydings among Those To Bag Ten Ducks Each

By The Associated Press

Duck dinner was the dish on hundreds of Maryland tables last night, delicious testimony to one of the best season's openings in the state's history.

Hundreds of hunters were in blinds by drawn, and favored by ideal weather and a wealth of birds sent the season away to a successful start.

From some Eastern Shore points came reports that the ducks, wary of sports favored by hunters in the past, flew too high for many marksmen, but sportsmen in the Susquehanna flats had a field day.

One observer said "everyone, shooting from blinds from the highway bridge to Spesutie island, bagged their limit of ten ducks within an hour."

Blackheads Predominate

"Thousands upon thousands" more ducks on the flats than have been seen in many years were reported. Blackhead ducks predominated, but a few canvasbacks also were killed.

Lowther Brings Miss Herrick into Court and Judge Is Sympathetic

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — George Lowther, third, who went to the law courts to establish an unabridged right to court Eileen Herrick, won his point today in a compromise that was at least amicable for the record.

After a brief private hearing in the chambers of State Supreme Court Justice Isidor Wasservogel, the young broker's habeas corpus suit against Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Herrick, Eileen's socially eminent parents, was dismissed with this understanding:

1. That 20-year old Eileen, who was declared by the experts to have been one of the most "glamorous" of all the debutantes two years ago, should remain for ten more days in the hospital where she has been resting.

2. That after that time George should be allowed to see her as often as he wishes — and marry her, too, if it's all right with her.

This solution of a singular court action—which Lowther had brought in an effort to show that Miss Herrick was being detained against her will in her parents' fashionable east side home to prevent his seeing her—was anticlimatic against the events that had preceded it.

Father Belligerent

Chief among these was a half-shove, half-blow directed at the big, broad-shouldered young broker by Eileen's slight, gray-haired father.

This exchange occurred just as Miss Herrick and her nurse appeared in the bleak marble corridor of the Supreme Court building some 2½ hours after the scheduled start of the hearing, and Lowther rushed to her with arms outstretched.

Her pretty, pale face set, her eyes coldly looking straight ahead, she took no apparent notice of his advance, and at that point Herrick, his pince nez bobbing upon his thin nose, rushed up, crying out shrilly:

"Get away from her!"

As he shouted, his arm moved in

Partner in Huge Mining and Smelting Firm Gave Away Millions

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Murry Guggenheim, 81, partner in the Guggenheim brothers mining and smelting firm and a leading philanthropist, died after a short illness today in his Fifth avenue home.

One of seven sons of the late Meyer Guggenheim of Philadelphia, who turned from importing embroidery and lace to found a fortune in western mining ventures, Murry was credited with being the expert of the family on metal markets.

When these interests were merged in the American Smelting and Refining Company in 1901, he headed the finance committee and later the sales department.

His philanthropies included donations of millions of dollars to Mount

Hundreds of Hunters Get Limit Of Wild Fowl on the Opening Day

Senator and Mrs. Tydings among Those To Bag Ten Ducks Each

By The Associated Press

Duck dinner was the dish on hundreds of Maryland tables last night, delicious testimony to one of the best season's openings in the state's history.

Hundreds of hunters were in blinds by drawn, and favored by ideal weather and a wealth of birds sent the season away to a successful start.

From some Eastern Shore points came reports that the ducks, wary of sports favored by hunters in the past, flew too high for many marksmen, but sportsmen in the Susquehanna flats had a field day.

One observer said "everyone, shooting from blinds from the highway bridge to Spesutie island, bagged their limit of ten ducks within an hour."

Blackheads Predominate

"Thousands upon thousands" more ducks on the flats than have been seen in many years were reported. Blackhead ducks predominated, but a few canvasbacks also were killed.

Roosevelt Causes More Speculation As to Third Term

Says He Hopes To Attend Dedication Ceremonies in January 1941

May Have Meant He Does Not Expect To Run in 1940

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt started another flurry of speculation about the third term question today by an offhand remark with which he prefaced an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the Thomas Jefferson memorial.

"This is the second occasion on which I have had the privilege of coming in an official capacity to this site," he said, "and I hope by January, 1941, I shall be able to come to the final dedication of the memorial itself."

Mr. Roosevelt's present term expires on the 20th of the month he mentioned and the dedication is scheduled for that month.

Whether his statement was a reiteration of the hope previously expressed, that he may retire from public life on that date, was the question that it raised.

May Not Plan To Run

If the statement was applicable to the third term question—and men in Mr. Roosevelt's position do not lightly make assertions which contain political connotations—it may have meant that the president does not expect to run again.

But, at most, it was far from definite and left the third term question still unanswered. However, the question has such a tremendous bearing upon the current political situation, that any dim light which may be cast upon it is considered of high importance in Washington.

The president spoke beneath a cloudless November sky, his speaker's platform framed in derricks and guy wires. A few hundred persons were present, standing below the president on a rough wooden platform or upon the muddy bank of the nearby tidal basin.

The memorial is to complete an architectural cross, of which the Lincoln memorial, the White House and the capitol are the three other ends and the Washington monument the center.

The president had words of praise, consequently for Washington and Lincoln as "many sided" men

Ambassador to Turkey Reveals Plan for "European Commonwealth"

Istanbul, Nov. 15 (AP)—Germany's ambassador to Turkey, Franz Von Papen, indicated in an interview today that Germany plans to establish a "European commonwealth" after the war—if she wins it.

The envoy, who has just returned from conferences in Germany with Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and foreign minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, hinted at the scheme in these words:

"England proposes a European commonwealth for the future. She has had ample time since the last war to establish it. Now it will be Germany's turn to look after this plan."

Of Germany's war aims he said:

"It is quite clear what Germany is fighting for. It is to avoid a repetition of the tragedy of Versailles and to build a better Europe.

"It is to do away with once and for all the necessity of European nations fighting each other twice in a century to establish 'European equilibrium.'"

Babe Ruth Helps Thin Out Turkeys

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Babe Ruth turned on the old batting eye today and helped open Maryland's fall hunting season to the tune of two turkeys (shot in flight), eight ducks, and eight pheasants.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor bagged one turkey, seven ducks and eight pheasants. Others in the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club party included Senators Neely (D-WVa) and Taft (R-Ohio). Sixty club hunters bagged a total of 200 pheasants, 250 ducks, and 120 turkeys.

British, Greek and Two Lithuanian Ships Sunk In European War Zone

O'HARE AID FOUND

London, Nov. 15. (AP)—Four merchantmen were added today to the mounting shipping losses since the start of the two and one-half month old European war. The latest victims were one British, one Greek and two Lithuanian ships.

(Today's sinkings aggregating 5,558 tons, brought the known losses to 126 vessels totaling 494,675 tons, of which sixty-seven have been British, fourteen German, seven French and thirty-eight neutral.)

The 790-ton British coastwise tanker Woodtown went down in undisclosed waters after an explosion. Nine of her twelve crewmen were reported lost.

Greek Ship Hits Wreck

The 2,216-ton Greek steamer Georgios sank off the east coast of England after striking a half-submerged wreck. A coast guard life boat rescued her crew of twenty-two.

The first casualties suffered by the little Baltic state of Lithuania were reported with the sinking of the 1,607-ton Panevezys and the 945-ton Nida off the Estonian coast.

Brief dispatches from Kaunas, Lithuania's capital, failed to say what caused the sinking of the two freighters. The Nida carried a cargo of British coal.

Germany May Retaliate

(Semi-official quarters in Berlin said Germany would retaliate by disrupting Britain's coal exports if the British carried out a reported threat to "make it impossible for German goods to be carried on neutral ships to neutral countries."

(The subject of the Nazi retaliation, these quarters said, "would be the same as Britain's in trying to make neutrals buy elsewhere than Germany—namely, to get Britain's customers accustomed to buying elsewhere."

(The Nazis coupled this declaration with an announcement that a German submarine had sunk 26,000 tons of enemy shipping single-handed and in addition returned to its base with an unidentified prize vessel.)

German reports of sharp minor actions on the west front which ousted French poilus from hill-top lookout positions aroused military interest because of the potential importance of the scene of operations.

Japs and Chinese In Furious Clash In South China

Former Believed Trying To Cut Rail and Highway "Lifelines"

Hongkong, Nov. 15 (AP)—Chinese forces on the coast of Kwantung province in south China battled today against a new Japanese attack believed aimed at China's rail and highway "lifelines" to the outside world through French Indo-China.

Japanese headquarters here announced that combined army and naval forces had landed near Pakhoi, 300 miles west of Hongkong on the Gulf of Tonking.

Jap Warships in Action

Chinese government spokesmen acknowledged that the attack had been launched, but denied that troops had landed. Chinese shore batteries, it was stated, engaged in furious artillery engagement with forty Japanese warships lying off the coast.

The Chinese said the attack occurred 45 miles west of Pakhoi and 35 miles east of the border of French Indo-China. Through Indo-China run the "lifelines" that have been China's chief route for supplies from abroad since the closing of virtually all of her seaports by Japanese occupation.

The scene of the attack, in addition to being near to French Indo-China, is just north of Hainan Island, the occupation of which last Feb. 10 by the Japanese brought inquiries from both Great Britain and France as to Japanese aims.

The Japanese then replied the occupation would continue only long enough to wage war against the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Today the Japanese foreign office in Tokyo said of the new attack that "the Japanese government will adhere strictly to the policy hitherto pursued toward third powers."

Capone Hiding In Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Evening Bulletin said today it had "learned definitely from a highly-authentic police source" that Al (Scarface) Capone is in Philadelphia or a nearby surburb.

The newspaper quoted the same source as saying the erstwhile Chicago gang leader is being treated at a local sanitorium for paresis (partial paralysis affecting muscular motion).

Two federal agents accompanied Capone to Philadelphia, the newspaper said it was told. They will leave next Monday when his sentence for income tax evasion expires.

The gang leader served the sentence in Alcatraz prison.

The newspaper said it understood Capone's whereabouts here was being kept secret to prevent any interference from the Philadelphia underworld.

Twenty-two State Police Seize Nearly $3,000 in Cash

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Striking quickly after several weeks of undercover work, a contingent of twenty-two state police raided five Huntington gambling establishments today, arrested thirty-one persons and seized nearly $3,000 in cash.

Sheriff O. M. Phipps termed the raid the "largest in the city's history."

Captain George Skeen, of the state police, in charge of the contingent recruited from Charleston and other southern West Virginia detachments, also listed extensive gambling equipment seized, but declined to estimate its value.

Those arrested were arraigned before Magistrates Ezra Midkiff and Carl Mynes and ordered held on $500 bond each for action by the grand jury.

The gambling paraphernalia was placed under guard at a Huntington warehouse.

European Neutrals Lose Millions in Foreign Shipping

WANT AMERICAN SHIPS TO ENTER THEIR PORTS

Norway To Take up Some of Cargoes Once Carried in U. S. Vessels

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Nov. 15. (AP)—The neutrality act not only has affected the European belligerents, but "it has reacted materially upon the neutral nations of Europe, some of which have commerce with the United States running into scores of millions of dollars.

Dispatches from various northern neutral capitals evince considerable concern. Within the combat area barred to American ships are such customers as the Netherlands, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and Ireland, as well as the Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia.

Ireland already has expressed her concern to the United States. She says her ports are suffering from the absence of American ships and she is in need of certain American products.

Small Nations Worried

No other neutral has expressed official concern ,but it is learned that Scandinavian nations were so worried in advance of proclamation of the combat area that they sought assurances from this government that means would be found of leaving some access to them.

A method was found—that of placing a northern limit on the combat zone so that American ships could still go into the ports of Bergen or Trondhjem, Norway. From those ports there are excellent rail connections across Norway into Sweden and Finland and down to Denmark. But train hauls will increase the cost of American goods.

Finland wanted to be sure American ships could still enter her northern port of Pessamo, and this port was left outside the combat area.

Norwegian ships are preparing to take up some of the carrying trade abandoned by the United States. A high official here characterized Norwegian shipping, which is the sixth largest in the world, as "the strongest crutch we have in an emergency." The Black Diamond line is reported negotiating for the chartering of a fleet of Norwegian vessels to carry on its trade under the Norwegian flag, and the cosmopolitan line is reported to have completed negotiations with the Norwegians for a fleet of ships.

Denmark in Combat Zone

Denmark is shrouded in the combat zone but her sister kingdom, Iceland, is not, and is now preparing to open commerce directly with the United States, having chartered a steamship service for the purpose. Iceland sells the United States more than a million dollars worth of goods a year, chiefly cod liver oil, and buys about $130,000 worth. With supplies from Europe endangered, Iceland is now in the market for increased purchases of roofing felt, galvanized corrugated sheets, cement, paper, glassware, drygoods and electric wiring.

Total American trade to the larger neutrals inside the combat zone—Ireland, Belgium, Netherlands, Denmark and Sweden—was more than $410,000,000 in 1938.

Belgium, through Ambassador Count Straten-Uonthoz, asked the state department today whether American ships barred from trade in the combat zones could be transferred to Belgian registry. The inquiry was referred to the Maritime Commission.

Nine-Times- Married Woman in Kuhn Case

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — Mrs Virginia Cogswell, nine-times married "Georgia Peach" who was described by witnesses at the trial of Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader as a recipient of Kuhn's financial favors, appeared at the federal courthouse today in response to a grand jury subpoena.

She went to the office of Assistant U. S. Attorney S. H. Reis. She declined to discuss her appearance with newsmen.

Kuhn's trial on charges of stealing Bund funds and applying them to his own uses, was in recess today. Kuhn and his lawyer spent most of the day studying an accountant's testimony that he had found discrepancies of $3,678 in the Bund's financial records.

Dr. Francis La Sorsa testified yesterday that Kuhn sent him a check for $60 for treating Mrs. Cogswell.

The trial will continue tomorrow.

IS THE NEXT PRESIDENT ONE OF THESE MEN?

Campaigns aimed at the presidency in 1940 are under way. The recent trip of Thomas E. Dewey to his native Michigan was regarded as a bid for Midwestern support, and further western travels are scheduled. Still left unanswered is the momentous 1940 question—will President Roosevelt seek a third term? His recent conferences with party leaders have been regarded as significant. Regardless of FDR's decision, Vice President Garner and Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheeler have ordered full speed ahead on their campaigns. Garner is busily setting up state headquarters. Both are angling for the support of Farley. New Hampshires' Republican Senator H. Styles Bridges' plans call for addresses in the Midwest after a flying visit to the Pacific Coast, while Senator Robert Taft, son of the late President and Ohio Republicans' white hope, will follow up a tour of the West and Midwest with a speaking trip through New England.

General Motors Anti-Trust Case Given to Jury

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 15 (AP)—A federal jury was given tonight the task of deciding whether General Motors Corporation—world's largest automobile manufacturer—violated the Sherman anti-trust law in promoting a factory-controlled finance firm.

Twelve farmer and tradesman jurors received the case after almost eight hours of final arguments of attorneys and forty-five minutes of instruction from Special Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill. The judge said he would not receive a verdict until court resumes tomorrow morning.

General Motors, three subsidiaries and seventeen officials were charged with conspiracy to monopolize automobile installment sales financing by forcing dealers to assign the business to General Motors Acceptance Corporation. The trial began Oct. 9.

"A verdict of guilty will free 15,000 General Motors dealers and will strike a blow for every small, independent merchant in the nation."

John Thomas Smith of New York City, defense lawyer, replied: "If the government, under the guise of prosecution, can force a business to do something economically unsound, then I say it's a sorry day for the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker because the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker can't fight such cases as this."

Conviction on the charge may mean imprisonment of up to a year or a fine of up to $5,000, or both.

Baldridge indicated the government might not press for prison terms if it won convictions.

"We don't feel," he said, "these men are criminals."

Judge Frederick Lee Cobourn and Mayor Robert Lawder shot from a blind off the city park and soon had as many as allowed.

The season opened at 7 a. m. It closes Dec. 29.

Few hunters in southern Anne Arundel county reported bagging the limit; many reported fair success, but said the flocks for the most part stayed out of range.

Increase in Licenses

At Annapolis, postal authorities said the number of federal duck stamps sold this year had increased twenty per cent over the 1938 sales.

At Cambridge, on the lower shore, clerks reported nearly 600 licenses were issued Monday and Tuesday. A total of 1,581 resident licenses have been issued, indicating the number will hit a ten-year high.

Chief Deputy Game Warden Richard T. Norris joined in the prediction of other game officials that this would be a banner year for sportsmen, and that the outlook was the "best in ten years."

"The restoration of western breeding grounds and the conservation work made possible by nearly $3,000,000 revenue from the sale of duck stamps has started the sport back to where it was a decade ago," Norris said.

War at Standstill On Western Front

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP)—Activity of actual war was confined in France today to a thirty-minute air raid warning in the northern industrial town of Lille and minor action on the western front.

"Patrol encounters and local artillery activity," was all the night communique of the French high command had to say about the Western front. The morning communique reported only "reduced activity."

Court To Decide Mexico Oil Case

Mexico City, Nov. 15 (AP)—An opinion upholding the right of the government to expropriate the vast, foreign-owned oil industry was submitted to the Mexican supreme court today.

It was uncertain how soon the court would vote on the opinion.

Under Mexican jurisprudence one judge prepares an opinion which then is submitted for discussion and a formal vote by the entire court.

Reading of the lengthy document was less than half completed when the court adjourned for the day. An official resume of the opinion prepared by Justice Rodolfo Asiain upheld the constitutionality of the practice of expropriation and of the expropriatory decree in the oil case and insisted Mexico was obligated to compensate the oil companies only for capital invested for production, processing and handling of oil.

The tentative opinion said the authorities executing the expropriation order, however, "gave the decree a scope which was not intended for it" in seizing records, archives, accounts and cash.

The case began with the challenge by seventeen United States, British and Netherlands oil companies of the constitutionality of the decree of president Lazaro Cardenas taking over their property.

The decree was issued March 18, 1938. The value of their property was placed at $400,000,000 by the oil companies.

Adelaide Johnson Gets Offers of Help

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Sculptress Adelaide Johnson said today a New Yorker was ready to purchase one, or possibly two, of her statues at any figure she named but she refused to sell them because the marbles were damaged.

The dimunitive artist had set out to destroy the best works of her long career when faced with eviction from her home to express "resentment" toward a world which failed to appreciate her art.

"They're gone," she said, with an air of finality.

Actually the marble busts remained on their pedestals in the studio-gallery she had created in her home across the street from the Supreme Court building. Some of them appeared only slightly marred.

Representative Bloom (D-NY), who persuaded Mrs. Johnson to desist from her plan of demolishing her works, said offers of help continued to come in.

One New York man whose name Bloom withheld sent a check for $100. A single dollar bill accompanied a letter from Cleveland signed "an artist." The sender wrote "I am very, very poor, very old and very sick."

Leadership for Business Revival Urged by Tydings

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — Senator Millard E. Tydings (D-Md) told the national founders associations today that the "greatest problem before the country" was directing national leadership toward the revival of business.

The Maryland senator addressed the association's 43rd annual convention, asserting that the burden of paying the national debt ultimately would fall upon the average citizen.

He urged cooperation of government, business, and labor in encouraging industry and thus resulting in "steady employment, good wages for 50,000,000 working people, reduction of taxes and a return to the normal way of American life."

The Wagner Labor Relations Act, he said, should be revised to afford more cooperation among labor, employers and the public.

"I agree that labor should have a slight edge over management," he said, "but the public and employers should have a fair chance to be heard and their rights respected," adding that "the sitdown strike is pure anarchy."

Tydings said industry since 1929 had spent $23,000,000,000 more than it took in and that "therefore industry of all kinds made a bigger contribution to the preservation of the nation than the government did."

Saying the "best government is a blend of humanitarianixm with the realities of life," Tydings declared that "business has got to be encouraged and not discouraged."

Because "any reduction in the debt burden depends on the revival of business," he said, "now is the time for men in the fields of government, business and labor to speak out toward this end."

Chrysler Strike End Predicted by U. S. Conciliator

Dewey Expects Settlement "within Five or Six Days"

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP)—CIO unionists staged a mass meeting in downtown Detroit today as a perdiction was made that their contract dispute with Chrysler Corporation, now reported in its final stages, would continue for another week.

James F. Dewey, United States labor department conciliator, who has been aiding in negotiations between Chrysler and the CIO United Automobile Workers, said:

"We ought to get somewhere on a settlement in the next five or six days."

A crowd estimated by police at from 15,000 to 20,000 and by UWA-CIO officers at 40,000 assembled late today in Cadillac Square, scene of previous union rallies, to hear CIO leaders assail Chrysler Corporation's stand in the dispute that has made nearly 100,000 workers idle.

R. J. Thomas, UWA-CIO president, accused the corporation of responsibility for what he termed "an inspired back-to-work move."

Following a call yesterday by Homer Martin, president of the AFL division of the UAW, for his members to report at the Plymouth plant today to show they are ready to work, approximately 650 workers appeared this morning and remained in the plant an hour. The plant normally employs 10,000.

A corporation spokesman said that when employes are called back to work by the management they are paid but added that in this case the company did not summon the men and so they were not being paid.

George Is Granted

an arc that ended on Lowther's shoulder. An impassive detective, seeming to be detached from the whole thing, moved in quickly, pulling Lowther away. Then Lowther, Herrick, Mrs. Herrick, Eileen and the lawyers marched into the judge's suite.

Wants To Marry Lowther

Miss Herrick's apparent unawareness of Lowther's presence was perhaps attributable to the extraordinary position of affairs, for in the later conference before the justice it was she who protested successfully when he suggested a six-months waiting period before she decided on marriage.

"I'll be a nervous wreck," she explained.

While the whole thing was regarded by the lawyers as a friendly settlement of a little family difficulty, both Herrick and the dark and curly-haired Lowther made it clear that nothing much in the way of warmth could be expected between what may turn out to be a father-in-law and son-in-law.

For another incident similar to the corridor episode occurred in the judge's chambers when the broker handed Eileen a ring. She took it but her father doubled his fists and objected, and so she returned it.

Stopped by Detectives

The male principals left the judge's chambers separately and as coldly silent as they had entered.

Asked "is everything all right now?" Lowther bowed curtly and withdrew.

Justice Wasservogel opened the hearing by telling Miss Herrick that Lowther had charged she was being deprived of her liberty by her parents.

She nodded, either in agreement or understanding, and remarked that she'd gone to the hospital on her own motion because there was "more peace there."

Then she said that previously, when she'd tried to leave her home, "detectives stopped me," and that she "guessed" they had been employed by her father and mother.

"Were you and Mr. Lowther about to be married?" asked the broker's counsel.

"Yes, sir."

"If you had your liberty, would you marry Mr. Lowther?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your father doesn't approve of Mr. Lowther, does he?"

"Yes sir," she said with a straight face, adding that as for her she loved Mr. Lowther.

"If she wants to marry this man," the judge commented, "she has a right to do so. She ought to listen to her parents' advice; but she has civil rights, too, and if she makes a mistake it's her mistake and her life."

Herrick explained that his reasons for objecting were "many" — including a belief that Eileen was merely infatuated.

Mrs. Herrick announced that she felt "cordial" toward Lowther's father and aunt, and that she wanted to apologize for the "unpleasantness."

"I feel very badly about it," she said — and her manner had suggested as much. For during the long corridor wait for Eileen to come from the hospital she walked up to Lowther, halting his interminable pacing of the floor, and shook his hand.

Then she added that she had offered to advise the broker of the points about him of which she was critical, but that in answer he had come to her home "rebelliously."

"When the ten days are up and if I get a job," Eileen asked at the end of the interview, "may I see Mr. Lowther anytime I wish?"

"Yes," said the judge.

"Thank you," she sighed.

Grasshoppers Fooled By Warm Weather

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 15. (AP)—Four days of spring-like weather have fooled even the grasshoppers. Economic Balance Is Greatest Need, Louis Taber Says

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP)—The national grange convention heard Louis J. Taber, its chief officer, assert today that the depression cannot be overcome until agriculture is on a "parity" with other groups.

Taber, master of the grange for 16 years, asserted that during the last 10 years the farmer has faced a 22 per cent exchange disadvantage in dealing with other groups of citizens.

Department of agriculture statistics, he asserted, reveal that in July and August of this year prices received by the farmer were equal to only 74 per cent of the prices paid by him for the commodities, goods and services used in rural life.

He pointed out however, that there has been a slight upturn since the war in Europe—a war which he deplored, adding that even though prices are low and the need of increased income is essential, "farmers want no added dollars if they come to him stained with human blood."

With the farm dollar 22 per cent below par, Taber observed, "It is more than a coincidence that approximately 20 per cent of the nation's labor is unemployed."

This proves, he said, that "America's greatest need is economic balance—such disparity cannot be corrected by legislation alone."

Pantages Charges Wife Drank Heavily

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP)—Rodney Pantages, member of the wealthy vaudeville family, testified today that his wife, Beatrice, from whom he seeks a divorce, once broke a world speedboad record.

But he mentioned another race on the Salton sea in which she tried for a new record and didn't make it.

"She was running a mile straightaway," he said, "and she was running all over the course—just like a serpentine."

"So you decided from that that she was drunk?" asked C. B. Conlin, lawyer for Mrs. Pantages who also wants a divorce. Each asks custoday of their two children.

"I know she was intoxicated," Pantages replied.

Most of their domestic troubles grew out of her imbibing too freely, he continued. Then he mentioned the time they were aboard the yacht Sea Lion in 1937."

"She accused me of being unbending for not taking a drink, so I went ashore at Avalon and bought a pint of champagne," Pantages testified. "When I got back she already had a drink in her hand. She kept fortifying all evening."

A letter to Mrs. Pantages, allegedly from Pete Bedwell, bartender and named co-respondent, was introduced in evidence.

Mrs. Marjorie Heatherington, former nurse for the family testified Mrs. Pantages was very friendly with the captain of the Pantages yacht, La Pan, and helped pay rent on an apartment where she visited him.

Film Studio Unions Threaten To Strike

Hollywood, Nov. 15 (AP)—American Federation of Labor film studio unions today announced a walkout of 35,000 members unless a ten per cent wage increase is granted by producers by 2:30 p. m. next Monday. The strike would be effective Tuesday morning.

William Bioff, chairman of a recently-formed conference of studio unions, including all AFL workers in the studios, served an ultimatum upon the producers at the close of a meeting in which union and producer representatives participated.

The meeting was called to consider union demands, backed by a one-day strike last week at the Selznick International studios, that a ten per cent wage increase previously granted 12,000 technicians belonging to unions affiliated with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, should also be received by 23,000 members of other AFL studio unions.

The producers had asked that the wage boost granted the IATSE unions be rescinded in view of loss of foreign markets incident to the European war.

Today's meeting did not go into other points of union demands, including a question whether flat salary workers earning more than the contract scale also should receive the ten per cent increase.

Rich Gold Vein Found in Florida

Ore Assays up to $60,000 a Ton; Depth of Bonanza Unknown

Dahlonega, Ga., Nov. 15 (AP)—Gold ore assaying up to $60,000 a ton moved commercially from a 110-year-old mine today a few hours after disclosure of a new bonanza vein comparing favorably in richness with the famed Comstock lode.

A small crew of men equipped with such modern tolls as pneumatic drills and Diesel power dug yellow-streaked rock from the old Calhoun mine strike which rewarded Major Graham Dugas for weeks of expensive exploratory work in the long inactive diggings.

While the only picturesque touch was provided by shotgun-armed guards—whose duties were not quite clear—Major Dugas, former state legislator and veteran prospector, allowed himself to become mildly hopeful that the two-inch thick, ten-inch wide strip of rich rock might carry on into the mountainside for hundreds of yards.

Although Garland Peyton, cautious state geologist, unhesitatingly described the strike as being of "bonanza," caliber and said the ore rivalled in richness that of the great Comstock at Virginia City, Nev., only further operations can tell the real worth of the find.

If the drill-wielding mine laborers were in sharp contract to the common idea of the picturesque 49'er, this hill town's calm was even further from the traditional boom fever that has come so swiftly on the heels of past strikes.

The mountain man's natural reserve was an element in this lack of enthusiasm, but another factor was the full realization that the land all around here is in private hands and all the likely gold spots always have been tightly held.

Nor were there any great hopes raised for a revival of the bustling activity the town knew fifty years ago when there was a government mint here and thirty mines turned out $1,000,000 a year in bullion. For one thing, the depth and extent of the new vein remained to be determined. For another, the nature of the workings does not call for many hands and probably would not, even though the vein is found to be extensive.

who left a deep imprint upon the nation, as well as for Jefferson. The latter he lauded for his interest in education, as the inventor of "numerous small devices to make human life simpler and happier" and as an experimenter in scientific methods of agriculture.

"But," he added, "it was in the field of political philosophy that Jefferson's significance is transcendant.

"He lived as we live in the midst of a struggle between rule by the self-chosen individual or the self-appointed few, and rule by the franchise and approval of the many. He believed as we do that the average opinion of mankind is in the long run superior to the dictates of the self-chosen.

Praises Jefferson

"During all the years that have followed Thomas Jefferson, the United States has expanded his philosophy into a greater achievement of security of the nation, security of the individual and national unity, than in any other part of the world.

"It may be that the conflict between the two forms of philosophy will continue for centuries to come, but we in the United States are more than ever satisfied with the Republican form of government based on regularly recurring opportunities to our citizens to choose their leaders for themselves."

The address concluded, Mr. Roosevelt stepped over to the huge shiny marble cornerstone, which hung suspended over its position by one of the derricks.

"I'm afraid I'm going to be sloppy with the mortar," he said to his attendants and members of the commission in charge of the memorial, who stood nearby.

The trowel, which George Washington used to lay the cornerstone of the capitol was handed to him. He turned it in his hands, studying it and remarked that it was "a lovely little trowel."

Inside the stone was placed a box containing copies of the Declaration of Independence, and other things of which Jefferson was the author.

A deep controversy attended the selection of the site for the memorial, since some feared it involved the destruction of many of the famous cherry trees which rim the tidal basin. The dispute was settled when the president said that while eighty-three trees would be uprooted, 912 new ones would be planted.

Policeman Slays Crusading Mayor Of Long Beach

Louis F. Edwards Shot to Death in Front of His Home

Long Beach, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Death in a fusillade of five gunshots today ended the anti-gambling crusade of Louis F. Edwards, 40, reform mayor of this seaside resort on the south shore of Long Island.

His bodyguard, police sergeant James Walsh, was perhaps fatally wounded before he could draw his gun.

The shooting took place in front of the mayor's home as he was leaving for his office.

A few minutes later, a figure with bloodshot eyes lurched into the Long Beach police station, slammed a revolver on the desk and shouted:

"I killed the mayor!"

The slayer, according to police, was Patrolman Alvin Dooley, 43, father of four children, who was recently demoted from the Long Beach motorcycle police squad and who was defeated last week by the wounded Sergeant Walsh in an election for president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

Officials said Mayor Edwards supported Walsh for the post which Dooley formerly held.

Dooley was charged with homicide and taken to the jail at nearby Mineola as a crowd of 1,000 milled outside the local police station raising cries of "lynch him!"

An eye-witness, Frank Coombs, said he saw Dooley pull a half-empty bottle of liquor from his pocket as he walked away from the scene and heard him boast:

"Well, I just shot that —— Edwards. I'm glad I did it."

The mayor, who was president of the Metropolitan Refinery Company in Long Island City, had virtually "cleaned up" this "little Atlantic City," which had a long history of scandal and corruption, slot-machines and other forms of gambling.

He overwhelmed the long-incumbent political machine forces in 1937. The resort, which once ranked among the most fashionable on Long Island, had begun to take on a Coney Island appearance.

Last summer Mayor Edwards made headlines by forbidding men to appear on the boardwalk wearing suspenders and no coats—to discourage "hoodlums," he said.

standpoint, the Bitche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg salient, is involved in these brief flurries of fighting southwest of Pirmasens on an otherwise slumbering battle front.

Salient is Sensitive Sector

That front runs from Switzerland to Luxembourg, 200 miles or more. It forms a huge salient thrust into the flank of post-World-War Germany by allied map makers. And the Bitche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg tip of that salient, is the most sensitive sector of the 1939 war battle line as long as Belgian neutrality masks its North Sea flank.

There is nothing about the reported attacks and counter attacks by small units to suggest that there are more than tactical sparring for possession of these observation and fire control high points of the terrain. From these points intensified harrassing fire, grooved by visual observation rather than fire-map co-ordination, can be directed against road junctions behind the lines.

A ceaseless winter-long succession of such skirmishes is to be anticipated, even if both sides are now merely digging in for the winter, as neutral military opinion believes. Yet if a major attack is to come next year by either side along the line of the Franco-German frontier, it is virtualy certain that it must come with the Bitche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg salient as its center of gravity, its vital sector.

Map Reveals Strategists

That salient thrusts its way through the great potential gateway afforded by the long gap between the Hardt mountains on the German side and the Vosges mountains on the French. Even to non-military eyes, a glance at the map reveals it for what it is, a design of French military strategists who dominated the World-War peace table to keep a gun at Germany's head even after the allies released the protective Rhine bridgehead which they had occupied to enforce the peace terms.

Nazi German realization that this salient, around which virtually the only military action of then new war has turned, is aimed at the industrial heart of the fatherland is sharply emphasized by the depth of "westwall" defenses about it.

Not Worth Risk to Forces

France's voluntary surrender of the jump-off positions on German soil around the edges of the Saar basin and around the Bitsche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg salient was a key to allied preparations for a winter of military stalemate on the west front. Their retention against any determined German effort to retake them was not worth the price in blood, obviously.

Nor are the various heights southwest of Pirmasens worth enough to the French at this stage, apparently, to risk major forces. That will come only when the opening of a real German effort to pinch off the salient can be detected, or when allied strategy calls for an onslaught on the Siegried line.

European Neutrals Lose Millions in Foreign Shipping

WANT AMERICAN SHIPS TO ENTER THEIR PORTS

Norway To Take up Some of Cargoes Once Carried in U. S. Vessels

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Nov. 15. (AP)—The neutrality act not only has affected the European belligerents, but "it has reacted materially upon the neutral nations of Europe, some of which have commerce with the United States running into scores of millions of dollars.

Dispatches from various northern neutral capitals evince considerable concern. Within the combat area barred to American ships are such customers as the Netherlands, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and Ireland, as well as the Baltic states of Lithuania, Latvia and Esthonia.

Ireland already has expressed her concern to the United States. She says her ports are suffering from the absence of American ships and she is in need of certain American products.

Small Nations Worried

No other neutral has expressed official concern ,but it is learned that Scandinavian nations were so worried in advance of proclamation of the combat area that they sought assurances from this government that means would be found of leaving some access to them.

A method was found—that of placing a northern limit on the combat zone so that American ships could still go into the ports of Bergen or Trondhjem, Norway. From those ports there are excellent rail connections across Norway into Sweden and Finland and down to Denmark. But train hauls will increase the cost of American goods.

Finland wanted to be sure American ships could still enter her northern port of Pessamo, and this port was left outside the combat area.

Norwegian ships are preparing to take up some of the carrying trade abandoned by the United States. A high official here characterized Norwegian shipping, which is the sixth largest in the world, as "the strongest crutch we have in an emergency." The Black Diamond line is reported negotiating for the chartering of a fleet of Norwegian vessels to carry on its trade under the Norwegian flag, and the cosmopolitan line is reported to have completed negotiations with the Norwegians for a fleet of ships.

Denmark in Combat Zone

Denmark is shrouded in the combat zone but her sister kingdom, Iceland, is not, and is now preparing to open commerce directly with the United States, having chartered a steamship service for the purpose. Iceland sells the United States more than a million dollars worth of goods a year, chiefly cod liver oil, and buys about $130,000 worth. With supplies from Europe endangered, Iceland is now in the market for increased purchases of roofing felt, galvanized corrugated sheets, cement, paper, glassware, drygoods and electric wiring.

Total American trade to the larger neutrals inside the combat zone—Ireland, Belgium, Netherlands, Denmark and Sweden—was more than $410,000,000 in 1938.

Belgium, through Ambassador Count Straten-Uonthoz, asked the state department today whether American ships barred from trade in the combat zones could be transferred to Belgian registry. The inquiry was referred to the Maritime Commission.

IS THE NEXT PRESIDENT ONE OF THESE MEN?

Campaigns aimed at the presidency in 1940 are under way. The recent trip of Thomas E. Dewey to his native Michigan was regarded as a bid for Midwestern support, and further western travels are scheduled. Still left unanswered is the momentous 1940 question—will President Roosevelt seek a third term? His recent conferences with party leaders have been regarded as significant. Regardless of FDR's decision, Vice President Garner and Montana's Senator Burton K. Wheeler have ordered full speed ahead on their campaigns. Garner is busily setting up state headquarters. Both are angling for the support of Farley. New Hampshires' Republican Senator H. Styles Bridges' plans call for addresses in the Midwest after a flying visit to the Pacific Coast, while Senator Robert Taft, son of the late President and Ohio Republicans' white hope, will follow up a tour of the West and Midwest with a speaking trip through New England.

General Motors Anti-Trust Case Given to Jury

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 15 (AP)—A federal jury was given tonight the task of deciding whether General Motors Corporation—world's largest automobile manufacturer—violated the Sherman anti-trust law in promoting a factory-controlled finance firm.

Twelve farmer and tradesman jurors received the case after almost eight hours of final arguments of attorneys and forty-five minutes of instruction from Special Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill. The judge said he would not receive a verdict until court resumes tomorrow morning.

General Motors, three subsidiaries and seventeen officials were charged with conspiracy to monopolize automobile installment sales financing by forcing dealers to assign the business to General Motors Acceptance Corporation. The trial began Oct. 9.

Holmes Baldridge, special assistant to the United States attorney general, told the jury:

"A verdict of guilty will free 15,000 General Motors dealers and will strike a blow for every small, independent merchant in the nation."

John Thomas Smith of New York City, defense lawyer, replied: "If the government, under the guise of prosecution, can force a business to do something economically unsound, then I say it's a sorry day for the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker because the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker can't fight such cases as this."

Conviction on the charge may mean imprisonment of up to a year or a fine of up to $5,000, or both.

Baldridge indicated the government might not press for prison terms if it won convictions.

"We don't feel," he said, "these men are criminals."

Increase in Licenses

At Annapolis, postal authorities said the number of federal duck stamps sold this year had increased twenty per cent over the 1938 sales.

At Cambridge, on the lower shore, clerks reported nearly 600 licenses were issued Monday and Tuesday. A total of 1,581 resident licenses have been issued, indicating the number will hit a ten-year high.

Chief Deputy Game Warden Richard T. Norris joined in the prediction of other game officials that this would be a banner year for sportsmen, and that the outlook was the "best in ten years."

"The restoration of western breeding grounds and the conservation work made possible by nearly $3,000,000 revenue from the sale of duck stamps has started the sport back to where it was a decade ago," Norris said.

Nine-Times- Married Woman in Kuhn Case

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — Mrs. Virginia Cogswell, nine-times married "Georgia Peach" who was described by witnesses at the trial of Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader as a recipient of Kuhn's financial favors, appeared at the federal courthouse today in response to a grand jury subpoena.

She went to the office of Assistant U. S. Attorney S. H. Reis. She declined to discuss her appearance with newsmen.

Kuhn's trial on charges of stealing Bund funds and applying them to his own uses, was in recess today. Kuhn and his lawyer spent most of the day studying an accountant's testimony that he had found discrepancies of $3,678 in the Bund's financial records.

Dr. Francis La Sorsa testified yesterday that Kuhn sent him a check for $60 for treating Mrs. Cogswell.

The trial will continue tomorrow.

Court To Decide Mexico Oil Case

Mexico City, Nov. 15 (AP)—An opinion upholding the right of the government to expropriate the vast, foreign-owned oil industry was submitted to the Mexican supreme court today.

It was uncertain how soon the court would vote on the opinion.

Under Mexican jurisprudence one judge prepares an opinion which then is submitted for discussion and a formal vote by the entire court.

Reading of the lengthy document was less than half completed when the court adjourned for the day. An official resume of the opinion prepared by Justice Rodolfo Asiain upheld the constitutionality of the practice of expropriation and of the expropriatory decree in the oil case and insisted Mexico was obligated to compensate the oil companies only for capital invested for production, processing and handling of oil.

The tentative opinion said the authorities executing the expropriation order, however, "gave the decree a scope which was not intended for it" in seizing records, archives, accounts and cash.

The case began with the challenge by seventeen United States, British and Netherlands oil companies of the constitutionality of the decree of president Lazaro Cardenas taking over their property.

The decree was issued March 18, 1938. The value of their property was placed at $400,000,000 by the oil companies.

Adelaide Johnson Gets Offers of Help

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Sculptress Adelaide Johnson said today a New Yorker was ready to purchase one, or possibly two, of her statues at any figure she named but she refused to sell them because the marbles were damaged.

The dimunitive artist had set out to destroy the best works of her long career when faced with eviction from her home to express "resentment" toward a world which failed to appreciate her art.

"They're gone," she said, with an air of finality.

Actually the marble busts remained on their pedestals in the studio-gallery she had created in her home across the street from the Supreme Court building. Some of them appeared only slightly marred.

Representative Bloom (D-NY), who persuaded Mrs. Johnson to desist from her plan of demolishing her works, said offers of help continued to come in.

One New York man whose name Bloom withheld sent a check for $100. A single dollar bill accompanied a letter from Cleveland signed "an artist." The sender wrote "I am very, very poor, very old and very sick."

Leadership for Business Revival Urged by Tydings

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — Senator Millard E. Tydings (D-Md) told the national founders associations today that the "greatest problem before the country" was directing national leadership toward the revival of business.

The Maryland senator addressed the association's 43rd annual convention, asserting that the burden of paying the national debt ultimately would fall upon the average citizen.

He urged cooperation of government, business, and labor in encouraging industry and thus resulting in "steady employment, good wages for 50,000,000 working people, reduction of taxes and a return to the normal way of American life."

The Wagner Labor Relations Act, he said, should be revised to afford more cooperation among labor, employers and the public.

"I agree that labor should have a slight edge over management," he said, "but the public and employers should have a fair chance to be heard and their rights respected," adding that "the sitdown strike is pure anarchy."

Tydings said industry since 1929 had spent $23,000,000,000 more than it took in and that "therefore industry of all kinds made a bigger contribution to the preservation of the nation than the government did."

Saying the "best government is a blend of humanitarianixm with the realities of life," Tydings declared that "business has got to be encouraged and not discouraged."

Because "any reduction in the debt burden depends on the revival of business," he said, "now is the time for men in the fields of government, business and labor to speak out toward this end."

Chrysler Strike End Predicted by U. S. Conciliator

Dewey Expects Settlement "within Five or Six Days"

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP)—CIO unionists staged a mass meeting in downtown Detroit today as a perdiction was made that their contract dispute with Chrysler Corporation, now reported in its final stages, would continue for another week.

James F. Dewey, United States labor department conciliator, who has been aiding in negotiations between Chrysler and the CIO United Automobile Workers, said:

"We ought to get somewhere on a settlement in the next five or six days."

A crowd estimated by police at from 15,000 to 20,000 and by UWA-CIO officers at 40,000 assembled late today in Cadillac Square, scene of previous union rallies, to hear CIO leaders assail Chrysler Corporation's stand in the dispute that has made nearly 100,000 workers idle.

R. J. Thomas, UWA-CIO president, accused the corporation of responsibility for what he termed "an inspired back-to-work move."

Following a call yesterday by Homer Martin, president of the AFL division of the UAW, for his members to report at the Plymouth plant today to show they are ready to work, approximately 650 workers appeared this morning and remained in the plant an hour. The plant normally employs 10,000.

A corporation spokesman said that when employes are called back to work by the management they are paid but added that in this case the company did not summon the men and so they were not being paid.

an arc that ended on Lowther's shoulder. An impassive detective, seeming to be detached from the whole thing, moved in quickly, pulling Lowther away. Then Lowther, Herrick, Mrs. Herrick, Eileen and the lawyers marched into the judge's suite.

Wants To Marry Lowther

Miss Herrick's apparent unawareness of Lowther's presence was perhaps attributable to the extraordinary position of affairs, for in the later conference before the justice it was she who protested successfully when he suggested a six-months waiting period before she decided on marriage.

"I'll be a nervous wreck," she explained.

While the whole thing was regarded by the lawyers as a friendly settlement of a little family difficulty, both Herrick and the dark and curly-haired Lowther made it clear that nothing much in the way of warmth could be expected between what may turn out to be a father-in-law and son-in-law.

For another incident similar to the corridor episode occurred in the judge's chambers when the broker handed Eileen a ring. She took it but her father doubled his fists and objected, and so she returned it.

Stopped by Detectives

The male principals left the judge's chambers separately and as coldly silent as they had entered.

Asked "is everything all right now?" Lowther bowed curtly and withdrew.

Justice Wasservogel opened the hearing by telling Miss Herrick that Lowther had charged she was being deprived of her liberty by her parents.

She nodded, either in agreement or understanding, and remarked that she'd gone to the hospital on her own motion because there was "more peace there."

Then she said that previously, when she'd tried to leave her home, "detectives stopped me," and that she "guessed" they had been employed by her father and mother.

"Were you and Mr. Lowther about to be married?" asked the broker's counsel.

"Yes, sir."

"If you had your liberty, would you marry Mr. Lowther?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your father doesn't approve of Mr. Lowther, does he?"

"Yes sir," she said with a straight face, adding that as for her she loved Mr. Lowther.

"If she wants to marry this man," the judge commented, "she has a right to do so. She ought to listen to her parents' advice; but she has civil rights, too, and if she makes a mistake it's her mistake and her life."

Herrick explained that his reasons for objecting were "many" — including a belief that Eileen was merely infatuated.

Mrs. Herrick announced that she felt "cordial" toward Lowther's father and aunt, and that she wanted to apologize for the "unpleasantness."

"I feel very badly about it," she said — and her manner had suggested as much. For during the long corridor wait for Eileen to come from the hospital she walked up to Lowther, halting his interminable pacing of the floor, and shook his hand.

Then she added that she had offered to advise the broker of the points about him of which she was critical, but that in answer he had come to her home "rebelliously."

"When the ten days are up and if I get a job," Eileen asked at the end of the interview, "may I see Mr. Lowther anytime I wish?"

"Yes," said the judge.

"Thank you," she sighed.

Economic Balance Is Greatest Need, Louis Taber Says

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP)—The national grange convention heard Louis J. Taber, its chief officer, assert today that the depression cannot be overcome until agriculture is on a "parity" with other groups.

Taber, master of the grange for 16 years, asserted that during the last 10 years the farmer has faced a 22 per cent exchange disadvantage in dealing with other groups of citizens.

Department of agriculture statistics, he asserted, reveal that in July and August of this year prices received by the farmer were equal to only 74 per cent of the prices paid by him for the commodities, goods and services used in rural life.

He pointed out however, that there has been a slight upturn since the war in Europe—a war which he deplored, adding that even though prices are low and the need of increased income is essential, "farmers want no added dollars if they come to him stained with human blood."

With the farm dollar 22 per cent below par, Taber observed, "It is more than a coincidence that approximately 20 per cent of the nation's labor is unemployed."

This proves, he said, that "America's greatest need is economic balance—such disparity cannot be corrected by legislation alone."

Pantages Charges Wife Drank Heavily

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP)—Rodney Pantages, member of the wealthy vaudeville family, testified today that his wife, Beatrice, from whom he seeks a divorce, once broke a world speedboad record.

But he mentioned another race on the Salton sea in which she tried for a new record and didn't make it.

"She was running a mile straightaway," he said, "and she was running all over the course—just like a serpentine."

"So you decided from that that she was drunk?" asked C. B. Conlin, lawyer for Mrs. Pantages who also wants a divorce. Each asks custoday of their two children.

"I know she was intoxicated," Pantages replied.

Most of their domestic troubles grew out of her imbibing too freely, he continued. Then he mentioned the time they were aboard the yacht Sea Lion in 1937."

"She accused me of being unbending for not taking a drink, so I went ashore at Avalon and bought a pint of champagne," Pantages testified. "When I got back she already had a drink in her hand. She kept fortifying all evening."

A letter to Mrs. Pantages, allegedly from Pete Bedwell, bartender and named co-respondent, was introduced in evidence.

Mrs. Marjorie Heatherington, former nurse for the family testified Mrs. Pantages was very friendly with the captain of the Pantages yacht, La Pan, and helped pay rent on an apartment where she visited him.

Film Studio Unions Threaten To Strike

Hollywood, Nov. 15 (AP)—American Federation of Labor film studio unions today announced a walkout of 35,000 members unless a ten per cent wage increase is granted by producers by 2:30 p. m. next Monday. The strike would be effective Tuesday morning.

William Bioff, chairman of a recently-formed conference of studio unions, including all AFL workers in the studios, served an ultimatum upon the producers at the close of a meeting in which union and producer representatives participated.

The meeting was called to consider union demands, backed by a one-day strike last week at the Selznick International studios, that a ten per cent wage increase previously granted 12,000 technicians belonging to unions affiliated with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, should also be received by 23,000 members of other AFL studio unions.

The producers had asked that the wage boost granted the IATSE unions be rescinded in view of loss of foreign markets incident to the European war.

Today's meeting did not go into other points of union demands, including a question whether flat salary workers earning more than the contract scale also should receive the ten per cent increase.

Rich Gold Vein Found in Florida

Ore Assays up to $60,000 a Ton; Depth of Bonanza Unknown

Dahlonega, Ga., Nov. 15 (AP)—Gold ore assaying up to $60,000 a ton moved commercially from a 110-year-old mine today a few hours after disclosure of a new bonanza vein comparing favorably in richness with the famed Comstock lode.

A small crew of men equipped with such modern tolls as pneumatic drills and Diesel power dug yellow-streaked rock from the old Calhoun mine strike which rewarded Major Graham Dugas for weeks of expensive exploratory work in the long inactive diggings.

While the only picturesque touch was provided by shotgun-armed guards—whose duties were not quite clear—Major Dugas, former state legislator and veteran prospector, allowed himself to become mildly hopeful that the two-inch thick, ten-inch wide strip of rich rock might carry on into the mountainside for hundreds of yards.

Although Garland Peyton, cautious state geologist, unhesitatingly described the strike as being of "boganza," caliber and said the ore rivalled in richness that of the great Comstock at Virginia City, Nev., only further operations can tell the real worth of the find.

If the drill-wielding mine laborers were in sharp contract to the common idea of the picturesque 49'er, this hill town's calm was even further from the traditional boom fever that has come so swiftly on the heels of past strikes.

The mountain man's natural reserve was an element in this lack of enthusiasm, but another factor was the full realization that the land all around here is in private hands and all the likely gold spots always have been tightly held.

Nor were there any great hopes raised for a revival of the bustling activity the town knew fifty years ago when there was a government mint here and thirty mines turned out $1,000,000 a year in bullion. For one thing, the depth and extent of the new vein remained to be determined. For another, the nature of the workings does not call for many hands and probably would not, even though the vein is found to be extensive.

who left a deep imprint upon the nation, as well as for Jefferson. The latter he lauded for his interest in education, as the inventor of "numerous small devices to make human life simpler and happier" and as an experimenter in scientific methods of agriculture.

"But," he added, "it was in the field of political philosophy that Jefferson's significance is transcendant.

"He lived as we live in the midst of a struggle between rule by the self-chosen individual or the self-appointed few, and rule by the franchise and approval of the many. He believed as we do that the average opinion of mankind is in the long run superior to the dictates of the self-chosen.

Praises Jefferson

"During all the years that have followed Thomas Jefferson, the United States has expanded his philosophy into a greater achievement of security of the nation, security of the individual and national unity, than in any other part of the world.

"It may be that the conflict between the two forms of philosophy will continue for centuries to come, but we in the United States are more than ever satisfied with the Republican form of government based on regularly recurring opportunities to our citizens to choose their leaders for themselves."

The address concluded, Mr. Roosevelt stepped over to the huge shiny marble cornerstone, which hung suspended over its position by one of the derricks.

"I'm afraid I'm going to be sloppy with the mortar," he said to his attendants and members of the commission in charge of the memorial, who stood nearby.

The trowel, which George Washington used to lay the cornerstone of the capitol was handed to him. He turned it in his hands, studying it and remarked that it was "a lovely little trowel."

Inside the stone was placed a box containing copies of the Declaration of Independence, and other things of which Jefferson was the author.

A deep controversy attended the selection of the site for the memorial, since some feared it involved the destruction of many of the famous cherry trees which rim the tidal basin. The dispute was settled when the president said that while eighty-three trees would be uprooted, 912 new ones would be planted.

ed inside the establishments to block escape of alleged operators. The plain clothesmen promptly seized cash on gaming tables. Skeen said it totaled $2,894.

One of the most elaborate places had been in operation less than two weeks, one state trooper disclosed, and he said several of the men arrested bemoaned that "after today, with the nationwide racing news service suspended permanently, a raid wouldn't have been worth the bother."

Policeman Slays Crusading Mayor Of Long Beach

Louis F. Edwards Shot to Death in Front of His Home

Long Beach, N. Y., Nov. 15 (AP)—Death in a fusillade of five gunshots today ended the anti-gambling crusade of Louis F. Edwards, 4[illegible] reform mayor of this seaside resort on the south shore of Long Island.

His bodyguard, police sergeant James Walsh, was perhaps fatally wounded before he could draw his gun.

A stray bullet also nipped the hand of a passing postman, Fred Schratweiser.

The shooting took place in front of the mayor's home as he was leaving for his office.

A few minutes later, a figure with bloodshot eyes lurched into the Long Beach police station, slammed a revolver on the desk and shouted:

"I killed the mayor!"

The slayer, according to police, was Patrolman Alvin Dooley, 4[illegible] father of four children, who was recently demoted from the Long Beach motorcycle police squad and who was defeated last week by the wounded Sergeant Walsh in an election for president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association.

Officials said Mayor Edwards supported Walsh for the post which Dooley formerly held.

Dooley was charged with homicide and taken to the jail at nearby Mineola as a crowd of 1,000 milled outside the local police station raising cries of "lynch him!"

An eye-witness, Frank Coombs, said he saw Dooley pull a half-empty bottle of liquor from his pocket as he walked away from the scene and heard him boast:

"Well, I just shot that —— Edwards. I'm glad I did it."

The mayor, who was president of the Metropolitan Refinery Company in Long Island City, had virtually "cleaned up" this "little Atlantic City," which had a long history of scandal and corruption, slot-machines and other forms of gambling.

He overwhelmed the long-incumbent political machine forces in 1937. The resort, which once ranked among the most fashionable on Long Island, had begun to take on a Coney Island appearance.

Last summer Mayor Edwards made headlines by forbidding men to appear on the boardwalk wearing suspenders and no coats—to discourage "hoodlums," he said.

standpoint, the Bitche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg salient, is involved in these brief flurries of fighting southwest of Pirmasens on an otherwise slumbering battle front.

Salient is Sensitive Sector

That front runs from Switzerland to Luxembourg, 200 miles or more. It forms a huge salient thrust into the flank of post-World-War Germany by allied map makers. And the Bitche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg tip of that salient, is the most sensitive sector of the 1939 war battle line as long as Belgian neutrality masks its North Sea flank.

There is nothing about the reported attacks and counter attacks by small units to suggest that there are more than tactical sparring for possession of these observation and fire control high points of the terrain. From these points intensified harrassing fire, grooved by visual observation rather than fire-map co-ordination, can be directed against road junctions behind the lines.

A ceaseless winter-long succession of such skirmishes is to be anticipated, even if both sides are now merely digging in for the winter, as neutral military opinion believes. Yet if a major attack is to come next year by either side along the line of the Franco-German frontier, it is virtualy certain that it must come with the Bitche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg salient as its center of gravity, its vital sector.

Map Reveals Strategists

That salient thrusts its way through the great potential gateway afforded by the long gap between the Hardt mountains on the German side and the Vosges mountains on the French. Even to non-military eyes, a glance at the map reveals it for what it is, a design of French military strategists who dominated the World-War peace table to keep a gun at Germany's head even after the allies released the protective Rhine bridgehead which they had occupied to enforce the peace terms.

Nazi German realization that this salient, around which virtually the only military action of then new war has turned, is aimed at the industrial heart of the fatherland is sharply emphasized by the depth of "westwall" defenses about it.

Not Worth Risk to Forces

France's voluntary surrender of the jump-off positions on German soil around the edges of the Saar basin and around the Bitsche-Lauterbourg-Strasbourg salient was a key to allied preparations for a winter of military stalemate on the west front. Their retention against any determined German effort to retake them was not worth the price in blood, obviously.

Nor are the various heights southwest of Pirmasens worth enough to the French at this stage, apparently, to risk major forces. That will come only when the opening of a real German effort to pinch off the salient can be detected, or when allied strategy calls for an onslaught on the Siegried line.

Personality Can Often Overcome One's Handicap

Instances of the Kind Are Cited By Dr. Myers

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Some years ago we had the honor of entertaining in our home a gentleman we had never met before, but of whom different members of the family still are saying, "Wasn't he a most attractive person?"

One of his arms and one hand were paralyzed, but none of us observed this affliction until several hours after his arrival, and then everybody seemed entirely to forget about it. His cultivated manner, speech, and smiles, and his sense of humor, captivated all of us.

"How wonderful that he could make us forget about his hand completely, even while he used it with great difficulty in eating his grapefruit," observed Mrs. Myers. He was, indeed, a great inspiration to all of us.

I remember that I once dropped into the men's section of a department store. When a clerk approached me, I was for the moment repelled by his unprepossessing face, but as soon as he smiled and spoke he appealed to me. I made my purchase with great pleasure, lingered to enjoy his presence, and finally left the store marveling at that man's self-development of charm.

Personality Won

I recall a certain elderly lady in a rather important business position. In a conference with her my eyes fell upon certain marks upon her face which ordinarily would have repelled me. But her grace, her voice, her speech and movements made me say to myself, "How remarkable her personality!"

There are many children who have certain physical handicaps which will go with them throughout life. We can help the older children of this cort by calling to their attention such characters as I have just described. We can do more; we can help them forget their handicap.

By nature, however, we are inclined to make these children more self-conscious. Many adults, even parents, tend to remind the child constantly of the very thing he desires to have entirely forgotten. They talk of such traits directly to the child, or of them in his presence. We all should be more cultivated than to offend by such boorishness.

You and I know that we unconsciously hide any physical defect we know we have or think we have. I discovered, for example, that for years I had never pointed in my teaching with the crooked index finger of my right hand, although I am decidedly right-handed. School children dim of sight or dull of hearing nearly always choose a seat in the rear of the classroom.

Remind Him of It

Even when we learn not to make verbal reference to the physical irregularity of a child, we may still remind him constantly of it by the way our eyes fall upon it, or by our gestures, even by the way we breathe.

Here is an opportuity for us to develop stronger character in our selves and to build up personality in the child. Think of the good we may do, the heartaches we may ease, the happiness we are able to afford the growing child, by taking thought and by proper management of ourselves.

If you would like to have a list of books on personality development and mental health, write me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

A Distinction Needed Here

THIS NEWSPAPER finds agreement in a number of things said by Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes in his outspoken address at the Forum here, but it believes he is just a bit too pinkish with regard to the constitution of the United States.

"We are still trying to run a great nation with a constitution which the perpetrators [sic] did not think would last over twenty-five years," Dr. Barnes said. "The thing that is holding us back," he also said, "is our faith in fool ideas and fool institutions. We are still trying to run the country with a set-up that was originally planned for a town of 300 people back when there were Indians, panthers, bears and blockhouses."

Well, some distinction is needed here as between perishable and durable goods. Both doubtless require attention, to be sure. Progress, change, flux, decay, the ravages of time, evolution require continual adjustment and readjustment. But certain things are imperishable in human society.

The immutable law of gravitation still holds good. Two and two make four and five and six make eleven today just as they did away back in the time of Euclid. Despite repeated efforts, nobody has yet found a satisfactory substitute for the age-old law of supply and demand. Seeds sprout and bear fruit, the rain falls and the sun shines as they did in the distant centuries. Greed, hate, selfishness, envy as well as faith, hope and charity continue to affect human relations as of yore.

There are certain abstract fundamentals that are not susceptible to change. Truth is imperishable. And on such basic principles was the constitution of this glorious republic founded. The constitution may, can and should be changed in order to conform with changing conditions, but the fundamentals on which it is so well established cannot without defying the laws of nature. Those who may worry about the slowness of changing the federal constitution need only to refer to the speedy adoption of the Twenty-first amendment, done by the people of all the states within a year. When Americans make up their minds to change the patterns under which they work, they can and do translate that change into swift accomplishment. The constitution has proved itself sufficiently flexible to conform to changing needs without at the same time impairing those cherished principles it was designed to secure, albeit there are occasions when they have come to a rather close squeak.

A house may need painting, but the sensible requirement for that is some paint, a brush and a worker, and not the razing or the burning of the structure. There are preventive and remedial treatments for those who are ill. A road may lead to the brink of a cliff, yet that does not mean one must plunge over the precipice, nor that the roadway be closed or torn up.

Progressive citizens want to keep up with the times; but that can be done and should be done wisely, prudently and constructively with due regard to the lessons of experience. As a matter of cold fact, the unreasoning itch for modernity, which seems to have been acquired more for the purpose of impressing one's supposed smartness than for rational approach to a problem, has got us into most of the troubles we have been experiencing the last several years.

A New Deal Saving

THE NEW DEAL, it appears, is going to save some money. It's a rather small amount — $22,500 a year—but it's a saving. Let's hope that it will be the beginning of continued efforts along this line.

The saving comes from the presidential abolishment of the International Joint Commission, by the simple process of asking the three men now on the commission at $7,500 a year, to resign, and giving the work of the commission, which arbitrates boundary disputes between the United States and Canada, to regular members of the government departments.

The president announced it as a saving, so that's what it must be called. We shall not scoff, because any saving is important in these days of a $40,000,000,000 debt and the president is to be congratulated.

The sum of $22,500 a year represents, roughly $432 a week, $61 a day, $5 an hour, or eight cents a minute. Statistics tell us that the New Deal spends now and has been spending $1,500 a minute throughout its existence. It's been cut to $1,499.92 a minute anyway.

Every little bit helps.

Buying and Selling

SENATOR McADOO has given the political ball another shove by talking about the third term and expressing his belief that Roosevelt would be renominated on the basis of a "general concensus" he found to exist in the national capital, from which he had just returned.

This outgiving merely confirms the general suspicion long entertained about the Roosevelt-ian ambitions. That he will seek a third term in violation of a tradition observed ever since the foundation of the American republic through a carefully built drafting campaign now seems most likely.

Whether the president will be able to carry off the nomination in the convention in view of the restrictions provided by the Hatch bill, which prevents the padding of such forums with federal officeholders and other political machinations, and in view of the growth of anti-Roosevelt sentiment among Democrats, is another thing altogether.

Republicans would probably like to see Roosevelt capture the nomination, however, rather than the conservative Garner, on the ground that the former could be the more easily defeated. There is, of course, the Roosevelt personality to be considered in the equation; but with it is the sorry record of the New Deal.

The really big difference as between the Roosevelt and Garner movements is that of buying and selling. Roosevelt has the privilege and the power of doing a lot of buying, as was the case in the last campaign, through patronage and the unrestricted use of the taxpayers' moneys; while Garner must do the selling — must sell himself to the people while Roosevelt and his aids are doing the buying.

Nomination of Garner would present more obstacles to Republican hopes than that of Roosevelt for the reason that Garner would command the support of the conservative element of his party, whereas Roosevelt cannot.

But all forecasts about nominations are subject, of course, to eventualities and these cannot be humanly foreseen. As one newspaper sage used to remark frequently, we shall see what we shall see.

Scooping the Mail

AWAY BACK in the days when a steam locomotive was something to wonder at, there was quite a thrill for the young people of small communities in watching the through train pick the local mail bag off the mail arm. Now another generation is to enjoy the same technique employed by the airmail planes.

Experiments have proved that non-stop collections at night are feasible. Officials of the Post Office department and of the Civil Aeronautics Authority watched while an All-American Aviation plane made three accurate dives from the sky to drop mail sacks and pick up others hung between two forty-foot Neon-lighted masts at Bellanca field. So promising were the tests that the pick-up system, used for some time on the day schedule, will soon be inaugurated at night on the company's route between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

The benefits to small cities of this speedy delivery are obvious, and the savings to the companies considerable. High average speeds can be maintained by planes over routes where a stop-off every ten or twenty minutes would be impracticable. Scooping the mail in spectacular fashion, pilots can maintain efficiency and yet serve many communities where a landing field is still a dream of the future.

More Reaction

THOSE BITTER EPITHETS hurled at Vice President John N. Garner some time back continue to register the reaction such terms frequently cause. He was referred to as a "poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man."

A sort of Chestertonian reaction to the designation is scheduled for tonight out at Dallas in Garner's home state. In his honor, the Texas Editorial Association will give an "evil old man's dinner." According to the advance notices it will be a real humdinger. "This vile occasion," it was announced, "is given and dedicated to sin and corruption by the friends of John N. Garner, vice president of the United States."

The occasion may help to give some clarification as to whether Garner himself or the words uttered against him were evil. Incidentally the affair will not be without its persuasive influence among the voters of the Lone Star state, even though that may be somewhat superfluous.

Did Saul Live a Miracle?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I am not a formally religious man. I belong to no church. It's many a year since I have gone to my knees in prayer. The word "God" does not come often to my lips. . . . And yet there are times when I open my Bible and read therein.

Marshall Maslin

Several weeks ago I did that and came again upon that part of The Acts in which the story of Saul is told.

I read about this Saul who had heard of a man named Jesus and hated him as a great trouble maker.

I read of how Saul was there when Stephen was lynched by the mob and how Saul consented to the crime and joined in the mob and "made havoc of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women, committed them to prison."

I read of how he, breathing out threatenings and slaughter, went to the high priest and asked for authority to bind any Christian that he found and bring him into Jerusalem.

And was given the authority and went forth on the road to Damascus with frowning brow and piercing eyes, eager to hunt down the disciples of that disturber Jesus.

And then I read of how light shown around Saul as he journeyed to Damascus. . . . And Saul fell to the earth in a faint and heard a voice crying, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And though he rose to his feet he was blind for three days and had to be led into Damascus and neither ate nor drank until a disciple named Ananias came to him.

And Saul, whom we know as Paul, went forth from that day to preach the words of Jesus, in hardship, and even unto death.

* * *

Since I read the story of Saul I have been haunted by the unanswered question: "What did happen to Saul on the road to Damascus?" . . . It is not easy for me to believe in a light that shines around a human being, in voices that he heard in visions. It is easier for me to believe that the light Saul saw was in himself. That the vision he saw was HIMSELF, a good man, wishing to do right, and forcing himself to violence and hatred and murderous lynching.

And since Saul WAS a good man, the very words of Jesus that he denounced and spat upon crept into him unawares and blessedly betrayed him. And because he was a strong and honest man, he followed the truth wherever and whenever he found it.

What happened to Saul on the road to Damascus (I do truly believe) was that on that barren highway SAUL AT LAST DISCOVERED SAUL! The cruel and bitter Saul discovered the brave and reverent Saul who had always been within him. . . . It was a miracle, yes, but a miracle that might happen to any man who is strong and decent enough to take it when it comes.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Mr. Hymie Augen has just turned in his piece. He always comes in sideways, like a crab, in spite of all our counsels about getting his story out in front. Meandering that way, he is like his native Gowanus Creek. This one seems to be a short short story.

"Now you take Red Dorgan's beanery," Augen writes; "there aren't any like it these days. These neon light signs and everything slick and hard and shiny don't make you feel at home the way you used to be. Red's place would be just a rummy old dump now, but it smelled and looked like what a beanery ought to be and it made you hungry just to look at it across the street, although Red used to deal mostly pork and beans and apple pie.

Always Well Heeled

"Red would give you his shirt. He always had enough on the cuff to start a bank, if everybody paid up—which they did once. I'll tell about that later. Once it was Thanksgiving day and a lonesome boy, with a funny suit of clothes and no overcoat and a celluloid collar, come into Red's place and there was nobody else there but little Louey and Red's old gimpey-legged bean clerk, who was also a nice man. Louey was about as a big clothes pin, and looked like one, with his rusty old derby hat which came down over his ears. But Louey's a smart little geek and he sees that this boy is a hick and he's homesick and maybe thinking of Thanksgiving Day back home, and he sees the boy is figuring how far he can stretch his last dime.

* * *

Quick Rough Touch

"So what does little Louey do but step out and make a quick, rough touch and come back and whisper to the bean clerk. The boy looks cold and scared and asks the old man what have you got that won't cost much. The old man says if he'll wait a minute he can deal him a steak and onions and some soup and a big slab of pumpkin pie, etc. Old Pegleg slips out the back-door and gets the makings of all this and they feed this boy until he's ready to bust.

"Little Louey had started as a package snatcher, but he quit that and got a job in a warehouse and married the cashier of Red's beanery and they had a baby and everything was jake. They bought a piano lamp and Louey was saving up to buy a piano to go with it. Then Louey had some trouble. He isn't pulling any rough stuff but some jigger dips he used to string with gets sloughed and the cops get him wrong and we all help Louey do a disappearing sketch. We don't see him for two years. When he came back, he gives us an earfull like this:

Gets Half Grand

'I blow into Goldfield at 4 o'clock in the afternoon with a one-case note down in the kick. I make a pass in Tex Rickard's Northern. I just couldn't lose—six straight passes and I let it ride every time. Then I pitch most of it, lose a point or two, start winning again and by 4:30 I had 500 bucks. I go back to the faro lay-out and cash it in for twenty-dollar gold pieces. Me wit' 500 bucks!

"'I wanted to do everything at once—step into a big feed, lie down under a barrel with a spigot in my face, get me a new front, etc., and I was shaking like I had epilepsy or something. I went out on the street, weighted down like a truck with all these gold pieces and then I see what I ought to do with all this dough. There's a window with tin trains and junk for kids and I ain't feeling so good about giving the runaround to the wife and kid, so I figure this is the one chance I'll ever have to get jake with them again. I'm going to ship all this kale off to Mame and the kid.

Stood on His Head

"'I ask a feller where the post-office is and I ran like they was a mob of cops after me, so I wouldn't change my mind. I dumps all this dough in the window and says I want to ship it all off to New York. The clerk slips me one of them blanks to fill out and my batting average with a pen ain't so good and it's 4:45 when I get through. Then this gink wants a dollar and half just for a money order. I ask him when he closes and he says 5 o'clock and I says I'll be back with the dollar and half. I go back to Tex's place on the run and plunk down a twenty and says two buckles goes—and up jumps the devil. By 8 o'clock that night they had stood me on my head.'

"Louey had a tough time getting home. It happened to be Thanksgiving day when he came into Red's beanery and told us about it. Red was there. He gives the office to the rest of us and we blow Louey to a big Thanksgiving feed and Red tells him the cops know they made a mistake. Louey got his job back and finally got the piano to go with the lamp and this kid is a footballer now and Louey says he'll be a great piano player." — Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE AGRICULTURAL EXPERT PLANTS A BULB, ANYWAY

Representative Sol Bloom Clicks Well As House Foreign Relations Chairman

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Representative Sol Bloom has turned out to be the most active and efficient chairman of the lower congressional chamber's foreign relations committee that Washington has seen in a generation.

Sol Bloom

He had more than any other single legislator to do with getting America's neutrality law passed in substantially the form that the administration wanted. Chairman Key Pittman, of the corresponding senate committee, did his share. However, Pittman had a comparatively easy job of it. At no stage of the game was there any question that the upper house on Capitol Hill would give President Roosevelt approximately what he was asking for. The representatives were considered a trifle doubtful. Yet Sol Bloom got them in line to the tune of a liberal majority.

Colorful Personality

He's an interesting character.

Beginning in life as a poverty-stricken newsboy, today's he's one of th every rich men in Congress. His committee, with foreign affairs in their present state of disorganization, is vital. His chairman's quarters are the nobbiest in the Capital. The rank and file of senators and representatives are house in their respective Senate and House building, but Sol's place is right under the dome and the statue of liberty. It's a testimonial to the democracy of this country to step into the elegance and dignity of his reception room, recalling his origin as a poor little Jewish newspaper vendor.

Long Time Ambition

The suite is swanky, but Sol isn't. He's an approachable as a street car conductor. He revels in his surroundings. That's one of the likeable things about him—he's so natural. But airy; My, no! He's as modest and amiable as they make 'em.

He went after that foreign relations chairmanship long ago. I think it's because he likes to associate with diplomats. First he got himself appointed to the committee, as the juniorest of juniors. Gradually he worked his way up until he was ranking majority member, next after Chairman Sam D. McReynolds.

This entitled him to claim the next chairmanship vacancy. It isn't an unbreakable rule, but it's the custom.

Finally, McReynolds died. There was a little opposition to Sol to succeed him. The objectors contended that, as an ex-news kid, he hadn't the background to deal with ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary. The fact is, I believe, they were jealous of him.

Well, Sol did have the background. As a millionaire, he's been able to travel all over the world. He's done it, and he's met and visited with moguls everywhere. He's met and confabulated with 'em in a more practical way than anybody else I know of. "I never had much schooling," he once tolm me, "but I've had a lot of education.

Sol Gets the Job

He annexed his chairmanship, anyway.

He's mildly amusing in it because, very naively, he obviously likes it so much. At the same time, he's a cracking good negotiator.

Once I went up to see Sol in New York City, between sessions of congress.

He had an office at the corner of Broadway and Forty-first street. The traffic through those streets is awful.

"Come out to lunch with me," he said. And we started for the restaurant, diagonally across the intersection. It looked to me as if we were sure to be hit by autos, going one way or the other.

"For heaven's sake," I cried. "Let's not do it this way."

"Leave it to me," answered Sol.

At that juncture the traffic cop sighted him. Instantly he held up his hand and halted all movement of vehicles, both ways on both streets.

We crossed in perfect safety.

Bit of History Gives Warning

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Mr. Roosevelt already has declared the existence of a "limited emergency," has asked for a large supplemental appropriation to administer neutrality, and has all prepared for congressional action a measure which would set aside virtually all of our political and economic liberties in event of war.

As we contemplate the possibilities of all of this, it is well to recall a little history.

During the first 143 years of the Nation's existence, up until 1933, it was found necessary to add but 10 supplemental governmental agencies to the original framework. Yet in that time we had grown from a handful of struggling colonies to a great nation, had gone through several wars and various economic crises.

Since 1933, when Mr. Roosevelt came on the scene, we have created fifty additional agencies in a vain effort to cope with the depression. And it is well to bear in mind that when he was running for the presidency in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt's strongest talking point had to do with the cost and complication of government. He criticized Republican spending, denounced the multiplication of boards and bureaus and departments, and promised to reduce the spending, abolish the excess agencies and cut the payroll.

In the light of this history we should be very careful what additional authority we turn over to the executive power in the name of emergency, and equally careful as to the man who administers it.

Morning Motto

The most insignificent people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—HAZLITT.

Forewarned

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Those who plunge on the theory that 1940 will be a boom year cannot complain that they received no warning. From the time the European war broke up to the present writing, business organizations and individuals have been cautioning against a war boom, industry has acted with restraint in the matter of price increases, and quick profits have been foregone by many business houses through discouragement of inventory overloading.

And now comes the Bureau of Agricultural Economics with an analysis of the business situation which, while forecasting a better general business level in 1940 than that of 1939, is "certain' 'that the gain shown in the second half of the present year will not be maintained.

Among other findings may be mentioned:

That business will experience sharp fluctuations due to uncertainties growing out of the war and the accumulation of inventories in September;

That while inventory accumulation is a danger spot, both domestic and foreign factors favor a relatively quick and less severe readjustment than that of 1937, for example:

That next year's average production of durable consumer goods should be higher than that of 1939;

That there should be "some increase' in capital expenditures.

In short, the bureau finds that at best there is nothing spectacular in sight. If the entire business community can be brought to this viewpoint, there is nothing to worry about. But if enough people persist in the notion that a boom is in the offing, the reaction from artificial stimulus will be painful in the extreme.

On the Record

By Representative Knute Hill, Democrat, of Washington

It is far wiser to carry on the legitimate functions of government by means of taxation than by borrowing and issuing interest-bearing bonds. Both the taxpayer who pays the bill and his servant, the county, state, or Federal official, who is charged with the prudent spending of the money, will be less prodigal with these funds when unlimited demands on the future are prohibited, the large sums wasted in interest are saved, and the political power of the Shylocks is curbed.

Propaganda Trick Is Detected

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, Nov. 15—It is beginning to be unpopular to argue for "keeping out of war." The charge is killing a dead horse — that nobody wants to get in anyway.

But if increasingly taking sides is tending to get in, that at least ought still to be worth talking about—and especially to call attention to every official act that tends that way, try to do that and see what you get.

As long as what you say is favorable to the Allies, you don't get much. But if you criticize the Allies or our own action that seems to be unneutral—as unnecessarily unfavorable to Germany or as unduly favorable to her enemies you are a Nazi sympathizer, or anti-British, or anti-Semitic or almost anything but the one thing we all ought to be trying to be which is anti-war and pro-American. They come pretty close to being the same thing.

* * *

Incredible Complaint

One complaint I get—that this column seems to be sympathetic with Hitler—is incredible to me. I had a little to contribute toward our fight against Germany in the World war. The first public utterance of a federal public official excoriating Hitler, I made in the first year of his reign. It was scathing enough to draw a diplomatic protest to our State department. If he ever took important action which this column supported, I can't recall it. Others may have criticized the Nazis as consistently, but I don't know who.

But, if we are to maintain a strict official neutrality to keep us out of this war, that doesn't mean that we should either keep silence about everything that Britain does in similar categories much less than we should sprinkle whatever she does—no matter what may be its odor—with patchouli leaves—even if printed American criticism of Britain is sometimes garbled and misquoted in German papers.

* * *

Against the Nazis

Like almost every other American, my feeling is for England and against the Nazis. I know of no drop of blood in my veins that doesn't come from the British Isles—from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. But I have another feeling many times stronger than either of these opposing ones: It is for our country.

I think one-sided comment on this situation is, of itself, dangerous. To whatever extent any comment has effect, it seems to me that that kind of dishonesty builds up emotion for one side of a foreign quarrel and intensifies it against another. Lopsided emotion alone can get us into this war. Reason never will.

* * *

Its Sole Purpose

Exactly that is the sole purpose of the organized foreign propaganda against which we are so indignant. If we won't stand for it from publicists of warring powers, how can we stomach it among our own?

This column said recently that the British had hi-jacked some thirty of our ships to the German one—the Flint—and that our State department began at once to give press handouts on the Flint and scarcely mentioned the other. This drew a blast that it wasn't "hi-jacking", it was legal in international law and not true as to the number of English seizures.

* * *

Hi-jacking Anyway

The last statement is incorrect. More than thirty seizures occurred. Hi-jacking is grabbing somebody else's goods in transit by force. Whether hi-jacking a neutral vessel at sea is legal depends on whether, upon visit and search at sea, it is found destined to a blocaded port, or guilty of unneutral conduct, or carries contraband. Regardless of this rule, most of these ships were seized, taken to Britain and determined—days later—to be entirely innocent. It was a British violation of American rights but we suffered it in silence. Is it pro-Nazi to say so? Our State department's neglect to say so about similar British seizures was one reason why we got into the World war.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

A Distinction Needed Here

THIS NEWSPAPER finds agreement in a number of things said by Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes in his outspoken address at the Forum here, but it believes he is just a bit too pinkish with regard to the constitution of the United States.

"We are still trying to run a great nation with a constitution which the perpetrators [sic] did not think would last over twenty-five years," Dr. Barnes said. "The thing that is holding us back," he also said, "is our faith in fool ideas and fool institutions. We are still trying to run the country with a set-up that was originally planned for a town of 300 people back when there were Indians, panthers, bears and blockhouses."

Well, some distinction is needed here as between perishable and durable goods. Both doubtless require attention, to be sure. Progress, change, flux, decay, the ravages of time, evolution require continual adjustment and readjustment. But certain things are imperishable in human society.

The immutable law of gravitation still holds good. Two and two make four and five and six make eleven today just as they did away back in the time of Euclid. Despite repeated efforts, nobody has yet found a satisfactory substitute for the age-old law of supply and demand. Seeds sprout and bear fruit, the rain falls and the sun shines as they did in the distant centuries. Greed, hate, selfishness, envy as well as faith, hope and charity continue to affect human relations as of yore.

There are certain abstract fundamentals that are not susceptible to change. Truth is imperishable. And on such basic principles was the constitution of this glorious republic founded. The constitution may, can and should be changed in order to conform with changing conditions, but the fundamentals on which it is so well established cannot without defying the laws of nature. Those who may worry about the slowness of changing the federal constitution need only to refer to the speedy adoption of the Twenty-first amendment, done by the people of all the states within a year. When Americans make up their minds to change the patterns under which they work, they can and do translate that change into swift accomplishment. The constitution has proved itself sufficiently flexible to conform to changing needs without at the same time impairing those cherished principles it was designed to secure, albeit there are occasions when they have come to a rather close squeak.

A house may need painting, but the sensible requirement for that is some paint, a brush and a worker, and not the razing or the burning of the structure. There are preventive and remedial treatments for those who are ill. A road may lead to the brink of a cliff, yet that does not mean one must plunge over the precipice, nor that the roadway be closed or torn up.

Progressive citizens want to keep up with the times; but that can be done and should be done wisely, prudently and constructively with due regard to the lessons of experience. As a matter of cold fact, the unreasoning itch for modernity, which seems to have been acquired more for the purpose of impressing one's supposed smartness than for rational approach to a problem, has got us into most of the troubles we have been experiencing the last several years.

A New Deal Saving

THE NEW DEAL, it appears, is going to save some money. It's a rather small amount — $22,500 a year—but it's a saving. Let's hope that it will be the beginning of continued efforts along this line.

The saving comes from the presidential abolishment of the International Joint Commission, by the simple process of asking the three men now on the commission at $7,500 a year, to resign, and giving the work of the commission, which arbitrates boundary disputes between the United States and Canada, to regular members of the government departments.

The president announced it as a saving, so that's what it must be called. We shall not scoff, because any saving is important in these days of a $40,000,000,000 debt and the president is to be congratulated.

The sum of $22,500 a year represents, roughly $432 a week, $61 a day, $5 an hour, or eight cents a minute. Statistics tell us that the New Deal spends now and has been spending $1,500 a minute throughout its existence. It's been cut to $1,499.92 a minute anyway.

Every little bit helps.

Buying and Selling

SENATOR McADOO has given the political ball another shove by talking about the third term and expressing his belief that Roosevelt would be renominated on the basis of a "general concensus" he found to exist in the national capital, from which he had just returned.

This outgiving merely confirms the general suspicion long entertained about the Roosevelt-ian ambitions. That he will seek a third term in violation of a tradition observed ever since the foundation of the American republic through a carefully built drafting campaign now seems most likely.

Whether the president will be able to carry off the nomination in the convention in view of the restrictions provided by the Hatch bill, which prevents the padding of such forums with federal officeholders and other political machinations, and in view of the growth of anti-Roosevelt sentiment among Democrats, is another thing altogether.

Republicans would probably like to see Roosevelt capture the nomination, however, rather than the conservative Garner, on the ground that the former could be the more easily defeated. There is, of course, the Roosevelt personality to be considered in the equation; but with it is the sorry record of the New Deal.

The really big difference as between the Roosevelt and Garner movements is that of buying and selling. Roosevelt has the privilege and the power of doing a lot of buying, as was the case in the last campaign, through patronage and the unrestricted use of the taxpayers' moneys; while Garner must do the selling — must sell himself to the people while Roosevelt and his aids are doing the buying.

Nomination of Garner would present more obstacles to Republican hopes than that of Roosevelt for the reason that Garner would command the support of the conservative element of his party, whereas Roosevelt cannot.

But all forecasts about nominations are subject, of course, to eventualities and these cannot be humanly foreseen. As one newspaper sage used to remark frequently, we shall see what we shall see.

Scooping the Mail

AWAY BACK in the days when a steam locomotive was something to wonder at, there was quite a thrill for the young people of small communities in watching the through train pick the local mail bag off the mail arm. Now another generation is to enjoy the same technique employed by the airmail planes.

Experiments have proved that non-stop collections at night are feasible. Officials of the Post Office department and of the Civil Aeronautics Authority watched while an All-American Aviation plane made three accurate dives from the sky to drop mail sacks and pick up others hung between two forty-foot Neon-lighted masts at Bellanca field. So promising were the tests that the pick-up system, used for some time on the day schedule, will soon be inaugurated at night on the company's route between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

The benefits to small cities of this speedy delivery are obvious, and the savings to the companies considerable. High average speeds can be maintained by planes over routes where a stop-off every ten or twenty minutes would be impracticable. Scooping the mail in spectacular fashion, pilots can maintain efficiency and yet serve many communities where a landing field is still a dream of the future.

THOSE BITTER EPITHETS hurled at Vice President John N. Garner some time back continue to register the reaction such terms frequently cause. He was referred to as a "poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man."

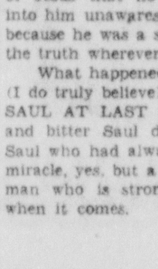
Did Saul Live a Miracle?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I am not a formally religious man. I belong to no church. It's many a year since I have gone to my knees in prayer. The word "God" does not come often to my lips. . . . And yet there are times when I open my Bible and read therein.



Marshall Maslin

Several weeks ago I did that and came again upon that part of The Acts in which the story of Saul is told.

I read about this Saul who had heard of a man named Jesus and hated him as a great trouble maker.

I read of how Saul was there when Stephen was lynched by the mob and how Saul consented to the crime and joined in the mob and "made havoc of the church, entering into every house, and haling men and women, committed them to prison."

I read of how he, breathing out threatenings and slaughter, went to the high priest and asked for authority to bind any Christian that he found and bring him into Jerusalem.

And was given the authority and went forth on the road to Damascus with frowning brow and piercing eyes, eager to hunt down the disciples of that disturber Jesus.

And then I read of how light shown around Saul as he journeyed to Damascus. . . . And Saul fell to the earth in a faint and heard a voice crying, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And though he rose to his feet he was blind for three days and had to be led into Damascus and neither ate nor drank until a disciple named Ananias came to him.

And Saul, whom we know as Paul, went forth from that day to preach the words of Jesus, in hardship, and even unto death.

* * *

Since I read the story of Saul I have been haunted by the unanswered question: "What did happen to Saul on the road to Damascus?" . . . It is not easy for me to believe in a light that shines around a human being, in voices that he heard in visions. It is easier for me to believe that the light Saul saw was in himself. That the vision he saw was HIMSELF, a good man, wishing to do right, and forcing himself to violence and hatred and murderous lynching.

And since Saul WAS a good man, the very words of Jesus that he denounced and spat upon crept into him unawares and blessedly betrayed him. And because he was a strong and honest man, he followed the truth wherever and whenever he found it.

What happened to Saul on the road to Damascus (I do truly believe) was that on that barren highway SAUL AT LAST DISCOVERED SAUL! The cruel and bitter Saul discovered the brave and reverent Saul who had always been within him. . . . It was a miracle, yes, but a miracle that might happen to any man who is strong and decent enough to take it when it comes.

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

Mr. Hymie Augen has just turned in his piece. He always comes in sideways, like a crab, in spite of all our counsels about getting his story out in front. Meandering that way, he is like his native Gowanus Creek. This one seems to be a short short story.

"Now you take Red Dorgan's beanery," Augen writes; "there aren't any like it these days. These neon light signs and everything slick and hard and shiny don't make you feel at home the way you used to be. Red's place would be just a rummy old dump now, but it smelled and looked like what a beanery ought to be and it made you hungry just to look at it across the street, although Red used to deal mostly pork and beans and apple pie.

Always Well Heeled

"Red would give you his shirt. He always had enough on the cuff to start a bank, if everybody paid up—which they did once. I'll tell about that later. Once it was Thanksgiving day and a lonesome boy, with a funny suit of clothes and no overcoat and a celluloid collar, come into Red's place and there was nobody else there but little Louey and Red's old gimpey-legged bean clerk, who was also a nice man. Louey was about as a big clothes pin, and looked like one, with his rusty old derby hat which came down over his ears. But Louey's a smart little geek and he sees that this boy is a hick and he's homesick and maybe thinking of Thanksgiving Day back home, and he sees the boy is figuring how far he can stretch his last dime.

* * *

Quick Rough Touch

"So what does little Louey do but step out and make a quick, rough touch and come back and whisper to the bean clerk. The boy looks cold and scared and asks the old man what have you got that won't cost much. The old man says if he'll wait a minute he can deal him a steak and onions and some soup and a big slab of pumpkin pie, etc. Old Pegleg slips out the back-door and gets the makings of all this and they feed this boy until he's ready to bust.

"Little Louey had started as a package snatcher, but he quit that and got a job in a warehouse and married the cashier of Red's beanery and they had a baby and everything was jake. They bought a piano lamp and Louey was saving up to buy a piano to go with it. Then Louey had some trouble. He isn't pulling any rough stuff but some jigger dips he used to string with gets sloughed and the cops get him wrong and we all help Louey do a disappearing sketch. We don't see him for two years. When he came back, he gives us an earfull like this:

Gets Half Grand

'I blow into Goldfield at 4 o'clock in the afternoon with a one-case note down in the kick. I make a pass in Tex Rickard's Northern. I just couldn't lose—six straight passes and I let it ride every time. Then I pitch most of it, lose a point or two, start winning again and by 4:30 I had 500 bucks. I go back to the faro lay-out and cash it in for twenty-dollar gold pieces. Me wit' 500 bucks!

"'I wanted to do everything at once—step into a big feed, lie down under a barrel with a spigot in my face, get me a new frout, etc., and I was shaking like I had epilepsy or something. I went out on the street, weighted down like a truck with all these gold pieces and then I see what I ought to do with all this dough. There's a window with tin trains and junk for kids and I ain't feeling so good about giving the runaround to the wife and kid, so I figure this is the one chance I'll ever have to get jake with them again. I'm going to ship all this kale off to Mame and the kid.

Stood on His Head

"'I ask a feller where the post-office is and I ran like they was a mob of cops after me, so I wouldn't change my mind. I dumps all this dough in the window and says I want to ship it all off to New York. The clerk slips me one of them blanks to fill out and my batting average with a pen ain't so good and it's 4:45 when I get through. Then this gink wants a dollar and half just for a money order. I ask him when he closes and he says 5 o'clock and I says I'll be back with the dollar and half. I go back to Tex's place on the run and plunk down a twenty and says two buckles goes—and up jumps the devil. By 8 o'clock that night they had stood me on my head.'

"Louey had a tough time getting home. It happened to be Thanksgiving day when he came into Red's beanery and told us about it. Red was there. He gives the office to the rest of us and we blow Louey to a big Thanksgiving feed and Red tells him the cops know they made a mistake. Louey got his job back and finally got the piano to go with the lamp and this kid is a footballer now and Louey says he'll be a great piano player." — Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE AGRICULTURAL EXPERT PLANTS A BULB, ANYWAY

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Representative Sol Bloom has turned out to be the most active and efficient chairman of the lower congressional chamber's foreign relations committee that Washington has seen in a generation.

Sol Bloom

He had more than any other single legislator to do with getting America's neutrality law passed in substantially the form that the administration wanted. Chairman Key Pittman, of the corresponding senate committee, did his share. However, Pittman had a comparatively easy job of it. At no stage of the game was there any question that the upper house on Capitol Hill would give President Roosevelt approximately what he was asking for. The representatives were considered a trifle doubtful. Yet Sol Bloom got them in line to the tune of a liberal majority.

Colorful Personality

Beginning in life as a poverty-stricken newsboy, today's he's one of th every rich men in Congress. His committee, with foreign affairs in their present state of disorganization, is vital. His chairman's quarters are the nobbiest in the Capital. The rank and file of senators and representatives are house in their respective Senate and House building, but Sol's place is right under the dome and the statue of liberty. It's a testimonial to the democracy of this country to step into the elegance and dignity of his reception room, recalling his origin as a poor little Jewish newspaper vendor.

Long Time Ambition

The suite is swanky, but Sol isn't. He's an approachable as a street car conductor. He revels in his surroundings. That's one of the likeable things about him—he's so natural. But airy; My, no! He's as modest and amiable as they make 'em.

He went after that foreign relations chairmanship long ago. I think it's because he likes to associate with diplomats. First he got himself appointed to the committee, as the juniorest of juniors. Gradually he worked his way up until he was ranking majority member, next after Chairman Sam D. McReynolds.

This entitled him to claim the next chairmanship vacancy. It isn't an unbreakable rule, but it's the custom.

Finally, McReynolds died. There was a little opposition to Sol to succeed him. The objectors contended that, as an ex-news kid, he hadn't the background to deal with ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary. The fact is, I believe, they were jealous of him.

Well, Sol did have the background. As a millionaire, he's been able to travel all over the world. He's done it, and he's met and visited with moguls everywhere. He's met and confabulated with 'em in a more practical way than anybody else I know of. "I never had much schooling," he once tolm me, "but I've had a lot of education.

Sol Gets the Job

He annexed his chairmanship, anyway.

He's mildly amusing in it because, very naively, he obviously likes it so much. At the same time, he's a cracking good negotiator.

Once I went up to see Sol in New York City, between sessions of congress.

He had an office at the corner of Broadway and Forty-first street. The traffic through those streets is awful.

"Come out to lunch with me," he said. And we started for the restaurant, diagonally across the intersection. It looked to me as if we were sure to be hit by autos, going one way or the other.

"For heaven's sake," I cried. "Let's not do it this way."

"Leave it to me," answered Sol.

At that juncture the traffic cop sighted him. Instantly he held up his hand and halted all movement of vehicles, both ways on both streets.

We crossed in perfect safety.

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Mr. Roosevelt already has declared the existence of a "limited emergency," has asked for a large supplemental appropriation to administer neutrality, and has all prepared for congressional action a measure which would set aside virtually all of our political and economic liberties in event of war.

As we contemplate the possibilities of all of this, it is well to recall a little history.

During the first 143 years of the Nation's existence, up until 1933, it was found necessary to add but 10 supplemental governmental agencies to the original framework. Yet in that time we had grown from a handful of struggling colonies to a great nation, had gone through several wars and various economic crises.

Since 1933, when Mr. Roosevelt came on the scene, we have created fifty additional agencies in a vain effort to cope with the depression. And it is well to bear in mind that when he was running for the presidency in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt's strongest talking point had to do with the cost and complication of government. He criticized Republican spending, denounced the multiplication of boards and bureaus and departments, and promised to reduce the spending, abolish the excess agencies and cut the payroll.

In the light of this history we should be very careful what additional authority we turn over to the executive power in the name of emergency, and equally careful as to the man who administers it.

Morning Motto

The most insignificent people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—HAZLITT.

Forewarned

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Those who plunge on the theory that 1940 will be a boom year cannot complain that they received no warning. From the time the European war broke up to the present writing, business organizations and individuals have been cautioning against a war boom, industry has acted with restraint in the matter of price increases, and quick profits have been foregone by many business houses through discouragement of inventory overloading.

And now comes the Bureau of Agricultural Economics with an analysis of the business situation which, while forecasting a better general business level in 1940 than that of 1939, is "certain" 'that the gain shown in the second half of the present year will not be maintained.

Among other findings may be mentioned:

That business will experience sharp fluctuations due to uncertainties growing out of the war and the accumulation of inventories in September;

That while inventory accumulation is a danger spot, both domestic and foreign factors favor a relatively quick and less severe readjustment than that of 1937, for example:

That next year's average production of durable consumer goods should be higher than that of 1939;

That there should be "some increase' in capital expenditures.

In short, the bureau finds that at best there is nothing spectacular in sight. If the entire business community can be brought to this viewpoint, there is nothing to worry about. But if enough people persist in the notion that a boom is in the offing, the reaction from artificial stimulus will be painful in the extreme.

On the Record

By Representative Knute Hill, Democrat, of Washington

It is far wiser to carry on the legitimate functions of government by means of taxation than by borrowing and issuing interest-bearing bonds. Both the taxpayer who pays the bill and his servant, the county, state, or federal official, who is charged with the prudent spending of the money, will be less prodigal with these funds when unlimited demands on the future are prohibited, the large sums wasted in interest are saved, and the political power of the Shylocks is curbed.

Propaganda Trick Is Detected

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, Nov. 15—It is beginning to be unpopular to argue for "keeping out of war." The charge is killing a dead horse — that nobody wants to get in anyway.

Hugh Johnson

But if increasingly taking sides is tending to get in, that at least ought still to be worth talking about—and especially to call attention to every official act that tends that way, try to do that and see what you get.

As long as what you say is favorable to the Allies, you don't get much. But if you criticize the Allies or our own action that seems to be unneutral—as unnecessarily unfavorable to Germany or as unduly favorable to her enemies you are a Nazi sympathizer, or anti-British, or anti-Semitic or almost anything but the one thing we all ought to be trying to be which is anti-war and pro-American. They come pretty close to being the same thing.

* * *

Incredible Complaint

One complaint I get—that this column seems to be sympathetic with Hitler—is incredible to me. I had a little to contribute toward our fight against Germany in the World war. The first public utterance of a federal public official excoriating Hitler, I made in the first year of his reign. It was scathing enough to draw a diplomatic protest to our State department. If he ever took important action which this column supported, I can't recall it. Others may have criticized the Nazis as consistently, but I don't know who.

But, if we are to maintain a strict official neutrality to keep us out of this war, that doesn't mean that we should either keep silence about everything that Britain does in similar categories much less than we should sprinkle whatever she does—no matter what may be its odor—with patchouli leaves—even if printed American criticism of Britain is sometimes garbled and misquoted in German papers.

Like almost every other American, my feeling is for England and against the Nazis. I know of no drop of blood in my veins that doesn't come from the British Isles—from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. But I have another feeling many times stronger than either of these opposing ones: It is for our country.

I think one-sided comment on this situation is, of itself, dangerous. To whatever extent any comment has effect, it seems to me that that kind of dishonesty builds up emotion for one side of a foreign quarrel and intensifies it against another. Lopsided emotion alone can get us into this war. Reason never will.

* * *

Its Sole Purpose

Exactly that is the sole purpose of the organized foreign propaganda against which we are so indignant. If we won't stand for it from publicists of warring powers, how can we stomach it among our own?

This column said recently that the British had hi-jacked some thirty of our ships to the German's one—the Flint—and that our State department began at once to give press handouts on the Flint and scarcely mentioned the other. This drew a blast that it wasn't "hi-jacking", it was legal in international law and not true as to the number of English seizures.

* * *

Hi-jacking Anyway

The last statement is incorrect. More than thirty seizures occurred. Hi-jacking is grabbing somebody else's goods in transit by force. Whether hi-jacking a neutral vessel at sea is legal depends on whether, upon visit and search at sea, it is found destined to a blocaded port, or guilty of unneutral conduct, or carries contraband. Regardless of this rule, most of these ships were seized, taken to Britain and determined—days later—to be entirely innocent. It was a British violation of American rights but we suffered it in silence. Is it pro-Nazi to say so? Our State department's neglect to say so about similar British seizures was one reason why we got into the World war.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

"The Authority n Authorities"

TWO STOPPERS VITAL

MOST TREATISES on the bidding of no trump game contracts prescribe two stoppers in the suit bid by your opponents as an essential requirement. There are times when this may be departed from safely, especially when you are able to run nine tricks as soon as you get the lead. Another time is when you are in position to take finesses toward the partner of the suit bidder, so that you may be able to keep the dangerous hand out of the lead after his suit is set up. But when finesses have to be taken toward the man with the suit, two stoppers of it are usually required.

	♠ 9 6 3 ♥ Q J 5 4 ♦ J 9 2 ♣ J 6 5
♠ A K Q 8 4 2 ♥ 10 ♦ 8 3 ♣ 10 9 4 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 7 ♥ K 8 6 3 ♦ A 6 5 ♣ A Q 8 2
	♠ 10 5 ♥ A 9 7 2 ♦ K Q 10 7 4 ♣ K 7

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

The difference between thoroughly sound bidding and that which is a bit venturesome was illustrated on this deal at two tables of a duplicate game in Omaha. At both it began with 1-Diamond by South and 1-Spade by West. Then the course veered. At one table East bid 2-No Trumps and at the other he decided to show his suits, calling 2-Hearts. In the latter case West then bid 2-Spades, East 3-Clubs, West 3-Spades and East, now knowing his partner, after three bids of spades, had a six-card suit, raised to 4-Spades, at which only one trick was lost in each side suit.

Where East bid the 2-No Trumps West rebid at 3-Spades and East bid 3-No Trumps. West properly passed this because his suit was solid. In the play East held up his A until the third diamond, ran six spades and then, to get the other needed two tricks, finessed the clubs. When this failed, South took two more diamonds to set the contract. If the diamond bid had been at East's right, so that a finesse in clubs would have been marked as likely to succeed, his No Trump contract, with a lone diamond stopper, would have been sounder.

	♠ 3 2 ♥ A Q 6 ♦ A Q 4 2 ♣ 8 7 6 5

With the club A and Q knocked out of dummy, if the No Trump declarer then takes a heart finesse and leads the spade 3, what card should West play, and why?

Shampoos Help Winter's Hair Compensate for Lost Sunshine

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

How's your shampooing these days?

A thorough shampoo is doubly important in winter, for two reasons: First, your hair doesn't get much benefit from fresh air and sunshine. That's obvious. Reason No. 2, however, is new this year. It's based on new hat designs—they're going to be "cover-up." That means that at least sections of your hair are going to be plastered tight against your scalp when you have your hat on.

Almost everyone knows the basic requirements of a good shampoo, even if they don't follow them. In review, they are:

1. Regularity. Most people require shampoos once every ten days to two weeks. If your hair is very dry or very oily it may need washing slightly less or a little more frequently.

2. Plenty of water and good soap. Mild soaps are best. Strongly scented soaps tend to dry the hair.

3. Massaging. The best way to go about that is to work upward from the base of the neck toward the temples.

4. Plenty of rinsing. Three or even four, waters so you'll get all the suds out of your hair. Too heavy a vinegar rinse may discolor or dry the hair. Lemon rinses usually are preferred by blondes.

A few other facts—based on special requirements and not so generally known:

Rain water is your best shampoo bet in localities where the usual supply is hard water. Distilled water, which costs you money, of course, serves the same purpose. Don't go in for chemical water-softeners too heavily. They dry your hair, too.

Drying the hair thoroughly before you run a comb through it or try to brush it is a good idea. Then you can set it with a wet comb and — if you use a dryer — you won't have to cook under the heat so long.

Brushing is good for oily scalps as well as for dry ones. If you like, you may try correcting an oily scalp by brushing a little astringent tonic over it. Too liberal use of alcohol, however—and most astringents contain alcohol — is not good for the hair. So you'd better look into your diet, your exercise routine (if any) and get out in the fresh air more—if your scalp is very, very oily.

A massage brush will help work those suds into your scalp.

Your permanent may dry your hair a little; it shouldn't dry it much. But if you like, you may mix about 25 per cent castor oil and 75 per cent alcohol and comb and brush a little into your hair. The alcohol will evaporate and leave the oil—which will help keep the hair pliable.

Something Go Wrong--!

The contest went off nicely. The "most beautiful" girl was picked from among the assembled charm.

Roosevelt Dodges Third Term Question

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt smilingly declined again today, as he has on several recent occasions, to be drawn into any discussion of his possible candidacy for re-election.

At his press conference a newsnoted that Vice President Garner was going to let his name be submitted to the Democratic National Convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination. He asked whether that altered Mr. Roosevelt's plans in any way.

Second Oil Strike In Ten Days Causes Excitement in Nebraska

Ogallala, Neb., Nov. 15 (AP) — Drought and poor crops gave way in Nebraska interest today to the magic word "oil" as word of the second oil strike within ten days spread throughout a state which has sought the elusive black gold forty years.

The California-Nebraska Company, Ltd., announced the new well is ten miles Northeast of here—several hundred miles to the Northwest of the first well near Falls City on the Kansas-Nebraska border.

The two strikes marked the culmination of hopeful search which has sunk more than sixty dry holes into the Nebraska earth in all parts of the state since 1900 and overshadowed an announcement today all the state's crops this year yielded only forty percent of usual returns.

An immediate development was signing of a contract today by the owners of the Falls City well to process their crude at a new Omaka refinery. The first truckload is to be delivered tomorrow.

J. S. Kroh, a partner in the company reporting the Okallala find, said oil and gas were found between 1,950 and 2,240 feet but the hole is being drilled deeper to provide a "thorough test." There is no question, he said, but what "we've got a well."

Prospective production is estimated at 150 to 200 barrels of oil daily and three to five million cubic feet of gas.

Since the strike, Kroh said several major companies have started lease-buying activities.

"The Authority n Authorities"

TWO STOPPERS VITAL

MOST TREATISES on the bidding of no trump game contracts prescribe two stoppers in the suit bid by your opponents as an essential requirement. There are times when this may be departed from safely, especially when you are able to run nine tricks as soon as you get the lead. Another time is when you are in position to take finesses toward the partner of the suit bidder, so that you may be able to keep the dangerous hand out of the lead after his suit is set up. But when finesses have to be taken toward the man with the suit, two stoppers of it are usually required.

♠ A K Q 8 4 2 ♥ 10 ♦ 8 3 ♣ 10 9 4 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ J 7 ♥ K 8 6 3 ♦ A 6 5 ♣ A Q 8 2
	♠ 10 5 ♥ A 9 7 2 ♦ K Q 10 7 4 ♣ K 7

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

The difference between thoroughly sound bidding and that which is a bit venturesome was illustrated on this deal at two tables of a duplicate game in Omaha. At both it began with 1-Diamond by South and 1-Spade by West. Then the course veered. At one table East bid 2-No Trumps and at the other he decided to show his suits, calling 2-Hearts. In the latter case West then bid 2-Spades, East 3-Clubs, West 3-Spades and East, now knowing his partner, after three bids of spades, had a six-card suit, raised to 4-Spades, at which only one trick was lost in each side suit.

Where East bid the 2-No Trumps West rebid at 3-Spades and East bid 3-No Trumps. West properly passed this because his suit was solid. In the play East held up his A until the third diamond, ran six spades and then, to get the other needed two tricks, finessed the clubs. When this failed, South took two more diamonds to set the contract. If the diamond bid had been at East's right, so that a finesse in clubs would have been marked as likely to succeed, his No Trump contract, with a lone diamond stopper, would have been sounder.

	♠ 3 2 ♥ A Q 6 ♦ A Q 4 2 ♣ 8 7 6 5

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

With the club A and Q knocked out of dummy, if the No Trump declarer then takes a heart finesse and leads the spade 3, what card should West play, and why?

Shampoos Help Winter's Hair Compensate for Lost Sunshine

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

How's your shampooing these days?

A thorough shampoo is doubly important in winter, for two reasons: First, your hair doesn't get much benefit from fresh air and sunshine. That's obvious. Reason No. 2, however, is new this year. It's based on new hat designs—they're going to be "cover-up." That means that at least sections of your hair are going to be plastered tight against your scalp when you have your hat on.

Almost everyone knows the basic requirements of a good shampoo, even if they don't follow them. In review, they are:

1. Regularity. Most people require shampoos once every ten days to two weeks. If your hair is very dry or very oily it may need washing slightly less or a little more frequently.

2. Plenty of water and good soap. Mild soaps are best. Strongly scented soaps tend to dry the hair.

3. Massaging. The best way to go about that is to work upward from the base of the neck toward the temples.

4. Plenty of rinsing. Three or even four, waters so you'll get all the suds out of your hair. Too heavy a vinegar rinse may discolor or dry the hair. Lemon rinses usually are preferred by blondes.

A few other facts—based on special requirements and not so generally known:

Rain water is your best shampoo bet in localities where the usual supply is hard water. Distilled water, which costs you money, of course, serves the same purpose. Don't go in for chemical water-softeners too heavily. They dry your hair, too.

Drying the hair thoroughly before you run a comb through it or try to brush it is a good idea. Then you can set it with a wet comb and — if you use a dryer — you won't have to cook under the heat so long.

Brushing is good for oily scalps as well as for dry ones. If you like, you may try correcting an oily scalp by brushing a little astringent tonic over it. Too liberal use of alcohol, however—and most astringents contain alcohol — is not good for the hair. So you'd better look into your diet, your exercise routine (if any) and get out in the fresh air more—if your scalp is very, very oily.

A massage brush will help work those suds into your scalp.

Your permanent may dry your hair a little; it shouldn't dry it much. But if you like, you may mix about 25 per cent castor oil and 75 per cent alcohol and comb and brush a little into your hair. The alcohol will evaporate and leave the oil—which will help keep the hair pliable.

Something Go Wrong--!

Paris, Mo., (AP) — With much ado and ballyhoo a local newspaper sponsored a contest to select "the most beautiful woman in the world."

The contest went off nicely. The "most beautiful" girl was picked from among the assembled charm.

Roosevelt Dodges Third Term Question

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt smilingly declined again today, as he has on several recent occasions, to be drawn into any discussion of his possible candidacy for re-election.

At his press conference a newsnoted that Vice President Garner was going to let his name be submitted to the Democratic National Convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination. He asked whether that altered Mr. Roosevelt's plans in any way.

Second Oil Strike In Ten Days Causes Excitement in Nebraska

Ogallala, Neb., Nov. 15 (AP) — Drought and poor crops gave way in Nebraska interest today to the magic word "oil" as word of the second oil strike within ten days spread throughout a state which has sought the elusive black gold forty years.

The California-Nebraska Company, Ltd., announced the new well is ten miles Northeast of here—several hundred miles to the Northwest of the first well near Falls City on the Kansas-Nebraska border.

The two strikes marked the culmination of hopeful search which has sunk more than sixty dry holes into the Nebraska earth in all parts of the state since 1900 and overshadowed an announcement today all the state's crops this year yielded only forty percent of usual returns.

An immediate development was signing of a contract today by the owners of the Falls City well to process their crude at a new Omaha refinery. The first truckload is to be delivered tomorrow.

J. S. Kroh, a partner in the company reporting the Okallala find, said oil and gas were found between 1,950 and 2,240 feet but the hole is being drilled deeper to provide a "thorough test." There is no question, he said, but what "we've got a well."

Prospective production is estimated at 150 to 200 barrels of oil daily and three to five million cubic feet of gas.

Since the strike, Kroh said several major companies have started lease-buying activities.

Beauty BELOW the Chin

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOU CAN collar and cover a stringy neck in the daytime, but life is not filled with joy and ecstasy when you put on the grand evening attire. Necks don't seem to care how they act. They go crinkly before their time, and they take on discolorations. Some of our demon sun worshippers show the effect of summer sunburn all winter long.

Combine equal parts of strained lemon juice and olive oil, massage into the flesh every night if you would have a pretty, nicely colored throat and a rear portion that doesn't carry yallery speckles or a gray surface. Smooth up and down with the palms. Include the collar bones, so there won't be a high-water line. Do gentle kneading at the back. And, while you're at it, you might give your ear lobes a few gentle dabs. Ears are on show, need attention.

To keep the fibers of the neck strong and to resist the mangling of old Pop Time, stand erect, hands on hips, chin on the level. Then with quick, little jerks keep getting the chin higher. Hold the teeth tightly together. Keep on going until you can't get your head back any further. Back to the first position and repeat. A neck that has started to go to seed will perk up, look decidedly better.

Use the lemon and oil at night, sponge with ice cold water in the morning, then lave with witch hazel.

* * *

Even though the hair may not be of pigtail length, the ends may split. Split ends are dead tissue, showing that the natural nutriment does not extend the entire length of the shaft.

Pour a few drops of hot mineral oil in the palms of the hands, lubricate the hair. Mineral oil is also effective for loosening dandruff and putting the scalp in good condition. The best means of applying it to the scalp is with a large medicine dropper.

A five-minute massage should follow. Friction gets the flesh into a glow, a condition that is conducive to a healthy growth of dome fuzz.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

WHEN TINKER threw me to the ground, my head must have struck a rock, for I knew no more until I opened my eyes to find myself lying on a davenport in the Hill House lounge, around me a circle of anxious faces. In Neal's eyes was an expression which sent the blood leaping joyously in my veins. That look was one I had hungered to see.

Gently they told me that just as Captain Lancy and Chief Forrest, accompanied by troopers, arrived to make an arrest, Tinker's furious outburst brought them all to the scene to find me unconscious, Coral dying and Dr. Paul Rutherford dead. His throat torn out by the powerful jaws of the dog who in his slashed shoulder bore mute evidence that his onslaught was all that saved me from Coral's fate.

An hour later, Captain Lancy and the chief entered and, after hearing my story, told us—only poor Pauline and her mother were absent—the sordid truth underlying the tragedy of Hill House.

Captain Lancy's face was sad and grim. "Miss Easton is dead," he said gravely. "Had we been a few minutes earlier, she would now be alive, and Miss Gordon would not have been subjected to the attack on her life. Had it not been for the dog—"

That brought it back so vividly that I clutched Neal's arm in genuine panic. His understanding: "It's all over, dear," restored my self-control, and I listened intently to every word.

"Part of what I tell you, I have just learned from Miss Easton," Lancy went on. "We were sure that Dr. Rutherford killed Mrs. Peake, but proof for which we were waiting was so delayed that we arrived too late to prevent the second tragedy.

"Dr. Paul Rutherford was one of the cleverest, most cold-blooded murderers I ever have tracked down. When I tell you that he was heartless enough to give doped whiskey to his own mother merely to draw everyone away from Hill House and enable his accomplice to search the house, you will understand why I say that I am glad his career is ended before it was fairly begun. But I will go back to the beginning.

"We suspected Dr. Peake, Bruce Orton, Alan Murray and Joseph Barry before we realized that we must look to Dr. Rutherford, who from the first tried to blind us with much useless information. His position here as a close friend, and apparent lack of motive, deceived us at first. Yet it was obvious that he could most easily hope and dispose of the whiskey. It was not until we investigated Joseph Barry that we discovered that Dr. Rutherford was more closely linked with Coral Easton than either Dr. Peake or Joseph Barry, himself.

"During the second search of Hill House we learned Barry is a devoted philatelist. In one of his stamp albums were several envelopes addressed to Jose Barrios in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. In his trunk was a picture of himself with which Miss Dutton told her. Name-white hair.

"Miss Gordon related a story ly, that Joseph Barry had had his hair re-dyed in a beauty salon in Hyannis. By wiring Brazil we found that Joseph Barry and Jose Barrios were one and the same. That, in Rio, Barry was associated with a Coral Estes; in America, with Coral Easton. The two names applied to the same woman.

"Continuing the investigation we found that Coral Estes or Easton was a close friend of Dr. Rutherford's before she met Dr. Peake. Dr. Rutherford posed as a wealthy man, and undoubtedly was one up to a year ago. But he had dissipated the money which his father left him, also his mother's and sister's shares, which he handled, and was in desperate financial straits when he met Coral Easton.

"We knew that the blow which killed Mrs. Peake was a powerful one, as it required considerable strength to penetrate through the layers of fat to her heart. Dr. Rutherford habitually carried a small scalpel in his pocket, an ideal weapon for the crime. Coral Easton was a slight, unathletic woman. Dr. Rutherford was our choice for the murderer.

"But we could not step up to him and say: 'You answer all the requirements for the murderer.' He would have laughed in our faces. We had to provide a motive, and this we were not able to do until today.

"Miss Easton is dead," Captain Lancy said gravely.

"When Alan Murray told us that Miss Ivy Newcomb was saying: 'Let—her—book—Selina,' we believed that in her disjointed words was hidden the secret of why Mrs. Peake was killed. We interpreted her meaning to be 'A letter from Selina (Mrs. Peake) in a book.' We searched for the letter and found it, which culminated tonight in the death of Miss Easton. With the letter were enclosed two others. These letters we sent by airplane to Boston to be examined by handwriting experts, and it was for their verdict we were waiting tonight.

"The letters, which experts declare to have been written by Dr. Paul Rutherford, profess to be from a certain Paulos Andrade, which was Dr. Rutherford's first name, Latinized, and his second name. The first declared that Captain Bill Newcomb, who died in Rio eighteen years ago, was involved in a crime there and died just in time to escape arrest. The writer claimed to hold papers proving this fact and was prepared to exchange them for the deeds to certain lands which Captain Newcomb owned when he died. If the exchange was refused, the story would be made public.

"Captain Newcomb bought this land in anticipation of its rise in value, which now exceeds his expectation. Before his death, he arranged for these lands to be held for twenty years and then sold for the benefit of his heirs, his father, two sisters and wife.

"Mrs. Peake received that letter this spring. She would not believe that her brother was involved in anything dishonorable and refused to trade with the blackmailers. When she received the second letter, placing a time limit on the exchange or threatening to publish the story, she appealed to Miss Ivy Newcomb for advice.

"Miss Newcomb, still holding her grudge, refused to allow her sister to come to her cottage and she, herself, would not enter Hill House. They met by the spite fence.

"We now go back to Coral Estes who, coming to Boston, met Dr. Rutherford. She fell madly in love with him and told him of the land which her stepfather owned and which would one day be divided, and through her mother, his wife, a share come to her.

"To his surprise, he learned that his classmate and pal was the stepson of one of the inheritors. Desperate for money, he evolved a clever scheme, of which the letters were only a part. He introduced Coral Estes by the name of Easton to Dr. Peake, intending for her to worm an invitation from him to Hill House. Dr. Peake became infatuated with her, and the way was open for her to search for the deeds which she believed were here. She intended to marry Dr. Peake, get all the money she could, then go back to Dr. Rutherford.

"The poisoning of Mrs. Rutherford was the planned opportunity for Miss Easton to find the papers, but she failed to do so. Undismayed, Dr. Rutherford, himself, searched later that night. He, too, failed to find them.

"He exchanged rooms with his mother, ostensibly to soothe her nervousness; in reality that he might go and come by his window, undetected. The next night he heard voices. He slipped from his room and listened. Mrs. Peake and Miss Ivy were talking by the spite fence, where one loose board had been moved aside.

He heard Miss Ivy tell her sister that the papers must be in their father's old sea chest. Then, to his consternation, he learned that Mrs. Peake once overheard him and Coral talking. She was suspicious of them, and was only waiting to find the papers before having him arrested. He could not convince her that she was mistaken, so killed her, and we presume he was the person with the light seen later that same night.

"Miss Easton, unfamiliar with New England architecture, knew nothing of a possible attic. She did not notice the attic trap door which is in a closet ceiling, its position owing to the remodeling of Hill House. The sea chest is there. The deeds are in Chief Forrest's hands, and will be turned over to Dr. and Miss Peake later.

"Joseph Barry's connection with this affair came because he loved Miss Easton and did all in his power to destroy the influence which Dr. Rutherford had over her, even to changing his name that he might be near her. It was his figure Bruce Orton saw the night Mrs. Rutherford was sick. Barry was on his way for a showdown with the doctor, but seeing Pauline in the living room, he turned back. After Mrs. Peake's death, he kept silent for fear Miss Easton was involved. The dyeing of his hair is a personal matter, as was the argument with a garageman over a repair bill, which Dr. Peake overheard.

"We noticed a long scratch on the paint below Dr. Rutherford's window the morning after the murder, but thought nothing of it. Later it was gone. No painting or cleaning had been done. It was obvious that only someone who wished to conceal the scratch would remove it. That was Dr. Rutherford's only mistake. In all other respects, circumstances alone proved his undoing.

"Dr. Peake, with implicit faith in his friend, believed that the whiskey was poisoned and stolen. Dr. Rutherford used a drug to make his mother sick but not dangerously so. He was the prowler, setting the stage for the alleged poisoning and, that he might sneak about undetected, he tried to poison the dog, which tonight has more than evened the score."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A Profitable Garden

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married just two months. My husband has a lovely old place which has been in his family for nearly a hundred years. But it's terribly run down. Some paint, bright chintz and a little home carpentry, all of which we will do ourselves will help along the house. But I'd love to make a little money from an old flower garden pretty well gone to pieces.

There are some huge rose bushes, peonies, iris, chrysanthemums and other perennials. I have called on two or three florists in a nearby city, and they are willing to buy from me if my flowers are up to par. I've always had a garden and love growing things, but I want to make this the biggest, best and most successful garden for miles around. Beginning with next summer I want to have an open-air tea-room.

I know something about soil and cultivation, but would like to get the latest advice. A friend told me to write to you saying that among other things you're a practical gardener.

THRIFTY BRIDE.

I can't imagine a happier beginning for young married people than to start with a house such as you describe and have a garden as well. As you've tried your hand at growing things you know there is plenty of hard work involved before a wilderness will blossom as the rose—but it's such fun, and so healthful and thrilling.

Delphinium always finds a ready market, the English hybrid or "hollyhock" type especially; daffodils and tulips in the early spring are good sellers, and peonies around Decoration Day.

My attention has just been called to a splendid new garden book by Louise and James Bush-Brown. It covers every bit of needful knowledge from sub-soil up, and tells how to grow flowers, shrubs, fruit and vegetables, cures for diseases, pests and insects.

If you're going in for gardening seriously it will pay you to consult this volume. If you write me again I'll be very glad to give you the name of other garden books. There is always a sale for flowers and small fruits. Strawberries and raspberries find a ready market too.

She Plans Houses Women Will Like

Miami (AP)—Mrs. Juanita James, one of Miami's most successful dealers, is capitalizing on what most everybody knows—that women, in the final analysis, pick out the home.

So, in building homes for sale, she plans to satisfy the women.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

FOR DIRECT RELIEF from coughing, phlegm, irritation, clogged air passages, misery of colds—rub throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub. Its poultice-and-vapor action brings relief without dosing.

ALSO, FOR HEAD COLD "sniffles", melt a spoonful of VapoRub in hot water. Then have the child breathe in the steaming vapors.

Beauty BELOW the Chin

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOU CAN collar and cover a stringy neck in the daytime, but life is not filled with joy and ecstasy when you put on the grand evening attire. Necks don't seem to care how they act. They go crinkly before their time, and they take on discolorations. Some of our demon sun worshippers show the effect of summer sunburn all winter long.

Combine equal parts of strained lemon juice and olive oil, massage into the flesh every night if you would have a pretty, nicely colored throat and a rear portion that doesn't carry yallery speckles or a gray surface. Smooth up and down with the palms. Include the collar bones, so there won't be a high-water line. Do gentle kneading at the back. And, while you're at it, you might give your ear lobes a few gentle dabs. Ears are on show, need attention.

To keep the fibers of the neck strong and to resist the mangling of old Pop Time, stand erect, hands on hips, chin on the level. Then with quick, little jerks keep getting the chin higher. Hold the teeth tightly together. Keep on going until you can't get your head back any further. Back to the first position and repeat. A neck that has started to go to seed will perk up, look decidedly better.

Use the lemon and oil at night, sponge with ice cold water in the morning, then lave with witch hazel.

Even though the hair may not be of pigtail length, the ends may split. Split ends are dead tissue, showing that the natural nutriment does not extend the entire length of the shaft.

Pour a few drops of hot mineral oil in the palms of the hands, lubricate the hair. Mineral oil is also effective for loosening dandruff and putting the scalp in good condition. The best means of applying it to the scalp is with a large medicine dropper.

A five-minute massage should follow. Friction gets the flesh into a glow, a condition that is conducive to a healthy growth of dome fuzz.

She Plans Houses Women Will Like

Miami (AP)—Mrs. Juanita James, one of Miami's most successful dealers, is capitalizing on what most everybody knows—that women, in the final analysis, pick out the home.

So, in building homes for sale, she plans to satisfy the women.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

"Miss Easton is dead," Captain Lancy said gravely.

CHAPTER FORTY-EIGHT

WHEN TINKER threw me to the ground, my head must have struck a rock, for I knew no more until I opened my eyes to find myself lying on a davenport in the Hill House lounge, around me a circle of anxious faces. In Neal's eyes was an expression which sent the blood leaping joyously in my veins. That look was one I had hungered to see.

Gently they told me that just as Captain Lancy and Chief Forrest, accompanied by troopers, arrived to make an arrest, Tinker's furious outburst brought them all to the scene to find me unconscious, Coral dying and Dr. Paul Rutherford dead. His throat torn out by the powerful jaws of the dog who in his slashed shoulder bore mute evidence that his onslaught was all that saved me from Coral's fate.

An hour later, Captain Lancy and the chief entered and, after hearing my story, told us—only poor Pauline and her mother were absent—the sordid truth underlying the tragedy of Hill House.

Captain Lancy's face was sad and grim. "Miss Easton is dead," he said gravely. "Had we been a few minutes earlier, she would now be alive, and Miss Gordon would not have been subjected to the attack on her life. Had it not been for the dog—"

That brought it back so vividly that I clutched Neal's arm in genuine panic. His understanding: "It's all over, dear," restored my self-control, and I listened intently to every word.

"Part of what I tell you, I have just learned from Miss Easton," Lancy went on. "We were sure that Dr. Rutherford killed Mrs. Peake, but proof for which we were waiting was so delayed that we arrived too late to prevent the second tragedy.

"Dr. Paul Rutherford was one of the cleverest, most cold-blooded murderers I ever have tracked down. When I tell you that he was heartless enough to give doped whiskey to his own mother merely to draw everyone away from Hill House and enable his accomplice to search the house, you will understand why I say that I am glad his career is ended before it was fairly begun. But I will go back to the beginning.

"We suspected Dr. Peake, Bruce Orton, Alan Murray and Joseph Barry before we realized that we must look to Dr. Rutherford, who from the first tried to blind us with much useless information. His position here as a close friend, and apparent lack of motive, deceived us at first. Yet it was obvious that he could most easily hope and dispose of the whiskey. It was not until we investigated Joseph Barry that we discovered that Dr. Rutherford was more closely linked with Coral Easton than either Dr. Peake or Joseph Barry, himself.

"During the second search of Hill House we learned Barry is a devoted philatelist. In one of his stamp albums were several envelopes addressed to Jose Barrios in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. In his trunk was a picture of himself with which Miss Dutton told her. Name-white hair.

"Miss Gordon related a story ly, that Joseph Barry had had his hair re-dyed in a beauty salon in Hyannis. By wiring Brazil we found that Joseph Barry and Jose Barrios were one and the same. That, in Rio, Barry was associated with a Coral Estes; in America, with Coral Easton. The two names applied to the same woman.

"Continuing the investigation we found that Coral Estes or Easton was a close friend of Dr. Rutherford's before she met Dr. Peake. Dr. Rutherford posed as a wealthy man, and undoubtedly was one up to a year ago. But he had dissipated the money which his father left him, also his mother's and sister's shares, which he handled, and was in desperate financial straits when he met Coral Easton.

"We knew that the blow which killed Mrs. Peake was a powerful one, as it required considerable strength to penetrate through the layers of fat to her heart. Dr. Rutherford habitually carried a small scalpel in his pocket, an ideal weapon for the crime. Coral Easton was a slight, unathletic woman. Dr. Rutherford was our choice for the murderer.

"But we could not step up to him and say: 'You answer all the requirements for the murderer.' He would have laughed in our faces. We had to provide a motive, and this we were not able to do until today.

"When Alan Murray told us that Miss Ivy Newcomb was saying: 'Let—her—book—Selina,' we believed that in her disjointed words was hidden the secret of why Mrs. Peake was killed. We interpreted her meaning to be 'A letter from Selina (Mrs. Peake) in a book.' We searched for the letter and found it, which culminated tonight in the death of Miss Easton. With the letter were enclosed two others. These letters we sent by airplane to Boston to be examined by handwriting experts, and it was for their verdict we were waiting tonight.

"The letters, which experts declare to have been written by Dr. Paul Rutherford, profess to be from a certain Paulos Andrade, which was Dr. Rutherford's first name, Latinized, and his second name. The first declared that Captain Bill Newcomb, who died in Rio eighteen years ago, was involved in a crime there and died just in time to escape arrest. The writer claimed to hold papers proving this fact and was prepared to exchange them for the deeds to certain lands which Captain Newcomb owned when he died. If the exchange was refused, the story would be made public.

"Captain Newcomb bought this land in anticipation of its rise in value, which now exceeds his expectation. Before his death, he arranged for these lands to be held for twenty years and then sold for the benefit of his heirs, his father, two sisters and wife.

"Mrs. Peake received that letter this spring. She would not believe that her brother was involved in anything dishonorable and refused to trade with the blackmailers. When she received the second letter, placing a time limit on the exchange or threatening to publish the story, she appealed to Miss Ivy Newcomb for advice.

"Miss Newcomb, still holding her grudge, refused to allow her sister to come to her cottage and she, herself, would not enter Hill House. They met by the spite fence.

"We now go back to Coral Estes who, coming to Boston, met Dr. Rutherford. She fell madly in love with him and told him of the land which her stepfather owned and which would one day be divided, and through her mother, his wife, a share come to her.

"To his surprise, he learned that his classmate and pal was the stepson of one of the inheritors. Desperate for money, he evolved a clever scheme, of which the letters were only a part. He introduced Coral Estes by the name of Easton to Dr. Peake, intending for her to worm an invitation from him to Hill House. Dr. Peake became infatuated with her, and the way was open for her to search for the deeds which she believed were here. She intended to marry Dr. Peake, get all the money she could, then go back to Dr. Rutherford.

"The poisoning of Mrs. Rutherford was the planned opportunity for Miss Easton to find the papers, but she failed to do so. Undismayed, Dr. Rutherford, himself, searched later that night. He, too, failed to find them.

"He exchanged rooms with his mother, ostensibly to soothe her nervousness; in reality that he might go and come by his window, undetected. The next night he heard voices. He slipped from his room and listened. Mrs. Peake and Miss Ivy were talking by the spite fence, where one loose board had been moved aside.

He heard Miss Ivy tell her sister that the papers must be in their father's old sea chest. Then, to his consternation, he learned that Mrs. Peake once overheard him and Coral talking. She was suspicious of them, and was only waiting to find the papers before having him arrested. He could not convince her that she was mistaken, so killed her, and we presume he was the person with the light seen later that same night.

"Miss Easton, unfamiliar with New England architecture, knew nothing of a possible attic. She did not notice the attic trap door which is in a closet ceiling, its position owing to the remodeling of Hill House. The sea chest is there. The deeds are in Chief Forrest's hands, and will be turned over to Dr. and Miss Peake later.

"Joseph Barry's connection with this affair came because he loved Miss Easton and did all in his power to destroy the influence which Dr. Rutherford had over her, even to changing his name that he might be near her. It was his figure Bruce Orton saw the night Mrs. Rutherford was sick. Barry was on his way for a showdown with the doctor, but seeing Pauline in the living room, he turned back. After Mrs. Peake's death, he kept silent for fear Miss Easton was involved. The dyeing of his hair is a personal matter, as was the argument with a garageman over a repair bill, which Dr. Peake overheard.

"We noticed a long scratch on the paint below Dr. Rutherford's window the morning after the murder, but thought nothing of it. Later it was gone. No painting or cleaning had been done. It was obvious that only someone who wished to conceal the scratch would remove it. That was Dr. Rutherford's only mistake. In all other respects, circumstances alone proved his undoing.

"Dr. Peake, with implicit faith in his friend, believed that the whiskey was poisoned and stolen. Dr. Rutherford used a drug to make his mother sick but not dangerously so. He was the prowler, setting the stage for the alleged poisoning and, that he might sneak about undetected, he tried to poison the dog, which tonight has more than evened the score."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A Profitable Garden

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We've been married just two months. My husband has a lovely old place which has been in his family for nearly a hundred years. But it's terribly run down. Some paint, bright chintz and a little home carpentry, all of which we will do ourselves will help along the house. But I'd love to make a little money from an old flower garden pretty well gone to pieces.

There are some huge rose bushes, peonies, iris, chrysanthemums and other perennials. I have called on two or three florists in a nearby city, and they are willing to buy from me if my flowers are up to par. I've always had a garden and love growing things, but I want to make this the biggest, best and most successful garden for miles around. Beginning with next summer I want to have an open-air tea-room.

I know something about soil and cultivation, but would like to get the latest advice. A friend told me to write to you saying that among other things you're a practical gardener.

THRIFTY BRIDE.

I can't imagine a happier beginning for young married people than to start with a house such as you describe and have a garden as well. As you've tried your hand at growing things you know there is plenty of hard work involved before a wilderness will blossom as the rose—but it's such fun, and so healthful and thrilling.

Delphinium always finds a ready market, the English hybrid or "hollyhock" type especially; daffodils and tulips in the early spring are good sellers, and peonies around Decoration Day.

My attention has just been called to a splendid new garden book by Louise and James Bush-Brown. It covers every bit of needful knowledge from sub-soil up, and tells how to grow flowers, shrubs, fruit and vegetables, cures for diseases, pests and insects.

If you're going in for gardening seriously it will pay you to consult this volume. If you write me again I'll be very glad to give you the name of other garden books. There is always a sale for flowers and small fruits. Strawberries and raspberries find a ready market too.

CHILDREN'S COLDS

FOR DIRECT RELIEF from coughing, phlegm, irritation, clogged air passages, misery of colds—rub throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub. Its poultice-and-vapor action brings relief without dosing.

ALSO, FOR HEAD COLD "sniffles", melt a spoonful of VapoRub in hot water. Then have the child breathe in the steaming vapors.

Major and Minor Oil Companies Are Indicted

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP) — A special federal grand jury today indicted more than two score major and minor oil companies on charges of conspiring to control the price of retail gasoline in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The indictments were returned after several months' investigation in which federal prosecutors sought to determine the reason for the "remarkable stability" shown in gasoline prices for the past several years.

Among the companies indicted were Richfield Oil Corporation, Standard Oil Company, Tidewater Associated Oil Company, Union Oil Company of California, Gilmore Oil Company, Rio Grande Oil Company, Shell Oil Company and General Petroleum Corporation of California.

Joe Brill, attorney general's assistant in charge of the inquiry, said the oil companies named as defendants control approximately ninety-five percent of the total amount of gasoline sold along the Pacific slope.

Among those named as defendants are the Standard Oil Company of California, The Texas Company, the General Petroleum Corporation of California, Richfield Oil Corp., Shell Oil Company of California, Tide Water-Associated Oil Company, Union Oil Company of California, which comprise the so-called "major" concerns operating in this area, and thirty-three independent concerns.

Upland Game and Waterfowl Season Is Now Open

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP) — Hundreds of hunters primed their fowling-pieces tonight for the opening tomorrow of Maryland's forty-five day season on upland game and waterfowl.

Officials of the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission said extensive surveys throughout the state indicated the season would be one of the best in years for hunters of waterfowl as well as game.

In the Susquehanna flat sector, the greatest invasion of ducks in ten years was reported, and similar reports came from all sections of the eastern shore, where some of the heaviest bombarding is expected.

Upland game supplies were boosted this year by a good breeding season — an absence of heavy rains and unusual weather disturbances during the summer.

The duck hunting season runs through December 29.

Major and Minor Oil Companies Are Indicted

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP) — A special federal grand jury today indicted more than two score major and minor oil companies on charges of conspiring to control the price of retail gasoline in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The indictments were returned after several months' investigation in which federal prosecutors sought to determine the reason for the "remarkable stability" shown in gasoline prices for the past several years.

Among the companies indicted were Richfield Oil Corporation, Standard Oil Company, Tidewater Associated Oil Company, Union Oil Company of California, Gilmore Oil Company, Rio Grande Oil Company, Shell Oil Company and General Petroleum Corporation of California.

Joe Brill, attorney general's assistant in charge of the inquiry, said the oil companies named as defendants control approximately ninety-five percent of the total amount of gasoline sold along the Pacific slope.

"The Real Glory" Now Showing at Maryland

Fast - moving action, suspended drama and red-blooded romance are in store for moviegoers when they witness the showing of Samuel Goldwyn's "The Real Glory," which co-stars Gary Cooper, Andrea Leeds and David Niven, and was presented at a gala premiere showing at the Maryland Theatre last night as a United Artists release. Cooper plays the type of outdoor role which has made him one of the screen's top-notch stars, portraying a doctor who has joined the army and come to work in the Philippines to sharpen his experience.

Opposite Cooper, Miss Leeds and David Niven turn in capital performances, the brunette beauty as a visiting American, and Niven as first-rate portrayals are handled by such outstanding players as Reginald Owen, Broderick Crawford, Kay Johnson, Vladimir Sokoloff, Russell Hicks and Henry Kolker. Brilliant sets and excellent photography mark the production throughout, and special words of praise are due Paul Widlicska and James Basevi for the authentic settings and special effects.

"Career" Introduces "Gateway" Finalists

Alice Eden and John Archer, finalists of Jesse L. Lasky's first "Gateway to Hollywood" talent search, make their motion picture debut in "Career" in which Anne Shirley and Edward Ellis have the top roles. The picture is now at the Garden.

Archer, a Nebraskan, attended academic and dramatic schools in Los Angeles. He entered the "Gateway to Hollywood" radio program with eighteen other regional selections, emerging as the top finalist.

Alice Eden, of New York City, studied to be a ballet dancer. However, a school play interested her in acting and she enrolled at the Pasadena Playhouse where she appeared in many plays over a period of three years. She was the unanimous choice of the judges in the finals. Like Archer, she was awarded an RKO Radio contract.

When Rudy Vallee popularized the song "Betty Co-ed," he did not realize how prophetic he was. For it turns out that Betty Grable, vivacious Paramount starlet, who will be seen in "Million Dollar Legs," now at the Garden Theatre, is the average collegian's ideal of an American co-ed.

And though Betty never had the good fortune to attend college, her roles as a co-ed in such pictures as "Collegiate," "Campus Confessions," and "College Swing," have stamped her as a collegiate prototype. During the filming of "Million Dollar Legs," Betty received 56 invitations from such diverse institutions of learning as Harvard, Tulane, Michigan and C. C. N. Y., to attend proms and commencement exercises.

"Career" Introduces "Gateway" Finalists

Alice Eden and John Archer, finalists of Jesse L. Lasky's first "Gateway to Hollywood" talent search, make their motion picture debut in "Career" in which Anne Shirley and Edward Ellis have the top roles. The picture is now at the Garden.

Archer, a Nebraskan, attended academic and dramatic schools in Los Angeles. He entered the "Gateway to Hollywood" radio program with eighteen other regional selections, emerging as the top finalist.

Alice Eden, of New York City, studied to be a ballet dancer. However, a school play interested her in acting and she enrolled at the Pasadena Playhouse where she appeared in many plays over a period of three years. She was the unanimous choice of the judges in the finals. Like Archer, she was awarded an RKO Radio contract.

When Rudy Vallee popularized the song "Betty Co-ed," he did not realize how prophetic he was. For it turns out that Betty Grable, vivacious Paramount starlet, who will be seen in "Million Dollar Legs," now at the Garden Theatre, is the average collegian's ideal of an American co-ed.

And though Betty never had the good fortune to attend college, her roles as a co-ed in such pictures as "Collegiate," "Campus Confessions," and "College Swing," have stamped her as a collegiate prototype. During the filming of "Million Dollar Legs," Betty received 56 invitations from such diverse institutions of learning as Harvard, Tulane, Michigan and C. C. N. Y., to attend proms and commencement exercises.

Boils Are Caused By Certain Germs, Physician Says

Crop of Them May Come When Pus Spreads over the Skin

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We are frequently interrogated as to how to stop crops of boils, and as to why boils tend so often to follow one another in a succession of aggravating infections.

The cause of boils is one of the pus-forming germs, usually staphylococcus, and it is quite possible that a special variety of staphylococcus must be present on the skin to cause the boil. Staphylococci are in the air everywhere and constantly on the skin of the hands, face and neck.

The site of boils is usually in a hairy region of the skin, the forearm and the neck being the most frequent habitations. Undoubtedly we must hold the hair follicles mechanically responsible for the formation of boils. It is easy to see, then, that if a special variety of staphylococcus does make an entrance into a hair follicle and cause a boil, when that boil breaks, the pus spread over the surrounding skin containing the particular caustive organism may easily invade the hair follicles in the region and create the "crop" of boils. Besides this, the immunity induced by a boil is not very vigorous, and it even looks as if instead of creating immunity, one boil creates a hypersensitiveness to others.

Preventing Boils

To prevent crops of boils, then, the simplest and what has been proved in practice to be the most successful method, is to prevent the pus of one boil from being smeared over the surrounding skin. The treatment of a well-developed boil is very simple, although it should be in the hands of a surgeon. When the core forms, the patient, rightly, feels that that is the end of that particular bit of trouble.

When a patient has had a series of boils and reddened area is detected about the shaft of a hair, the beginning of a new one may be suspected. It is possible sometimes to abort its development by boring down the air shaft with a needle, the point of which has been dipped in carbolic acid. The repeated application of tincture of iodine to a developing boil may somewhat limit its growth.

Poulticing it a time-honored method of treating boils, but surgeons believe that it tends to spread the infection to new areas by incubating the bacteria as they escape and macerating the surrounding skin. Hot dressings of saturated boric acid are not open to this objection. Such a hot compress should be generous and must be kept hot and continued for several hours a day.

Carbuncles Similar

Carbuncles are diffuse infections of the skin similar to boils, except that boils infect a single pocket. The back of the neck is the common site for carbuncles. A large number of skin follicles and the constant pressure by the collar are responsible for the frequency of the involvement of this region. Women nowadays do not have carbuncles of the neck, whereas in the old days of the stiff whalebone collar they were very common.

Carbuncles are far more serious and more difficult to treat than ordinary boils, and definitely require professional rather than home care.

Magna Charta Will Be Placed in the Library of Congress

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP) — The best of the four extant originals of Magna Carta, keystone of civil liberties in the English-speaking countries, is to be placed in the Library of Congress for safekeeping during the present war emergency.

Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the House Foreign Affairs committee made public today a letter from Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress, disclosing that England's great charter would be put on display opposite the Constitution and Declaration of Independence at ceremonies Nov. 28.

The British Embassy said that King John placed his mark on twelve originals of Magna Carta at Runnymede in 1215. Of these twelve, four now exist and the one to be placed in the congressional library is the most legible.

Green Hornet Offering Takes New Spot This Evening

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, Nov. 15—Instead of passing to the great beyond of radio programs, the twenty-week-old Green Hornet series of the MBS network, is pausing only long enough to transfer itself to the WJZ-NBC chain. It's first appearance there will be at 8 o'clock Thursday night. It will continue on that night and have an additional broadcast on Saturday nights.

Racial Question Booked

For its weekly discussion on WJZ-NBC at 9:30, America's town meeting has selected the question, "Should we ignore racial differences?" Speakers are Dr. Ernest A. Hooton, of Harvard, and Dr. M. F. Ashley-Montagu, of Hannemann medical college.

The address of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes on "Safe Ocean Cruises" before the American Automobile association will be carried from Washington by the MBS network at 11:30 a. m.

The Europe schedule: NBC-chains 8 a. m.; WABC-CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55, 11 p. m.; MBS 9, 10:15; WEAF-NBC-east 11.

Other Offerings

A few of the other items scattered through the list:

WJZ-NBC—9 Eastman school symphony in Beethoven's fifth symphony under the direction of Dr. Howard Hanson.

WABC-CBS 10:30—American's at work, the guests to be what CBS describes as the first ladies of the air, or in other words flying hostesses.

Bear Plentiful In Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Nov. 15 (AP) — The State Game Commission forecasts "good prospects" for Pennsylvania's four - day bear hunting season opening tomorrow.

Field reports of the game wardens today said bears are "especially plentiful" in Sullivan, Wyoming, Potter, Cameron, Lycoming and Clinton counties, and in the Forest-Warren area.

The open season has been moved up this year, to comply with requests of hunters who had complained that the bruins started to hibernate before the hunting started.

Approximately 50,000 hunters scour the mountain thickets each year in quest of the big game, the commission estimates.

Tortoise-shell tom cats are rare, but females are plentiful.

New York, Nov. 15—Instead of passing to the great beyond of radio programs, the twenty-week-old Green Hornet series of the MBS network, is pausing only long enough to transfer itself to the WJZ-NBC chain. It's first appearance there will be at 8 o'clock Thursday night. It will continue on that night and have an additional broadcast on Saturday nights.

Racial Question Booked

For its weekly discussion on WJZ-NBC at 9:30, America's town meeting has selected the question, "Should we ignore racial differences?" Speakers are Dr. Ernest A. Hooton, of Harvard, and Dr. M. P. Ashley-Montagu, of Hannemann medical college.

The address of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes on "Safe Ocean Cruises" before the American Automobile association will be carried from Washington by the MBS network at 11:30 a. m.

The Europe schedule: NBC-chains 8 a. m.; WABC-CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55, 11 p. m.; MBS 9, 10:15; WEAF-NBC-east 11.

Other Offerings

A few of the other items scattered through the list:

WJZ-NBC—9 Eastman school symphony in Beethoven's fifth symphony under the direction of Dr. Howard Hanson.

WABC-CBS 10:30—American's at work, the guests to be what CBS describes as the first ladies of the air, or in other words flying hostesses.

Bear Plentiful In Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Nov. 15 (AP) — The State Game Commission forecasts "good prospects" for Pennsylvania's four - day bear hunting season opening tomorrow.

Field reports of the game wardens today said bears are "especially plentiful" in Sullivan, Wyoming, Potter, Cameron, Lycoming and Clinton counties, and in the Forest-Warren area.

The open season has been moved up this year, to comply with requests of hunters who had complained that the bruins started to hibernate before the hunting started.

Approximately 50,000 hunters scour the mountain thickets each year in quest of the big game, the commission estimates.

Striking Oyster Workers Want Pay Increase

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Striking Calvert county oyster shuckers remained firm in their demand for a wage increase today in the face of packers' declarations they could not pay more because of poor market prices.

Three of the five plants affected by the strike were operating today with skeleton crews which were given jobs after the regular workers walked out.

Corp. Charles M. Magaha of the state police went to the scene to guard against possible disorder.

The 252 regularly-employed shuckers struck yesterday after asking a five-cent a bushel wage increase. The current wage is twenty-five cents a bushel.

The walk-out came when operators of the five plants affected had several tons of unshucked oysters on hand.

Warren Denton of Broomes Island said he had 28,300 bushels of unshucked oysters in his plant.

Venezuela Death Toll Placed at Less Than 100

Early Estimates of 800 Are Declared Far Too High

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 15 (AP)—A revised estimate said tonight that probably less than 100 persons lost their lives in the fire which swept the stilt-supported shanty town of Lagunillas on Lake Maracaibo Monday night.

The government press office issued a statement expressing the opinion the number of dead and injured was not nearly so high as the 800 estimated earlier.

No exact list of dead was available.

Informed quarters said the Venezuelan government would not permit the town to be rebuilt. The village was considered a firetrap, it was said, made more hazardous by escaping oil which sometimes collects in a scum near the shore.

Pipelines Break

Survivors today told of two oil pipeline breaks which preceded the disastrous fire.

The reports of survivors conflicted as to whether there was so much oil on the water that it actually caught fire, as early accounts said.

Rescue workers hunted through floating debris for more bodies today as the Venezuelan government mobilized its forces to aid the survivors.

Two days before the disaster a pipeline of the Menegrande Oil Company broke causing the lake waters to rise temporarily to window levels, survivors said. On Monday morning a 12-inch pipe of a Venezuelan Oil Company broke spilling considerable oil into the swollen lake.

More than 1,200 houses were destroyed by the blaze. An off-shore breeze turned the fire out towards the lake, however, and spared buildings along the shore.

LaGunillas had suffered previous disastrous fires but none of the magnitude of Monday's holocaust. Identification of many bodies was impossible. Little remained of the town except charred piling which had supported the houses.

With the idea of avoiding such a disaster the government in 1936 ordered construction of a town at Ojeda, on dry land, but few had moved into the new houses.

Three days of national mourning were decreed by President Eleazar Lopez Contreras.

New U. S. Submarines Sail for Manila

Honolulu, Nov. 15. (AP)—Six new submarines of the U. S. navy sailed today for Manila to augment the Asiatic fleet. The submarine tender Beaver sailed last week.

The submarines, long scheduled for transfer to the Asiatic fleet, are the Tarpon, Porpoise, Pike, Pickerel, Perch and Permit.

Loses Finger, but Only for 40 Minutes

"I can't bear the thought of Billy losing a finger," said his mother, Mrs. C. P. Henderson.

She took Billy and the finger to a Spencer physician, who sewed the digit back in place forty minutes after the accident.

David Reed May Run for Senate

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP)—David A. Reed, fifty-eight-year-old lawyer who represented Pennsylvania in the U. S. Senate for twelve years, said today he was "very tempted" to become a candidate again for the Senate in next year's elections.

A long-time leader of the Republican party, Reed was defeated for re-election in 1934 by U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey in the Democratic landslide that year.

He said then that he did not expect to seek office again but today he said:

"A lot of people have asked me to run, but I have not made up my mind definitely."

He said he was considering running for the Senate because he felt there were "things to be accomplished by Congress," adding:

"For the first time since Mr. Roosevelt came in, there appears to be a reasonable probability of these things being done. Congress has begun to think for itself."

Charge Race Horse Ran Under Two Names

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP)—Officials of the Maryland Jockey Club said today they had evidence that the horse Smoke Signal had been run as George C at Detroit on June 10, 1938, and as Laddie Boy Ring at Washigton Park on Aug. 2, 1938.

They said they had notified governing bodies in Illinois and Michigan of their findings, since the horse ran under its proper name in Maryland, and no action here was required.

The announcement followed an investigation started Friday when betting was held up prior to the seventh race at Pimlico pending identification of Smoke Signal. The horse, which ran second in the race, had been under guard since.

The officials released a statement by Frank Hastings, a trainer, quoting him as saying he had claimed the horse out of a race at Belmont Park in May, 1938, at the request of Tom Malone, a trainer ruled off the turf by the Maryland Racing Commission following a ringer case at Pimlico in May, 1938.

Hastings said he claimed the horse for $3,500, which had been given him by Malone together with $200 for doing it.

The New York Jockey Club instructed Hastings to appear before the New York stewards Monday to discuss the case.

David Elliott In Senate Race

Baltimore, Nov. 15. (AP)—David L. Elliott, unsuccessful candidate for Congress in several campaigns, entered the running today for the United States Senate seat now held by Senator George L. Radcliffe, Democrat.

Elliott, who has run for Congress as a Republican, said he would run for the Senate as an independent or fusion candidate on a platform to "Keep America Out of War."

Criticizing both Radcliffe and Senator Millard E. Tydings for their vote to repeal the arms embargo, Elliott said:

"By their vote on this legislation, both of our senators failed us in this critical hour and preferred the New Deal to their people. Only God and the votes of the states will save our freedom."

70-Year Old Man Gets 20 Years on Charge of Murder

Cynthiana, Ky., Nov. 15 (AP)—Charles Allen, 70-year-old retired farmer, was convicted today of shooting Police Chief George M. Dickey to death last July 29 and a Circuit Court jury fixed his sentence at twenty years and a day.

Dickey was shot when he went to Allen's home to investigate a report the elderly man had taken a fifteen-year-old girl into his barn.

Allen testified he fired when Dickey stepped from his automobile armed and that he had threatened him on a previous occasion.

The farmer barricaded himself in his home after the shooting and stood off an hours-long siege by police and townspeople before escaping. He later surrendered.

The girl testified she had been in the barn prior to the shooting. This Allen denied.

Johnny Broaca and Wife Air Troubles

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 15 (AP)—Judge Collen C. Campbell today took under advicement the alimony pleas of Johnny Broaca, Cleveland Indians' pitcher, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Cordelia Ireland Broaca.

Mrs. Broaca asked an order increasing her alminy from $18 to $75 a week, and Broaca sought release of an attachment which she has against $3,700 of his funds.

Asserting she was almost without clothes and sometimes went hungry, Mrs. Broaca charged Johnny "didn't even so much as buy a stick of candy for his son, Johnny, Jr., and even took away the silver and bedding when he left."

Broaca's counsel termed her testimony "preposterous" and declared that if she was without the needs of life it was her own fault. They were divorced in 1937.

Submarine Squalus Is Decommissioned

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 15 (AP)—Her commission pennant fluttered down today and the submarine Squalus, which carried twenty-six men to their deaths in a faulty dive last May, was removed from the navy's active list.

Her commander, Lieutenant Oliver F. Naquin, and thirty-one other navy survivors—first ever rescued with a diving bell—stood on the deck of the underseas craft during the brief formality which marked decommissioning.

Navy yard experts estimated a year might be required to complete reconditioning and return the Squalus to the nation's fighting forces.

Finnish Delegation Returns to Helsinki

Helsinki, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Finnish delegation which has been discussing Russian proposals in Moscow returned home today and reviewed the talks with government leaders amid indications that the Finns consider the negotiations finished unless the Russians provide a new basis for resumption.

Although no announcement of the government's course was forthcoming, the head of the Moscow delegation, Dr. Juho K. Paasikivi, told interviewers that "the positions of the Russians and Finns differ greatly."

He said he did not know whether there would be a resumption of the negotiations, which centered about Russian demands for territorial and other concessions to increase Russian defenses in the northwest. Finland accepted some of the demands, rejected others.

Paasikivi said that during his last visit to Moscow, his third, he conferred with Soviet officials three times in 12 days, with Joseph Stalin present and "very active" at two of the meetings.

Venezuela Death Toll Placed at Less Than 100

Early Estimates of 800 Are Declared Far Too High

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 15 (AP)—A revised estimate said tonight that probably less than 100 persons lost their lives in the fire which swept the stilt-supported shanty town of Lagunillas on Lake Maracaibo Monday night.

The government press office issued a statement expressing the opinion the number of dead and injured was not nearly so high as the 800 estimated earlier.

No exact list of dead was available.

Informed quarters said the Venezuelan government would not permit the town to be rebuilt. The village was considered a firetrap, it was said, made more hazardous by escaping oil which sometimes collects in a scum near the shore.

Pipelines Break

Survivors today told of two oil pipeline breaks which preceded the disastrous fire.

The reports of survivors conflicted as to whether there was so much oil on the water that it actually caught fire, as early accounts said.

Rescue workers hunted through floating debris for more bodies today as the Venezuelan government mobilized its forces to aid the survivors.

Two days before the disaster a pipeline of the Menegrande Oil Company broke causing the lake waters to rise temporarily to window levels, survivors said. On Monday morning a 12-inch pipe of a Venezuelan Oil Company broke spilling considerable oil into the swollen lake.

More than 1,200 houses were destroyed by the blaze. An off-shore breeze turned the fire out towards the lake, however, and spared buildings along the shore.

LaGunillas had suffered previous disastrous fires but none of the magnitude of Monday's holocaust. Identification of many bodies was impossible. Little remained of the town except charred piling which had supported the houses.

With the idea of avoiding such a disaster the government in 1938 ordered construction of a town at Ojeda, on dry land, but few had moved into the new houses.

Three days of national mourning were decreed by President Eleazar Lopez Contreras.

New U. S. Submarines Sail for Manila

Honolulu, Nov. 15. (AP)—Six new submarines of the U. S. navy sailed today for Manila to augment the Asiatic fleet. The submarine tender Beaver sailed last week.

The submarines, long scheduled for transfer to the Asiatic fleet, are the Tarpon, Porpoise, Pike, Pickerel, Perch and Permit.

Loses Finger, but Only for 40 Minutes

"I can't bear the thought of Billy losing a finger," said his mother, Mrs. C. P. Henderson.

She took Billy and the finger to a Spencer physician, who sewed the digit back in place forty minutes after the accident.

David Reed May Run for Senate

Pittsburgh, Nov. 15 (AP)—David A. Reed, fifty-eight-year-old lawyer who represented Pennsylvania in the U. S. Senate for twelve years, said today he was "very tempted" to become a candidate again for the Senate in next year's elections.

A long-time eader of the Republican party, Reed was defeated for re-election in 1934 by U. S. Senator Joseph F. Guffey in the Democratic landslide that year.

He said then that he did not expect to seek office again but today he said:

"A lot of people have asked me to run, but I have not made up my mind definitely."

He said he was considering running for the Senate because he felt there were "things to be accomplished by Congress," adding:

"For the first time since Mr. Roosevelt came in, there appears to be a reasonable probability of these things being done. Congress has begun to think for itself."

Charge Race Horse Ran Under Two Names

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP)—Officials of the Maryland Jockey Club said today they had evidence that the horse Smoke Signal had been run as George C at Detroit on June 10, 1938, and as Laddie Boy Ring at Washigton Park on Aug. 2, 1938.

They said they had notified governing bodies in Illinois and Michigan of their findings, since the horse ran under its proper name in Maryland, and no action here was required.

The announcement followed an investigation started Friday when betting was held up prior to the seventh race at Pimlico pending identification of Smoke Signal. The horse, which ran second in the race, had been under guard since.

The officials released a statement by Frank Hastings, a trainer, quoting him as saying he had claimed the horse out of a race at Belmont Park in May, 1938, at the request of Tom Malone, a trainer ruled off the turf by the Maryland Racing Commission following a ringer case at Pimlico in May, 1938.

Hastings said he claimed the horse for $3,500, which had been given him by Malone together with $200 for doing it.

The New York Jockey Club instructed Hastings to appear before the New York stewards Monday to discuss the case.

David Elliott In Senate Race

Baltimore, Nov. 15. (AP)—David L. Elliott, unsuccessful candidate for Congress in several campaigns, entered the running today for the United States Senate seat now held by Senator George L. Radcliffe, Democrat.

Elliott, who has run for Congress as a Republican, said he would run for the Senate as an independent or fusion candidate on a platform to "Keep America Out of War."

Criticizing both Radcliffe and Senator Millard E. Tydings for their vote to repeal the arms embargo, Elliott said:

"By their vote on this legislation, both of our senators failed us in this critical hour and prefered the New Deal to their people. Only God and the votes of the states will save our freedom."

70-Year Old Man Gets 20 Years on Charge of Murder

Cynthiana, Ky., Nov. 15 (AP)—Charles Allen, 70-year-old retired farmer, was convicted today of shooting Police Chief George M. Dickey to death last July 29 and a Circuit Court jury fixed his sentence at twenty years and a day.

Dickey was shot when he went to Allen's home to investigate a report the elderly man had taken a fifteen-year-old girl into his barn.

Allen testified he fired when Dickey stepped from his automobile armed and that he had threatened him on a previous occasion.

The farmer barricaded himself in his home after the shooting and stood off an hours-long siege by police and townspeople before escaping. He later surrendered.

The girl testified she had been in the barn prior to the shooting. This Allen denied.

Johnny Broaca and Wife Air Troubles

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 15 (AP)—Judge Collen C. Campbell today took under advicement the alimony pleas of Johnny Broaca, Cleveland Indians' pitcher, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Cordelia Ireland Broaca.

Mrs. Broaca asked an order increasing her alminy from $18 to $75 a week, and Broaca sought release of an attachment which she has against $3,700 of his funds.

Asserting she was almost without clothes and sometimes went hungry, Mrs. Broaca charged Johnny "didn't even so much as buy a stick of candy for his son, Johnny, Jr., and even took away the silver and bedding when he left."

Broaca's counsel termed her testimony "preposterous" and declared that if she was without the needs of life it was her own fault. They were divorced in 1937.

Submarine Squalus Is Decommissioned

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 15 (AP)—Her commission pennant fluttered down today and the submarine Squalus, which carried twenty-six men to their deaths in a faulty dive last May, was removed from the navy's active list.

Her commander Lieutenant Oliver F. Naquin, and thirty-one other navy survivors—first ever rescued with a diving bell—stood on the deck of the underseas craft during the brief formality which marked decommissioning.

Navy yard experts estimated a year might be required to complete reconditioning and return the Squalus to the nation's fighting forces.

Finnish Delegation Returns to Helsinki

Helsinki, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Finnish delegation which has been discussing Russian proposals in Moscow returned home today and reviewed the talks with government leaders amid indications that the Finns consider the negotiations finished unless the Russians provide a new basis for resumption.

Although no announcement of the government's course was forthcoming, the head of the Moscow delegation, Dr. Juho K. Paasikivi, told interviewers that "the positions of the Russians and Finns differ greatly."

He said he did not know whether there would be a resumption of the negotiations, which centered about Russian demands for territorial and other concessions to increase Russian defenses in the northwest. Finland accepted some of the demands, rejected others.

Paasikivi said that during his last visit to Moscow, his third, he conferred with Soviet officials three times in 12 days, with Joseph Stalin present and "very active" at two of the meetings.

Annenberg Stops Racing News Service

Bookmakers in All Sections of Country Cut Off

Operations Ceased after Final Flash on Last Race Yesterday

Results on Bookmaking Will Not Be Known for Sometime

Chicago, Nov. 15. (AP)—Bookmakers in all sections of the nation were cut off M. L. Annenberg's vast racing news network tonight.

The personnel of the Nationwide News Service, which for years had transmitted race entries, odds, running accounts, results and pay-off prices from tracks to thousands of betting rooms, was instructed to cease operations after the final flash on the final race of the day had been dispatched over the far-flung wires of the system.

500 Employes Affected

Hammond Chaffetz, one of his attorneys, reported officials of the concern had been told to stop sending racing data at the close of the day's traffic and that the Western Union and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company had been notified that their facilities would not be needed after tomorrow noon.

He estimated that not more than 500 employes of Nationwide News would be affected by the stoppage.

Dissolution of the race news service may have the greatest impact on speakeasy trade since prohibition's repeal. But the full significance may not be known for some time.

Some bet barons predicted ruin. Others envisioned a sharp slump in trade, possibly as much at fifty per cent. The majority, heads buzzing but unbowed, cast about for new methods of obtaining vital information from the tracks.

Four Plans Suggested

A survey showed that among the projected plans were these:

1. Taking "time bets—accepting wagers one day and paying off the next on the basis of accounts published in newspapers or racing forms.

2. Using public telephone and telegraph lines and air mail.

3. Obtaining reports from a Cuban radio station, "catching" results broadcast by some domestic stations or establishing short wave wireless outfits in turf centers.

4. Assigning agents to posts in or near various tracks to relay information by wire, telephone or wireless to a betting room or to an office serving as a central agency for a number of books.

"Time" bets were in prospect for St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles, Pittsubrgh ,Salt Lake City, Ft. Worth, Louisville and Little Rock. Salt Lake City bookies said they would get reports by air mail.

Radio and telephone were mentioned as likely mediums of communication in Boston and San Francisco.

May Use Radio

It was suggested in Atlantic City that bookies might arrange to get the accounts from a Cuban broadcasting station which would blanket the U. S., rely on descriptions radioed from small stations in racing towns or return to the old system of "bootleg" Morse wires.

A Pittsburgh bet handler moaned: "I guess we'll have to go on relief now."

Baltimore bet commissioners expected no trouble in getting reports from Maryland tracks. Their Washington brethren, who have had no service from the nationwide system since 1937, obtain their information from a radio boadcast there.

New Orleans gamblers, confident they would "find a way," were of this opinion:

"There's too much money involved for the handbooks to take the count lying down."

Attorney Weymouth Kirland said other Annenberg interests, including the Daily Racing Form, would not be affected by abandonment of the Race Service.

Annenberg, who is publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer and a number of magazines, and eighteen of the nineteen men named with him in a series of indictments returned here last summer, appeared in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court room today while their attorneys began a fight against the charges.

They filed pleas in abatement attacking the validity of indictments charging evasion of income taxes and conspiracy, to further a lottery hearings on the motions were set for Nov. 27.

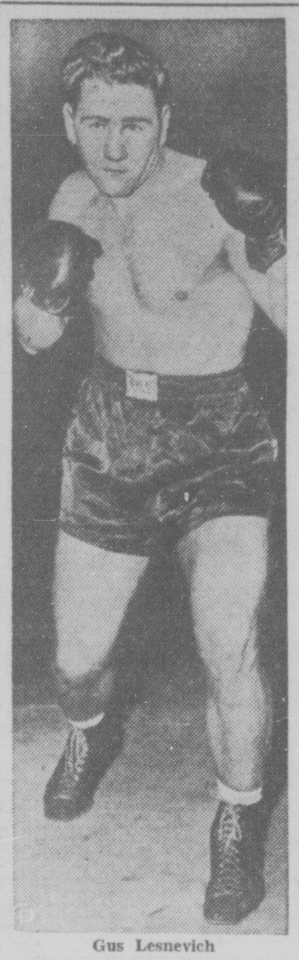
SEEKS CONN'S TITLE



Gus Lesnevich

Here is Gus Lesnevich, lightheavy from Cliffside, N. J., who meets Billy Conn, 175-pound champion, for Conn's title in New York, Nov. 17.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Nov. 15. (AP)—He sizzles all summer and goes on ice during the winter, so it all evens up for Bill Stewart, although he'll admit with a little prodding that the wear and tear of hockey officiating is a little greater than in baseball umpiring.

Bill Stewart umpires in the National Baseball League during the summer, and this year, after a couple of years as a team manager, is back refereeing in the National Ice Hockey league.

He's quite a chunk of man — five feet six inches tall and weighing 182. He's baldish, his drooping eyelids have fooled many an athlete who thought he could get by with something, and he has a square jaw and nice white teeth which he grits in a "just try it once" manner. In brief, he's tough.

"In hockey," he explains, "the fans are more keyed up and rabid, and they're right on top of you. Also, you have to keep your eye on twelve men. However, when you lose eight pounds on a hot day behind the bat in St. Louis it's no fun either."

Stewart was a baseball pitcher in his day. He was with the White Sox briefly in 1919. He hurt his arm, and was farmed to Louisville, where he played under Joe McCarthy.

He managed clubs at Waterbury, Conn., and Springfield, Mass., in 1930 before taking up umpiring. He came to the National League from the New York-Penn League after brief apprenticeship, and has been in the big show six years.

His hockey history is more colorful. After playing a little on scrub teams, he started officiating amateur games in 1922, and in 1926 broke into pro officiating in the Canadian-American circuit. He joined the National League staff in 1929.

In 1937 he took over the manager's job with the Chicago Blackhawks, and astonished the hockey world by piloting a conglomeration of cast-offs and misfits to victory in the Stanley Cup series.

"Four or five of them had been turned loose and couldn't get any other job," he explains, "but we had marvelous spirit."

He was fired in the middle of the next season, and the Blackhawks abruptly lost twenty-three of their next twenty-seven games. This year he's back calling 'em as he sees 'em.

Stewart has never been attacked by a hockey or baseball player, but his troubles with fans have been too numerous to enumerate.

"Once," he recalls, "I was umpiring at York in the N. Y.-Penn League when 200 or 300 brave men got me down and started kicking me. They drove them off with tear gas, but they exploded it right in my face, durn 'em."

Let the players know who is boss, Stewart says, and you'll have no trouble. Incidentally, he has great respect for Ching Johnson, veteran now in the American Hockey Association.

Four-Star Edition Of "Screwy News" From Gridirons

Fordham Coach Sends Word by Indiana Player To Tell Rams To Punt

BY BILL BONI

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Being another four-star edition of football's "Screwy News," with at least three and a half stars and an honorary appointment as head screwball to Fordham's Jim Crowley for the following lead-off anecdote:

With about two minutes to go in the Indiana game, Fordham had the ball down on the Hoosier twenty-yard line. His third team was in the game, so Crowley had told the quarterback not to kick, even on fourth down it might be blocked, and Indiana might run it back for a score.

But a few plays later, with a bad center pass and some penalties, the Rams were back near mid-field. Crowley had just sent in his last few subs and was turning back toward the bench, when one of the Indiana boys on the field sang out:

"Hi, Jimmy, how're things back home in Green Bay?"

"Okay," said Crowley. "Say, go over and tell my quarterback to kick now, will you?"

"Right," said the Indiana boy, who ran into the Fordham huddle, whispered to Crowley's quarterback, then went back to his place at left tackle —and darned near blocked the punt which, sure enough, the quarterback called.

Johnny Schiechl, Santa Clara's standout 220-pound center, tells this one on himself. In the Stanford game he broke through the Stanford line to spill Norm Standlee, Stanford's seldom-stopped fullback, for a loss.

Said Schiechl: "Too bad, son."

Said Standlee: "Yeah, I guess I've been over-publicized."

Diamond Joe Paglia, who used to punt 'em into the coffin center for Santa Clara and now coaches St. Martin's College of Lacey, Wash., probably is the first coach on record to lose a player in an earthquake.

Sunday night Nig Jundel, one of the best ends, was sitting in on a dormitory bull session complaining about a charley horse in his right leg. The building started to shake in the grip of an earthquake. Jundel, in spite of that charley horse, was the first man out of the room and headed for the stairs. Suddenly there was a dull thud, and there was Jundel at the foot of the stairs, with a badly-wrenched left knee to match his right leg's charley horse.

At Gilbert High of Winsted, Conn., two high school teams were playing on a field that, because rains had swelled an adjoining brook, was under two feet (honest measure) of water. The teams insisted on playing, and the officials couldn't very well stop them.

In came a sub wearing a nice, fresh uniform. Advised by the referee that it wouldn't stay that way long, the kid said:

"Well, I might as well get used to these conditions," took a header into the water and came up with:

Missouri's Paul Christian gave 30,000 New York customers a great display of his football prowess last Saturday and gave the New York U. players a good idea of why he's called the gridiron's Dizzy Dean. On almost every time out, pitchin' Paul would walk over to the N. Y. U.'ers, slap 'em on the back and say:

"Great day for a game, isn't it, fellas? Boy, what a day!"

New Jersey Plans State Fund for Indigent Boxers

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP) — Plans for establishment of a state fund to provide for indigent boxers, inspired by the success of a Newark charity ring show, were announced by Abe J. Greene, State Athletic Commissioner.

"I am gathering data from all over the country about similar funds now in operation," said Greene. "I want the administration of New Jersey's fund to be thorough and efficient and so designed as to provide a maximum of assistance for the cause to which it will be devoted."

Greene revealed planning for a permanent fund already was under way, while commenting on the recent benefit boving show at Newark's Laurel Garden, a program which netted $2,857.55 for Henry Lewis, former referee, and Freddie Polo, one of the state's outstanding ex-pugilists.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE LIGHT HEAVYWEIGT

New York, Nov. 15—Billy Conn puts the light heavyweight title on the line for Gus Lesnevich in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night This title doesn't mean anything at the time, although it did once—and may again. Synthetic as it was in the beginning, great fighters have held it or fought for it and that, of course, is what makes a title worth while.

George Gardner—Jack Root—Bob Fitzsimmons — Philadelphia Jack O'Brien—Georges Carpentier—Harry Greb—Gene Tunney—Mike McTigue—Paul Berlenbach—Jack Delaney—these and others over a span of twenty-five years or so made the light heavyweight crown a valuable possession. Then the class declined and dwindled off and the only known light heavies at the moment are Conn and Lesnevich.

Conn is the classiest fighter the division has known since the passing of Delaney and Berlenbach and that crew. If he remained a light heavyweight long enough, the division may build up behind him. But he is eager to be off among the heavyweights and may not linger long, although he hasn't picked up weight as rapidly as he thought he would.

He will be favored over Lesnevich, although this doesn't figure to be an easy fight for him. The New Jersey Russian is fairly clever, has a rugged build and is a good puncher. Overlooked in this sector for a long time and compelled to roam in quest of action, he went across this country and then out to Australia. He has had about fifty fights and lost a few of them, twice being stopped by bad cuts over his eyes. Nobody thought much of him until he knocked out Dave Clark, stable mate of Joe Louis.

Conn Looks Ahead

Actually, main interest in the fight centers on Conn and his showing. Plans for rushing him along into a match with Louis have stalled, fortunately, for the last time he fought here Billy gave no one any reason to believe that he would last very long against the heavyweight kind.

But he still is about the best of the prospects with Lou Nova in eclipse. His chief drawback is his comparative frailness. Put fifteen or twenty pounds on him and give him another year of campaigning and he might be the one they are looking for to beat Louis, or, at least, give him a tussle for more than four rounds.

As he is, there probably aren't three men between him and Louis he can't lick. But the gap between Louis and the others is so great that it would take more than Conn has at present to get him over it.

He doesn't have to have a murderous punch to cope with Louis. Jim Corbett, Jack Johnson, Gene Tunney and Jim Braddock won the championship from men who could outpunch them two or three to one. The fact that Conn probably never will have a punch doesn't matter. But he has to build up better punch resistance, especially in the body, to make him a fit opponent for Louis

The picture tomorrow night then will be that of a young man on his way toward an eventful match with Louis. It may be a very engaging picture—unless Lesnevich, with no regard whatever for art in the prize ring, takes it into his heard to spoil it.

The Australian Threat

On the card will be a stranger who may do something toward building up the light heavyweight class. This is Fred Henneberry, the Australian, making his first start in this country against a trial horse named Georgie Abrams.

Henneberry is fighting as a middleweight now—he is the Australian middleweight champion and, while in London recently, practically was matched with Jock McAvoy for the Empire title when all sporting events were ruled out temporarily by the war. But he can put on a few pounds—or spot a few more—and fight light heavies if he doesn't get a crack at Ceferino Garcia or Al Hostak or both.

As Good As Any

Another arrival on the boxing scene—although scarcely a stranger —is Arturo Godoy, the Chilean, who has been brought back to fight Louis in February. Godoy, not much of a fighter when last seen here, but brave and hardy and durable, twice beat Tony Galento and then went into virtual retirement.

Just how it came about that he was selected as Louis' opponent in a Garden show isn't clear. Probably the best answer is that he is likely to do as well as anybody else, considering the current heavyweight situation.

Gridiron Misfits Are Moulded into Winning Elevens

Maryville, Missouri Teachers Expect To Play in "Brain Bowl" Game

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

Maryville, Mo., Nov. 15 (AP) — A small, flaxen-haired chap assembles gridiron misfits and coaxes them into championship football teams at Maryville Teachers College.

Right now his Bearcats have won seventeen straight games and are being considered for a "Brain Bowl" game between undefeated Teachers College elevens because Ryland Milner didn't have the heart to give two freshmen the "heave-ho" several years ago.

First came Bill Bernau. He had played in his home town of Earlham, Ia., but most coaches thought his 145 pounds too few for college play. But he was issued a suit and hung around.

Bernau didn't play a minute as a sophomore because of an ankle injury, but last year, weighing 185 pounds, he counted ninety-two points for a spot among the nation's leaders.

This season only Paul Christman, the articulate tosser at Missouri University, is spoken of with more reverance than the triple-threatening Bearcat.

But it was Ralph Kurtright, a guard, who brought Maryville its most cherished victory this year. When he matriculated he was handed a football with the suggestion he practice placekicking — a duty which kept him out of the way of those more adept at the sport.

He drilled for three years and last month as a junior booted the field goal that defeated Washington University, present Missouri Valley Conference leader, 9 to 7. He also has rammed home seventeen of nineteen attempted conversions.

With the word that the New Britain, Conn., Teachers are unavailable for the "Brain Bowl," the Slippery Rock, Pa., tutors loom as the opposition for the game, at St. Joseph, Mo.

Gun Club To Hold Turkey Shoot on Tuesday, Nov. 21

The Cumberland Shrine Gun Club will hold a regular practice shoot at the Ali Ghan Shrine club this afternoon at 2 o'clock. This will be the final practice before the big turkey shoot next Tuesday.

An officer of the club said last night that seventy-five invitations have been mailed to trap shooters in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia to participate in the Nov. 21 event.

Fifty turkeys have been obtained and will be offered as prizes.

Redskins Prep for Three Games Ahead

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Fresh from their 42 to 0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in New York, the Washington Redskins are facing the three toughest weeks of their 1939 football campaign with the Chicago Cardinals, Detroit Lions and New York Giants to be met on successive Sundays.

The Cardinals, sparked by Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh's all-American fullback of last season, and Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian University center who also made the mythical dream team, were defeated in New York Sunday by the Giants, but not until after giving the Giants a big scare. Sunday School Court Season To Open Dec. 2

Reorganization Meeting Held; League Will Be Limited to 13 Teams

An organization meeting of the Cumberland Junior Sunday School Basketball League was held last night at the Central Y. M. C. A. with ten teams represented.

Officers re-elected were:

F. R. Brady, Jr., president; Chester Collins, vice-president and Edwin L. Kuhn, secretary-treasurer.

Representatives at the meeting voted to limit the number of teams to thirteen with the season opening Saturday afternoon, Dec. 2. All games will be played on the Y. M. C. A. court.

Rosters of players together with a $5 entrance fee must be in the hands of the secretary and treasurer not later than Monday, November 27.

It was decided that if not more than eight teams enter the league a split season will be played with the winners in each half playing the best two out of three games for the championship. In case there are more than eight teams in the league a single season will be played and the teams finishing in first and second places will play a three-game series for the championship.

This will be the twelfth consecutive season for the Sunday school league.

St. John's won the championship last year by defeating the Presbyterians two straight in the championship series.

Requirements for Players

Requirements for players who wish to participate in the League are as follows:

1—Each applicant must be under sixteen years of age on the date the season opens.

2—No members of a school varsity basketball squad may join the league.

3—Each member of a team must make a seventy-five per cent attendance at Sunday school each month.

4—Players shall not change Sunday schools to play basketball.

Each boy wishing to play must file a written application with the league officers and must have the written consent from his parents or guardian.

Teams were represented by the following persons:

Central Methodist, F. R. Brady, Jr.; Presbyterian, Ray Weatherholt; St. Paul's Lutheran, George Eppler; First Baptist, Richard Twigg; St. John's Lutheran, Chester Collins; Centre Street Methodist, D. G. Paulman; St. Luke's Lutheran, Heroman Koegel; Trinity Methodist, L. W. Wagoner; Grace Baptist, William P. Copeland, and Emmanuel Episcopal, C. A. Murray.

Princeton 9, Harvard 6 Ball Given to Herring

Princetonfi, N. J., Nov. 15—Don Herring received a gift from his Princeton teammates. It was the football used in the victory over Harvard, the game which took place the day after Herring's left leg was amputated.

Captain Bob Tierney made the presentation in the Princeton Hospital. The ball has been shellacked and is inscribed, "Princeton, 9; Harvard, 6. To 'Hook' from his teammates." This is followed by the signatures of all the members of the team, the trainers and coaches.

High Schools Sever Football Relations

Rochester, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP) — Rochester and Monaca high schools today suspended football relations "for the good of the two schools."

The action was announced by the Rochester Board of Education and came after a near-riot at last Saturday's game after a spectator tackled a Rochester player as he sped goalward in the clear.

The audience swarmed on the field and the game could not be resumed, being awarded to Rochester. The score was 12-0 in the winner's favor at the time of the disturbance.

Jock Sutherland Watches Practice Of Mountaineers

Former Pitt Coach Says He Was Just on Pleasure Trip

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, former Pittsburgh Panther coach who has the football world wondering where he is going to hang his hat next season, watched West Virginia's Mountaineers and Yearling football squads practice this afternoon.

West Virginia's coach, Marshall (Sleepy) Glenn has indicated he will retire and grandstand quarterbacks have been picking Bill Kern of Carnegie Tech or Clark Shaughnessey of Chicago for the job.

The quiet Scotsman was accompanied by Harry Moses, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who has shown interest in West Virginia's gridiron future.

"It's just a pleasure trip for me, Dr. Sutherland said as he toured the Mountaineer Stadium with Athletic Director Roy M. Hawley and watched West Virginia's Varsity prepare for the game Saturday at Lexington, Ky., with the University of Kentucky.

Asked whether he intended to coach next year, Sutherland replied: "Just read the newspapers, they seem to know more about it than I do."

A Pittsburgh paper stated last night Sutherland already has signed a contract with an Eastern school. Reports today had that school as Harvard.

Hawley was equally evasive on the importance of the noted coach's visit, insisting "he is here only on a friendly visit to renew old acquaintances."

A close associate of Sutherland, said after the Coach's return to Pittsburgh, there was "absolutely nothing beyond a friendly visit" to the trip here. This source, who would be in a position to know, said he was certain Sutherland would not coach at West Virginia and expressed the opinion he has reached no agreement yet regarding a contract for next year.

Larson Will Stick To Present Backs For Last 2 Games

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Coach Swede Larson will stick to his Navy backfield story for the closing grid encounters with Princeton and Army.

The Swede, when practice resumed tonight after a two-day vacation, said he was satisfied with the work of Tommy Blount, Pat Gray, Monty Whitehead and Sam (Albie) Boothe. Barring injuries, he will keep the quartet together as the starting backs.

Larson explained his decision to use the two rookies, Boothe and Blount, in the backfield with the veterans Whitehead and Gray was based on the cohesion and smoothness of the unit in the Columbia game. The quartet "clicked" better than any Navy four this year.

The decision to use the rookies relegates veteran stars who have missed much of the season through injuries to roles as reserves for spot assignments. Larson said they have missed so much practice they must be saved for special work.

Doc Wood, stubby little Powerhouse injured against Dartmouth, returned to the squad tonight, along with rookie Butch Werner, hurt before the Notre Dame game.

Other first string backfield reserves included Bob Leonard, Wes Gebert and Lou Mayo, all ace offensive threats.

Wesleylan Prepares For Salem Tiger

Buckhannon, W. Va., Nov. 15. (AP) —West Virginia Wesleyan College hoped today to tame the Salem Tiger and thereby avert nine straight defeats for the season.

Already defeated seven times, the Bobcats will meet the Salem aggregation on Saturday before the windup with Marshall. There is slight chance of winning from the Thundering Herd.

And Salem, on the basis of comparative scores, also should win.

Keyser-LaSalle Game Transferred To Cumberland

Game Will Be Played at Fort Hill Stadium Thanksgiving Morning

The LaSalle-Keyser football game scheduled to be played in Keyser Thanksgiving Day has been transferred to Cumberland and will be played at Fort Hill Staduim Thanksgiving morning at 9:45 o'clock.

Announcement of the transfer was made last night by Brother Eugene of LaSalle.

LaSalle has only two more games on its 1939 schedule. Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock LaSalle will play Romney high school at Romney and will be seeking its first victory of the season. The final game will be with Keyser Thanksgiving Day.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 15. (AP) —Win or lose this week-end in Kentucky, West Virginia University's Mountaineers are going to Lexington with the knowledge that at least one student will be on hand daily to watch them practive after they return.

Gay Wise, attractive nineteen-year-old Relay, Md., co-ed, hasn't missed a day's drill this fall, even though the Mountaineers have had a poor season.

"I go out to watch the boys becauses I like the game," said Gay, who sometimes has been the only spectator at practice.

"Then, too, daddy likes to keep posted on his alma mater's team."

'Stay-Home' Ads Tell Ticketless Duke Fans

Durham, N. C. (AP)—Although all tickets for the Duke-North Carolina football game Saturday have been sold since Nov. 1, advertisements of the game appeared in state newspapers today.

But the ads didn't urge people to attend—they urged them to stay home.

"All tickets sold," the ads read, "It is requested that only those who now have tickets plan to attend the game. No standing room tickets will be sold."

A crowd of approximately 52,000 is expected.

Annenberg Stops Racing News Service

Bookmakers in All Sections of Country Cut Off

Operations Ceased after Final Flash on Last Race Yesterday

Results on Bookmaking Will Not Be Known for Sometime

Chicago, Nov. 15. (AP)—Bookmakers in all sections of the nation were cut off M. L. Annenberg's vast racing news network tonight.

The personnel of the Nationwide News Service, which for years had transmitted race entries, odds, running accounts, results and pay-off prices from tracks to thousands of betting rooms, was instructed to cease operations after the final flash on the final race of the day had been dispatched over the far-flung wires of the system.

500 Employes Affected

Hammond Chaffetz, one of his attorneys, reported officials of the concern had been told to stop sending racing data at the close of the day's traffic and that the Western Union and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company had been notified that their facilities would not be needed after tomorrow noon.

He estimated that not more than 500 employes of Nationwide News would be affected by the stoppage.

Dissolution of the race news service may have the greatest impact on speakeasy trade since prohibition's repeal. But the full significance may not be known for some time.

Some bet barons predicted ruin. Others envisioned a sharp slump in trade, possibly as much as fifty per cent. The majority, heads buzzing but unbowed, cast about for new methods of obtaining vital information from the tracks.

Four Plans Suggested

A survey showed that among the projected plans were these:

1. Taking "time bets—accepting wagers one day and paying off the next on the basis of accounts published in newspapers or racing forms.

2. Using public telephone and telegraph lines and air mail.

3. Obtaining reports from a Cuban radio station, "catching" results broadcast by some domestic stations or establishing short wave wireless outfits in turf centers.

4. Assigning agents to posts in or near various tracks to relay information by wire, telephone or wireless to a betting room or to an office serving as a central agency for a number of books.

"Time" bets were in prospect for St. Louis, Detroit, Los Angeles, Pittsubrgh, Salt Lake City, Ft. Worth, Louisville and Little Rock. Salt Lake City bookies said they could get reports by air mail.

Radio and telephone were mentioned as likely mediums of communication in Boston and San Francisco.

May Use Radio

It was suggested in Atlantic City that bookies might arrange to get race accounts from a Cuban broadcasting station which would blanket the U. S., rely on descriptions relayed from small stations in racing towns or return to the old system of "bootleg" Morse wires.

A Pittsburgh bet handler moaned: "I guess we'll have to go on relief now."

Baltimore bet commissioners expected no trouble in getting reports from Maryland tracks. Their Washington brethren, who have had no service from the nationwide system since 1937, obtain their information from a radio boadcast there. New Orleans gamblers, confident they would "find a way," were of this opinion:

"There's too much money involved for the handbooks to take the count lying down."

Attorney Weymouth Kirland said that her Annenberg interests, including the Daily Racing Form, would not be affected by abandonment of the Race Service.

Annenberg, who is publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer and a number of magazines, and eighteen of the nineteen men named with him in a series of indictments returned here last summer, appeared in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court room today while their attorneys began a fight against the charges.

They filed pleas in abatement attacking the validity of indictments charging evasion of income taxes and conspiracy, to further a lottery and arings on the motions were set for Nov. 27.

SEEKS CONN'S TITLE

Here is Gus Lesnevich, lightheavy from Cliffside, N. J., who meets Billy Conn, 175-pound champion, for Conn's title in New York, Nov. 17.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Nov. 15. (AP)—He sizzles all summer and goes on ice during the winter, so it all evens up for Bill Stewart, although he'll admit with a little prodding that the wear and tear of hockey officiating is a little greater than in baseball umpiring.

Bill Stewart umpires in the National Baseball League during the summer, and this year, after a couple of years as a team manager, is back refereeing in the National Ice Hockey League.

He's quite a chunk of man — five feet six inches tall and weighing 182. He's baldish, his drooping eyelids have fooled many an athlete who thought he could get by with something, and he has a square jaw and nice white teeth which he grits in a "just try it once" manner. In brief, he's tough.

"In hockey," he explains, "the fans are more keyed up and rabid, and they're right on top of you. Also, you have to keep your eye on twelve men. However, when you lose eight pounds on a hot day behind the bat in St. Louis it's no fun either."

Stewart was a baseball pitcher in his day. He was with the White Sox briefly in 1919. He hurt his arm, and was farmed to Louisville, where he played under Joe McCarthy.

He managed clubs at Waterbury, Conn., and Springfield, Mass., in 1930 before taking up umpiring. He came to the National League from the New York-Penn League after brief apprenticeship, and has been in the big show six years.

His hockey history is more colorful. After playing a little on scrub teams, he started officiating amateur games in 1922, and in 1926 broke into pro officiating in the Canadian-American circuit. He joined the National League staff in 1929.

In 1937 he took over the manager's job with the Chicago Blackhawks, and astonished the hockey world by piloting a conglomeration of cast-offs and misfits to victory in the Stanley Cup series.

"Four or five of them had been turned loose and couldn't get any other job," he explains, "but we had marvelous spirit."

He was fired in the middle of the next season, and the Blackhawks abruptly lost twenty-three of their next twenty-seven games. This year he's back calling 'em as he sees 'em.

Stewart has never been attacked by a hockey or baseball player, but his troubles with fans have been too numerous to enumerate.

"Once," he recalls, "I was umpiring at York in the N. Y.-Penn League when 200 or 300 brave men got me down and started kicking me. They drove them off with tear gas, but they exploded it right in my face, durn 'em."

Let the players know who is boss, Stewart says, and you'll have no trouble. Incidentally, he has great respect for Ching Johnson, veteran now in the American Hockey Association.

Four-Star Edition Of "Screwy News" From Gridirons

Fordham Coach Sends Word by Indiana Player To Tell Rams To Punt

BY BILL BONI

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Being another four-star edition of football's "Screwy News," with at least three and a half stars and an honorary appointment as head screwball to Fordham's Jim Crowley for the following lead-off anecdote:

With about two minutes to go in the Indiana game, Fordham had the ball down on the Hoosier twenty-yard line. His third team was in the game, so Crowley had told the quarterback not to kick, even on fourth down it might be blocked, and Indiana might run it back for a score.

But a few plays later, with a bad center pass and some penalties, the Rams were back near mid-field. Crowley had just sent in his last few subs and was turning back toward the bench, when one of the Indiana boys on the field sang out:

"Hi, Jimmy, how're things back home in Green Bay?"

"Okay," said Crowley. "Say, go over and tell my quarterback to kick now, will you?"

"Right," said the Indiana boy, who ran into the Fordham huddle, whispered to Crowley's quarterback, then went back to his place at left tackle—and darned near blocked the punt which, sure enough, the quarterback called.

Johnny Schiechl, Santa Clara's standout 220-pound center, tells this one on himself. In the Stanford game he broke through the Stanford line to spill Norm Standlee, Stanford's seldom-stopped fullback, for a loss.

Said Schiechl: "Too bad, son."

Said Standlee: "Yeah, I guess I've been over-publicized."

Diamond Joe Paglia, who used to punt 'em into the coffin center for Santa Clara and now coaches St. Martin's College of Lacey, Wash., probably is the first coach on record to lose a player in an earthquake.

Sunday night Nig Jundel, one of the best ends, was sitting in on a dormitory bull session complaining about a charley horse in his right leg. The building started to shake in the grip of an earthquake. Jundel, in spite of that charley horse, was the first man out of the room and headed for the stairs. Suddenly there was a dull thud, and there was Jundel at the foot of the stairs, with a badly-wrenched left knee to match his right leg's charley horse.

At Gilbert High of Winsted, Conn., two high school teams were playing on a field that, because rains had swelled an adjoining brook, was under two feet (honest measure) of water. The teams insisted on playing, and the officials couldn't very well stop them.

In came a sub wearing a nice, fresh uniform. Advised by the referee that it wouldn't stay that way long, the kid said:

"Well, I might as well get used to these conditions," took a header into the water and came up with:

Missouri's Paul Christian gave 30,000 New York customers a great display of his football prowess last Saturday and gave the New York U. players a good idea of why he's called the gridiron's Dizzy Dean. On almost every time out, pitchin' Paul would walk over to the N. Y. U.'ers, slap 'em on the back and say:

"Great day for a game, isn't it, fellas? Boy, what a day!"

New Jersey Plans State Fund for Indigent Boxers

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP) — Plans for establishment of a state fund to provide for indigent boxers, inspired by the success of a Newark charity ring show, were announced by Abe J. Greene, State Athletic Commissioner.

"I am gathering data from all over the country about similar funds now in operation," said Greene. "I want the administration of New Jersey's fund to be thorough and efficient and so designed as to provide a maximum of assistance for the cause to which it will be devoted."

Greene revealed planning for a permanent fund already was under way, while commenting on the recent benefit boving show at Newark's Laurel Garden, a program which netted $2,857.55 for Henry Lewis, former referee, and Freddie Polo, one of the state's outstanding ex-pugilists.

Gridiron Misfits Are Moulded into Winning Elevens

Maryville, Missouri Teachers Expect To Play in "Brain Bowl" Game

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

Maryville, Mo., Nov. 15 (AP) — A small, flaxen-haired chap assembles gridiron misfits and coaxes them into championship football teams at Maryville Teachers College.

Right now his Bearcats have won seventeen straight games and are being considered for a "Brain Bowl" game between undefeated Teachers College elevens because Ryland Milner didn't have the heart to give two freshmen the "heave-ho" several years ago.

First came Bill Bernau. He had played in his home town of Earlham, Ia., but most coaches thought his 145 pounds too few for college play. But he was issued a suit and hung around.

Bernau didn't play a minute as a sophomore because of an ankle injury, but last year, weighing 185 pounds, he counted ninety-two points for a spot among the nation's leaders.

This season only Paul Christman, the articulate tosser at Missouri University, is spoken of with more reverance than the triple-threatening Bearcat.

But it was Ralph Kurtright, a guard, who brought Maryville its most cherished victory this year. When he matriculated he was handed a football with the suggestion he practice placekicking — a duty which kept him out of the way of those more adept at the sport.

He drilled for three years and last month as a junior booted the field goal that defeated Washington University, present Missouri Valley Conference leader, 9 to 7. He also has rammed home seventeen of nineteen attempted conversions.

With the word that the New Britain, Conn., Teachers are unavailable for the "Brain Bowl," the Slippery Rock, Pa., tutors loom as the opposition for the game, at St. Joseph, Mo.

Redskins Prep for Three Games Ahead

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—Fresh from their 42 to 0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in New York, the Washington Redskins are facing the three toughest weeks of their 1939 football campaign with the Chicago Cardinals, Detroit Lions and New York Giants to be met on successive Sundays.

The Cardinals, sparked by Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh's all-American fullback of last season, and Ki Aldrich, Texas Christian University center who also made the mythical dream team, were defeated in New York Sunday by the Giants, but not until after giving the Giants a big scare. Max Krause, Redskins' assistant coach who scouted the Cardinals, was impressed by the offensive power of Goldberg and Jack Robbins, the former Arkansas passer.

Many of the Cardinal plays are run from the spread formation, and Coach Flaherty plans to stress a spread defense to combat both the running of Goldberg and the passing of Robbins from this formation.

Phils Willing To Trade All but Two Pitchers

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP)—Gerry Nugent said the Phillies will trade anybody on the club except Hugh Mulcahy and Walter Kirby Higbe, pitchers, if such a move will help the last-place Phils.

"If we can get two or three good hitters in exchange for Morrie Arnovich (star outfielder), or somebody else, we'll snap them up," Nugent declared. "We need more punch if the Phils are going to move up a notch of two next season.

THE LIGHT HEAVYWEIGT

New York, Nov. 15—Billy Conn puts the light heavyweight title on the line for Gus Lesnevich in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. This title doesn't mean anything at the time, although it did once—and may again. Synthetic as it was in the beginning, great fighters have held it or fought for it and that, of course, is what makes a title worth while.

George Gardner—Jack Root—Bob Fitzsimmons — Philadelphia Jack O'Brien—Georges Carpentier—Harry Greb—Gene Tunney—Mike McTigue—Paul Berlenbach—Jack Delaney—these and others over a span of twenty-five years or so made the light heavyweight crown a valuable possession. Then the class declined and dwindled off and the only known light heavies at the moment are Conn and Lesnevich.

Conn is the classiest fighter the division has known since the passing of Delaney and Berlenbach and that crew. If he remained a light heavyweight long enough, the division may build up behind him. But he is eager to be off among the heavyweights and may not linger long, although he hasn't picked up weight as rapidly as he thought he would.

He will be favored over Lesnevich, although this doesn't figure to be an easy fight for him. The New Jersey Russian is fairly clever, has a rugged build and is a good puncher. Overlooked in this sector for a long time and compelled to roam in quest of action, he went across this country and then out to Australia. He has had about fifty fights and lost a few of them, twice being stopped by bad cuts over his eyes. Nobody thought much of him until he knocked out Dave Clark, stable mate of Joe Louis.

Conn Looks Ahead

Actually, main interest in the fight centers on Conn and his showing. Plans for rushing him along into a match with Louis have stalled, fortunately, for the last time he fought here Billy gave no one any reason to believe that he would last very long against the heavyweight kind.

But he still is about the best of the prospects with Lou Nova in eclipse. His chief drawback is his comparative frailness. Put fifteen or twenty pounds on him and give him another year of campaigning and he might be the one they are looking for to beat Louis, or, at least, give him a tussle for more than four rounds.

As he is, there probably aren't three men between him and Louis he can't lick. But the gap between Louis and the others is so great that it would take more than Conn has at present to get him over it.

He doesn't have to have a murderous punch to cope with Louis. Jim Corbett, Jack Johnson, Gene Tunney and Jim Braddock won the championship from men who could outpunch them two or three to one. The fact that Conn probably never will have a punch doesn't matter. But he has to build up better punch resistance, especially in the body, to make him a fit opponent for Louis.

On his side now are his cleverness, his absolute gameness and his street-bred love of fighting. Here, despite his almost angelic countenance, is an old-time street fighter to whom a brawl is heart's delight.

The picture tomorrow night then will be that of a young man on his way toward an eventful match with Louis. It may be a very engaging picture—unless Lesnevich, with no regard whatever for art in the prize ring, takes it into his heard to spoil it.

The Australian Threat

On the card will be a stranger who may do something toward building up the light heavyweight class. This is Fred Henneberry, the Australian, making his first start in this country against a trial horse named Georgie Abrams.

Henneberry is fighting as a middleweight now—he is the Australian middleweight champion and, while in London recently, practically was matched with Jock McAvoy for the Empire title when all sporting events were ruled out temporarily by the war. But he can put on a few pounds—or spot a few more—and fight light heavies if he doesn't get a crack at Ceferino Garcia or Al Hostak or both.

As Good As Any

Another arrival on the boxing scene—although scarcely a stranger—is Arturo Godoy, the Chilean, who has been brought back to fight Louis in February. Godoy, not much of a fighter when last seen here, but brave and hardy and durable, twice beat Tony Galento and then went into virtual retirement.

Just how it came about that he was selected as Louis' opponent in a Garden show isn't clear. Probably the best answer is that he is likely to do as well as anybody else, considering the current heavyweight situation.

Sunday School Court Season To Open Dec. 2

Reorganization Meeting Held; League Will Be Limited to 13 Teams

An organization meeting of the Cumberland Junior Sunday School Basketball League was held last night at the Central Y. M. C. A. with ten teams represented.

Officers re-elected were:

F. R. Brady, Jr., president; Chester Collins, vice-president and Edwin L. Kuhn, secretary-treasurer.

Representatives at the meeting voted to limit the number of teams to thirteen with the season opening Saturday afternoon, Dec. 2. All games will be played on the Y. M. C. A. court.

Rosters of players together with a $5 entrance fee must be in the hands of the secretary and treasurer not later than Monday, November 27.

It was decided that if not more than eight teams enter the league a split season will be played with the winners in each half playing the best two out of three games for the championship. In case there are more than eight teams in the league a single season will be played and the teams finishing in first and second places will play a three-game series for the championship.

This will be the twelfth consecutive season for the Sunday school league.

St. John's won the championship last year by defeating the Presbyterians two straight in the championship series.

Requirements for Players

Requirements for players who wish to participate in the League are as follows:

1—Each applicant must be under sixteen years of age on the date the season opens.

Princeton 9, Harvard 6 Ball Given to Herring

Princetonfi, N. J., Nov. 15—Don Herring received a gift from his Princeton teammates. It was the football used in the victory over Harvard, the game which took place the day after Herring's left leg was amputated.

Captain Bob Tierney made the presentation in the Princeton Hospital. The ball has been shellacked and is inscribed, "Princeton, 9; Harvard, 6. To 'Hook' from his teammates." This is followed by the signatures of all the members of the team, the trainers and coaches.

High Schools Sever Football Relations

Rochester, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP) — Rochester and Monaca high schools today suspended football relations "for the good of the two schools."

The action was announced by the Rochester Board of Education and came after a near-riot at last Saturday's game after a spectator tackled a Rochester player as he sped goalward in the clear.

The audience swarmed on the field and the game could not be resumed, being awarded to Rochester. The score was 12-0 in the winner's favor at the time of the disturbance.

Jock Sutherland Watches Practice Of Mountaineers

Former Pitt Coach Says He Was Just on Pleasure Trip

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, former Pittsburgh Panther coach who has the football world wondering where he is going to hang his hat next season, watched West Virginia's Mountaineers and Yearling football squads practice this afternoon.

West Virginia's coach, Marshall (Sleepy) Glenn has indicated he will retire and grandstand quarterbacks have been picking Bill Kern of Carnegie Tech or Clark Shaughnessey of Chicago for the job.

The quiet Scotsman was accompanied by Harry Moses, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who has shown interest in West Virginia's gridiron future.

"It's just a pleasure trip for me, Dr. Sutherland said as he toured the Mountaineer Stadium with Athletic Director Roy M. Hawley and watched West Virginia's Varsity prepare for the game Saturday at Lexington, Ky., with the University of Kentucky.

Asked whether he intended to coach next year, Sutherland replied: "Just read the newspapers, they seem to know more about it than I do."

A Pittsburgh paper stated last night Sutherland already has signed a contract with an Eastern school. Reports today had that school as Harvard.

Hawley was equally evasive on the importance of the noted coach's visit, insisting "he is here only on a friendly visit to renew old acquaintances."

A close associate of Sutherland, said after the Coach's return to Pittsburgh, there was "absolutely nothing beyond a friendly visit" to the trip here. This source, who would be in a position to know, said he was certain Sutherland would not coach at West Virginia and expressed the opinion he has reached no agreement yet regarding a contract for next year.

Larson Will Stick To Present Backs For Last 2 Games

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (AP)—Coach Swede Larson will stick to his Navy backfield story for the closing grid encounters with Princeton and Army.

The Swede, when practice resumed tonight after a two-day vacation, said he was satisfied with the work of Tommy Blount, Pat Gray, Monty Whitehead and Sam (Albie) Boothe. Barring injuries, he will keep the quartet together as the starting backs.

Larson explained his decision to use the two rookies, Boothe and Blount, in the backfield with the veterans Whitehead and Gray was based on the cohesion and smoothness of the unit in the Columbia game. The quartet "clicked" better than any Navy four this year.

The decision to use the rookies relegates veteran stars who have missed much of the season through injuries to roles as reserves for spot assignments. Larson said they have missed so much practice they must be saved for special work.

Doc Wood, stubby little Powerhouse injured against Dartmouth, returned to the squad tonight, along with rookie Butch Werner, hurt before the Notre Dame game.

Other first string backfield reserves included Bob Leonard, Wes Gebert and Lou Mayo, all ace offensive threats.

Wesleyan Prepares For Salem Tiger

Buckhannon, W. Va., Nov. 15. (AP)—West Virginia Wesleyan College hoped today to tame the Salem Tiger and thereby avert nine straight defeats for the season.

Already defeated seven times, the Bobcats will meet the Salem aggregation on Saturday before the windup with Marshall. There is slight chance of winning from the Thundering Herd.

And Salem, on the basis of comparative scores, also should win.

Keyser-LaSalle Game Transferred To Cumberland

Game Will Be Played at Fort Hill Stadium Thanksgiving Morning

The LaSalle-Keyser football game scheduled to be played in Keyser Thanksgiving Day has been transferred to Cumberland and will be played at Fort Hill Staduim Thanksgiving morning at 9:45 o'clock.

Announcement of the transfer was made last night by Brother Eugene of LaSalle.

LaSalle has only two more games on its 1939 schedule. Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock LaSalle will play Romney high school at Romney and will be seeking its first victory of the season. The final game will be with Keyser Thanksgiving Day.

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 15. (AP)—Win or lose this week-end in Kentucky, West Virginia University's Mountaineers are going to Lexington with the knowledge that at least one student will be on hand daily to watch them practive after they return.

Gay Wise, attractive nineteen-year-old Relay, Md., co-ed, hasn't missed a day's drill this fall, even though the Mountaineers have had a poor season.

"I go out to watch the boys because I like the game," said Gay, who sometimes has been the only spectator at practice.

'Stay-Home' Ads Tell Ticketless Duke Fans

Durham, N. C. (AP)—Although all tickets for the Duke-North Carolina football game Saturday have been sold since Nov. 1, advertisements of the game appeared in state newspapers today.

But the ads didn't urge people to attend—they urged them to stay home.

"All tickets sold," the ads read, "It is requested that only those who now have tickets plan to attend the game. No standing room tickets will be sold."

A crowd of approximately 52,000 is expected.

Kayak II Wins the Added Bowie Handicap

New Record for Mile and Five Eights Is Set

Howard Horse Winds up Eastern Campaign in Blaze of Glory

Purse of $9,850 Boosts Winnings to $170,875 For Year

By MASON BRUNSON

Baltimore, Nov. 15. (AP)—Kayak II, the pride of the Pampas, wound up his Eastern racing campaign in a blaze of glory today by winning the $10,000-added Bowie Handicap at Pimlico in record time.

The Argentine thoroughbred owned by C. S. Howard raced to an easy two-length victory over A. G. Vanderbilt's Heelfly and covered the mile and five-eighths grind in 2:44 2-5, clipping four-fifths of a second off the mark set by Esposa in 1937.

In some measure, the victory atoned for Kayak's defeat by W. L. Brann's Challedon in the Pimlico Special, for Challedon's stablemate, Challephen, was back in third place, eating Kayak's dust at the finish. Vanderbilt's Nedayr was fourth in the field of eight.

It was a grand climax to Kayak's Eastern campaign and the winner's purse of $9,850 boosted his 1939 earnings to $170,875—a mark exceeded only by Challedon. The Howard star soon will go West to prepare for the Santa Anita Handicap.

A crowd of about 10,000, out to watch the closing-day feature of Pimlico's fall meeting, backed Kayak into odds-on favoritism and he returned only $2.60, $2.50 and $2.30 for $2 mutuels tickets.

Pro Golfers Elect Tom Walsh Leader

"New Deal" Dealt by Association in Harmonious Session

BY EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association, in a surprisingly speedy and harmonious session, dealt itself a "New Deal" today.

The delegates installed an entirely new slate of major officers, choosing Tom Walsh of Chicago as president, succeeding George Jacobus of Ridgewood, N. J.; elected Capt. Charles Clarke of Willoughby, O., secretary; and named as treasurer William Maguire, Houston, Tex.

But where one of the stormiest elective sessions in P.G.A. history was anticipated, the direct opposite situation materialized. Jacobus, finishing his seventh term as president, formally announced his decision against running again and this was followed by the quick nomination of Walsh and Ed Dudley of Philadelphia as the only candidates.

The count was forty-five votes for Walsh, National secretary for several years, to twenty-two for Dudley, a vice president of the organization and chairman of its tournament committee. The "Denny Shute incident" did not produce the expected fireworks, but some observers saw traces of its influence in Walsh's election. Walsh was on the executive committee which last summer ruled Shute ineligible for the P.G.A. championship, a ruling which Jacobus overrode.

The harmonious elective session, it was learned, was no accident. Apparently realizing the Shute case came dangerously close to wrecking their championship last summer, the teaching pros and tournament players did a quick job of burying the hatchet. At least three delegates expressed "regret" over the incident in pre-election talks.

Vandy Will Be Laying for the Vols Saturday

Records Often Go Right Out the Window When Teams Clash

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 15 (AP) — Shakespeare wasn't writing about the top-ranked Tennessee football team when he said: "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

But the bard couldn't have done better in describing the mental plight of the nation's No. 1 club as the time nears for its traditional scrap with the Vanderbilt Commodores Saturday before some 25,000 spectators.

Often the records go right out the window when these old foes meet, even though Tennessee can parade fourteen backfield stars — who average three yards or more each time they carry the ball — behind a line that has thrown up a perfect defense.

Rumblings from the crash of Ohio State, Notre Dame and Michigan in upsets have reached the Vols who are roaring along a victory trail strewn with twenty-one consecutive victims.

And Vandy may be the team to razzle-dazzle the Vols into defeat. The Commodores have scored on every opponent this year, even though they have won only twice in eight starts.

"We're on the psychological spot for an upset," said Head Coach Bob Neyland. "Vanderbilt always plays best against Tennessee and they certainly are gunning for us this year."

Putting aside the mental acrobatics that football players are subject to in these traditional scraps, however, Vandy has perhaps the toughest assignment of any team in the country in trying to check Tennessee's march.

Kayak II Wins the Added Bowie Handicap

New Record for Mile and Five Eights Is Set

Howard Horse Winds up Eastern Campaign in Blaze of Glory

By MASON BRUNSON

Baltimore, Nov. 15. (AP)—Kayak II, the pride of the Pampas, wound up his Eastern racing campaign in a blaze of glory today by winning the $10,000-added Bowie Handicap at Pimlico in record time.

The Argentine thoroughbred owned by C. S. Howard raced to an easy two-length victory over A. G. Vanderbilt's Heelfly and covered the mile and five-eighths grind in 2:44 2-5, clipping four-fifths of a second off the mark set by Esposa in 1937.

In some measure, the victory atoned for Kayak's defeat by W. L. Brann's Challedon in the Pimlico Special, for Challedon's stablemate, Challephen, was back in third place, eating Kayak's dust at the finish. Vanderbilt's Nedayr was fourth, in the field of eight.

"It was a grand climax to Kayak's Eastern campaign and the winner's purse of $9,850 boosted his 1939 earnings to $170,875—a mark exceeded only by Challedon. The Howard star soon will go West to prepare for the Santa Anita Handicap.

A crowd of about 10,000, out to watch the closing-day feature of Pimlico's fall meeting, backed Kayak into odds-on favoritism and he returned only $2.80, $2.50 and $2.30 for $2 mutuels tickets.

Pro Golfers Elect Tom Walsh Leader

"New Deal" Dealt by Association in Harmonious Session

BY EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association, in a surprisingly speedy and harmonious session, dealt itself a "New Deal" today.

The delegates installed an entirely new slate of major officers, choosing Tom Walsh of Chicago as president, succeeding George Jacobus of Ridgewood, N. J.; elected Capt. Charles Clarke of Willoughby, O., secretary; and named as treasurer William Maguire, Houston, Tex.

But where one of the stormiest elective sessions in P.G.A. history was anticipated, the direct opposite situation materialized. Jacobus, finishing his seventh term as president, formally announced his decision against running again and this was followed by the quick nomination of Walsh and Ed Dudley of Philadelphia as the only candidates.

The count was forty-five votes for Walsh, National secretary for several years, to twenty-two for Dudley, a vice president of the organization and chairman of its tournament committee. The "Denny Shute incident" did not produce the expected fireworks, but some observers saw traces of its influence in Walsh's election. Walsh was on the executive committee which last summer ruled Shute ineligible for the P.G.A. championship, a ruling which Jacobus overrode.

The harmonious elective session, it was learned, was no accident. Apparently realizing the Shute case came dangerously close to wrecking their championship last summer, the teaching pros and tournament players did a quick job of burying the hatchet. At least three delegates expressed "regret" over the incident in pre-election talks.

Vandy Will Be Laying for the Vols Saturday

Records Often Go Right Out the Window When Teams Clash

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 15 (AP)—Shakespeare wasn't writing about the top-ranked Tennessee football team when he said: "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

But the bard couldn't have done better in describing the mental plight of the nation's No. 1 club as the time nears for its traditional scrap with the Vanderbilt Commodores Saturday before some 25,000 spectators.

Often the records go right out the window when these old foes meet, even though Tennessee can parade fourteen backfield stars—who average three yards or more each time they carry the ball—behind a line that has thrown up a perfect defense.

Rumblings from the crash of Ohio State, Notre Dame and Michigan in upsets have reached the Vols who are roaring along a victory trail strewn with twenty-one consecutive victims.

And Vandy may be the team to razzle-dazzle the Vols into defeat. The Commodores have scored on every opponent this year, even though they have won only twice in eight starts.

"We're on the psychological spot for an upset," said Head Coach Bob Neyland. "Vanderbilt always plays best against Tennessee and they certainly are gunning for us this year."

Fine Points In Football

Filed Down By Our Expert

By JOHN LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance

New York, Nov. 15—Lardner's information service takes this opportunity to come to the aid of the thousands of coaches, fans, and subdebutantes who have questions to ask about football, willy-nilly!

Dear Sir—I have been coaching at dear old Sebago College for six years, and getting along pretty well, but just lately we have decided to schedule an opponent, and I am anxious to brush up on my football data so as to put the boys on the field in a position to give a good account of themselves and win the ball game for the Beige and Cherry of old Sebago. Can you straighten me out on the following points:

1. What is the difference between a touchback and a touchdown?
2. What is meant by the expression, "Two minutes to go"?
3. Is a coach eligible?
4. What is the flat zone?

1. Most coaches prefer the touchdown to the touchback. Pop Warner was the first to see and make use of the great advantages of the touchdown. He points out that it counts six points, which can make a mighty important difference in the outcome of the game. Mighty important.

2. "Two minutes to go" means that you have less than three minutes to go.

3. If a coach is making more than $5,000 a year, he is highly eligible. I would call him the catch of the season. In fact, I will call him the catch of the season.

4. The flat zone will take care of itself.

Dear Mr. Lardner—My friends and I are in favor of putting the goal posts back where they were. How do you feel about that?—Dartmouth '13.

Answer:—If you are the fellows who took those goal posts, by all means put them back. I know it seemed like a lark at the time, but those things cost money, '13, old man.

Dear Sir—Please explain the 6-2-21 defense.—Heartbroken.

Answer:—I hardly know what to say about the 6-2-2-1 defense that hasn't been said already. The 1-2-2-6 defense is favored by many coaches as being more picturesque, and the 3-3-2-½-2-2-½ as more confusing, but give me the old 6-2-2-1 every time. It combines the friendliness of the 9-1-1 with the savior faire of the 8-2-1. The 7-5-2-2 is more impregnable, but calls for five extra people who may be hard to get at the last minute.

Dear Sir—What is th edifference? —Curious.

Dear Mr. Lardner—What constitutes clipping?—Third Offender.

Answer:—You put me in mind of a very droll anecdote that came off between Fielding Yost and Bob Zuppke, one year when Zuppke's team was absolutely unable to score. In fact, it hadn't made a first down all season.

Zuppke ("Zup," or "Bob," or "Zuppke" to his friends) was brooding about this one day when Yost happened to bump into him by accident on an Erie railroad siding.

"Sorry," said the big fellow. "No offense."

Dear Sir—Can you get me seats on the fifty-yard line for the Rose Bowl game?—Recent Father.

Answer:—Yes, I can, but, the first time they run a play over your position, you'll wish you was back in that grandstand, chum.

Just a Case of Mistaken Identity

New York—The favorite boxing story of Dumb Dan Morgan, former manager of Jack Britton, concerns the young heavyweight who approached him upon getting out of the ring and asked, "What do you think of my boxing"

"Random, hell," said the novice, "that was Kid Smith!"

Stocks Close Lower as Wave of Profit-Taking Wipes out Gains

Gains of a Point or More Not Held by Leading Issues

It was a professional traders market, with little investing operation apparent. During the morning, quotations rose timidly, with leaders gaining as much as a point or so. Still, no real money appeared and speculators took their profits and went home for the day, leaving prices sagging by fractions.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks declined .1 of a point at 51.5. Transactions totaled 634,980 shares compared with 775,240 yesterday.

One of the day's most consistent buys was Goodrich which held more than a point advance on the declaration of its first common stock dividend in two years.

Henry Busse Orchestra At Maryland Monday

Although Henry Busse's orchestra, which comes to the Maryland Theatre stage this Monday for one day only through arrangements with the Music Corporation of America is best known by the maestro's famous trumpet, the band has several other distinguishing features outstanding of which is the shuffle rhythm. This, as the title implies, is a rhythmic shuffling effect gained through a slight anticipation of each beat.

The pianist plays the bass, four beats to a measure, anticipating each direct beat by a fraction, and is followed by the bass player. The drummer adds to the beat by using his wire brushes on the snare drum playing the same beats as the piano and bass, added in musical language, an extra "grace note" just before the bass beat.

The Busse style clicked from the start, and is best evidenced by Henry's all-time record engagement of three and one-half years in Chicago's Chez Paree, as well as extensive engagements all over the United States.

Featured with the Busse Band are Billy Sherman, vocalist; Ducky Young, comic vocalist; and the Three Strikes, vocal trio.

"The Cat and Canary" Opens Today at Strand

In the matter of transforming a great mystery play to the screen—the play in question being John Willard's famous "The Cat and the Canary" — Paramount has made every effort to make it the greatest comedy-mystery of the year. For when the picture opens today at the Strand Theatre, none other than Bob Hope, leading screen, radio and stage comedian, will be seen in one of the starring roles, and lovely Paulette Goddard will be playing the starring role opposite him.

Paramount didn't stop there. With Bob in the cast, there had to be plenty of gags, and according to all reports, Bob is at his gagging best in this one. As for a foil for his gags, could there be a lovelier one than Paulette Goddard?

But to get down to the story. It tells, briefly, how seven people come to a lonely mansion in the Louisiana bayous to hear the will of a man who died ten years before, how one —Paulette Goddard—is named heiress, and how before the picture reaches its startling climax, she is driven half-mad by "The Cat," a murderous, hairy creature who reaches out of panels in the wall, murders one of the company, and terrorizes even wise-cracking Bob. In the supporting cast are such favorites as John Beal, Douglas Montgomery, Gale Sondergaard, Elizabeth Patteson and George Zucco.

"Girl From Rio" and "Battle of Greed"

Closing today at the Embassy Theatre is the double feature attraction "Girl From Rio" and Tom Keene in the western drama "Battle of Greed" with Gwynne Shipman and James Bush. In addition to the two feature hits you will see another chapter of the serial "Scouts to the Rescue."

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy Theatre will be the No. 1 singing and shootin' star, Gene Autry, in the musical western hit "In Old Monterey," with Smiley Burnette and a great supporting cast. The second feature will be John Gallaudet and Iris Meredith in "Murder Is News." Also will be seen another chapter of "Mandrake, the Magician," with Warren Hull in the starring role.

"The Flying Deuces" Has Plenty of Laughs

Laurel and Hardy again provide good, down to earth slapstick on the screen in their latest picture, "The Flying Deuces," which opened yesterday at the Liberty Theatre. This laugh-provoking comedy proves to be one of the best of their long career. There is little reliance on gags. Instead, the comedians have resorted to that excellent brand of pantomime which distinguished them during their earlier years.

It might be suggested here that those who see the picture pay particular attention to the musical score. Music has been used to excellent advantage to augment the comedy situations, and has more than substituted for the gags that are so commonly relied on in such pieces.

The story concerns a couple of tourists in Paris, who through unrequited love for a girl, join the French Foreign Legion to forget her Given the dirtiest jobs in the regiment, they finally rebel, only to be charged with desertion. Sentenced to death, they escape in an endurance airplane. As a couple of novice fliers, they make the most of comedy opportunities, finally crashing. The climax of the picture is best left unrevealed. It neatly caps the generous series of comedy situations.

As the French girl with whom Hardy is in love, Jean Parker re-

Fine Points In Football Filed Down By Our Expert

By JOHN LARDNER
Released by North American Newspaper Alliance

New York, Nov. 15—Lardner's information service takes this opportunity to come to the aid of the thousands of coaches, fans, and subdebutantes who have questions to ask about football, willy-nilly!

Dear Sir—I have been coaching at dear old Sebago College for six years, and getting along pretty well, but just lately we have decided to schedule an opponent, and I am anxious to brush up on my football data so as to put the boys on the field in a position to give a good account of themselves and win the ball game for the Beige and Cherry of old Sebago. Can you straighten me out on the following points:

1. What is the difference between a touchback and a touchdown?
2. What is meant by the expression, "Two minutes to go"?
3. Is a coach eligible?
4. What is the flat zone?

Nobody was more surprised than I was when we scheduled an opponent, so picture my embarrassment.—L. J. W.

Answer:—I will be glad to help Sebago out in this emergency, Coach. Taking your questions one at a time ,here is the correct dope:

1. Most coaches prefer the touchdown to the touchback. Pop Warner was the first to see and make use of the great advantages of the touchdown. He points out that it counts six points, which can make a mighty important difference in the outcome of the game. Mighty important.

2. "Two minutes to go" means that you have less than three minutes to go.

3. If a coach is making more than $5,000 a year, he is highly eligible. I would call him the catch of the season. In fact, I will call him the catch of the season.

4. The flat zone will take care of itself.

Dear Mr. Lardner—My friends and I are in favor of putting the goal posts back where they were. How do you feel about that?—Dartmouth '13.

Answer:—If you are the fellows who took those goal posts, by all means put them back. I know it seemed like a lark at the time, but those things cost money, '13, old man.

Dear Sir—Please explain the 6-2-21 defense.—Heartbroken.

Answer:—I hardly know what to say about the 6-2-2-1 defense that hasn't been said already. The 1-2-2-6 defense is favored by many coaches as being more picturesque, and the 3-3-2-½-2-2-½ as more confusing, but give me the old 6-2-2-1 every time. It combines the friendliness of the 9-1-1 with the savior faire of the 8-2-1. The 7-5-2-2 is more impregnable, but calls for five extra people who may be hard to get at the last minute.

Dear Sir—What is th edifference? —Curious.

Dear Mr. Lardner—What constitutes clipping?—Third Offender.

Answer:—You put me in mind of a very droll anecdote that came off between Fielding Yost and Bob Zuppke, one year when Zuppke's team was absolutely unable to score. In fact, it hadn't made a first down all season.

Zuppke ("Zup," or "Bob," or "Zuppke" to his friends) was brooding about this one day when Yost happened to bump into him by accident on an Erie railroad siding.

"Sorry," said the big fellow. "No offense."

"You're telling me!" said Zuppke, quick as a flash.

Both men laughed heartily.

Dear Sir—Can you get me seats on the fifty-yard line for the Rose Bowl game?—Recent Father.

Answer:—Yes, I can, but, the first time they run a play over your position, you'll wish you was back in that grandstand, chum.

Just a Case of Mistaken Identity

New York—The favorite boxing story of Dumb Dan Morgan, former manager of Jack Britton, concerns the young heavyweight who approached him upon getting out of the ring and asked, "What do you think of my boxing"

"You punched too much at random," said Dan.

"Random, hell," said the novice, "that was Kid Smith!"

Stocks Close Lower as Wave of Profit-Taking Wipes out Gains

Gains of a Point or More Not Held by Leading Issues

New York, Nov. 15 (AP) — Stock prices ended slightly lower today under the weight of profit-taking which wiped out a three-hour advance.

It was a professional traders market, with little investing operation apparent. During the morning, quotations rose timidly, with leaders gaining as much as a point or so. Still, no real money appeared and speculators took their profits and went home for the day, leaving prices sagging by fractions.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks declined .1 of a point at 51.5. Transactions totaled 634,980 shares compared with 775,240 yesterday.

One of the day's most consistent buys was Goodrich which held more than a point advance on the declaration of its first common stock dividend in two years.

Others on the up side included Goodyear, Caterpillar, United Air lines, du Pont, Westinghouse and Anaconda.

Henry Busse Orchestra At Maryland Monday

Although Henry Busse's orchestra, which comes to the Maryland Theatre stage this Monday for one day only through arrangements with the Music Corporation of America, is best known by the maestro's famous trumpet, the band has several other distinguishing features outstanding of which is the shuffle rhythm. This, as the title implies, is a rhythmic shuffling effect gained through a slight anticipation of each beat.

The pianist plays the bass, four beats to a measure, anticipating each direct beat by a fraction, and is followed by the bass player. The drummer adds to the beat by using his wire brushes on the snare drum playing the same beats as the piano and bass, added in musical language, an extra "grace note" just before the bass beat.

The Busse style clicked from the start, and is best evidenced by Henry's all-time record engagement of three and one-half years in Chicago's Chez Paree, as well as extensive engagements all over the United States.

Featured with the Busse Band are Billy Sherman, vocalist; Ducky Young, comic vocalist; the Three Strikes, vocal trio.

"The Cat and Canary" Opens Today at Strand

In the matter of transforming a great mystery play to the screen—the play in question being John Willard's famous "The Cat and the Canary" — Paramount has made every effort to make it the greatest comedy-mystery of the year. For when the picture opens today at the Strand Theatre, none other than Bob Hope, leading screen, radio and stage comedian, will be seen in one of the starring roles, and lovely Paulette Goddard will be playing the starring role opposite him.

Paramount didn't stop there. With Bob in the cast, there had to be plenty of gags, and according to all reports, Bob is at his gagging best in this one. As for a foil for his gags, could there be a lovelier one than Paulette Goddard?

But to get down to the story. It tells, briefly, how seven people come to a lonely mansion in the Louisiana bayous to hear the will of a man who died ten years before, how one—Paulette Goddard—is named heiress, and how before the picture reaches its startling climax, she is driven half-mad by "The Cat," a murderous, hairy creature who reaches out of panels in the wall, murders one of the company, and terrorizes even wise-cracking Bob. In the supporting cast are such favorites as John Beal, Douglas Montgomery, Gale Sondergaard, Elizabeth Patteson and George Zucco.

"Girl From Rio" and "Battle of Greed"

Closing today at the Embassy Theatre is the double feature attraction "Girl From Rio" and Tom Keene in the western drama "Battle of Greed" with Gwynne Shipman and James Bush. In addition to the two feature hits you will see another chapter of the serial "Scouts to the Rescue."

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy Theatre will be the No. 1 singing and shootin' star, Gene Autry, in the musical western hit "In Old Monterey," with Smiley Burnette and a great supporting cast. The second feature will be John Gallaudet and Iris Meredith in "Murder Is News." Also will be seen another chapter of "Mandrake, the Magician," with Warren Hull in the starring role.

"The Flying Deuces" Has Plenty of Laughs

Laurel and Hardy again provide good, down to earth slapstick on the screen in their latest picture, "The Flying Deuces," which opened yesterday at the Liberty Theatre. This laugh-provoking comedy proves to be one of the best of their long career. There is little reliance on gags. Instead, the comedians have resorted to that excellent brand of pantomime which distinguished them during their earlier years.

It might be suggested here that those who see the picture pay particular attention to the musical score. Music has been used to excellent advantage to augment the comedy situations, and has more than substituted for the gags that are so commonly relied on in such pieces.

The story concerns a couple of tourists in Paris, who through unrequited love for a girl, join the French Foreign Legion to forget her. Given the dirtiest jobs in the regiment, they finally rebel, only to be charged with desertion. Sentenced to death, they escape in an endurance airplane. As a couple of novice fliers, they make the most of comedy opportunities, finally crashing. The climax of the picture is best left unrevealed. It neatly caps the generous series of comedy situations.

As the French girl with whom Hardy is in love, Jean Parker re-

Sports Problems Under Discussion At Grantsville

Association Hears Talk By Dr. G. Frank Malin, of Cumberland

Grantsville, Nov. 15.—The meeting of the Grantsville unit of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association was well attended last night at Firemen's Hall. A number of matters of interest were brought up for discussion, among them being the Youghiogheny river question.

It is said this stream, the headwaters of which is in Garrett county, has possibilities of being the greatest trout stream in the east. Some years ago, however, acid waste from coal mines so polluted the water that not only fish, but all other aquatic life and vegetation as well, disappeared.

The matter was brought before government and state officials of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and as a consequence all abandoned mines in the district were ordered sealed. When the work of sealing these mines had been in progress for some time, it was announced that eighty-six per cent of the acid had disappeared, but a recent survey made by Albert Powell, State Fish Culturist, and compared with a similar one made before the work was done, is said to have showed that, with the exception of Snowy Creek, the condition was not greatly improved.

Active mines along Laurel Run are said to be responsible for much of the acid at present. On the contrary it has also been reported that nice size fish have been caught in this stream as far up as Somerfield. As more than thirty miles of splendid trout waters are involved, the matter was referred to the Pollution Committee to check on the authenticity of the report that fish cannot survive in the Youghiogheny waters.

Another matter which has caused considerable comment here is the killing of red squirrel. The question was brought up as to whether or not this animal should be classified as vermin. At present it is protected by the state game laws, according to officials, the reason being that anyone hunting squirrel will be tempted to shoot any of the varieties.

The general contention, however, is that this animal is exceedingly destructive and should be eliminated. It was proposed at the meeting that any of the laws, or changes in the laws, desired by the members, be turned over to the legislative committee as early as possible.

Dr. G. Frank Malin, Cumberland, prominent in sporting activities in Allegany county, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke on the Square Circle Club in comparison with the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association. He was the first speaker to touch upon the cost of protecting wild life.

The following estimates of the cost of feeding and protecting game for a year, was made to give a general idea of what the violator takes out of the woods from a standpoint of conservation. Deer, $50 to $100 per pair; turkeys, $22 each; rabbits, 50 cents; birds, about $2; raccoon $5 to $8 each.

William Reichner, president of the Salisbury Sportsmen's Association and NYA promoter, spoke on what the sportsmen's organizations could do with NYA labor. George H. Clapham, Silver Springs, professional trapper, also talked to the group on trapping and answered questions in regard to the subject.

Daniel W. Hershberger, Harry C. Edwards, Byron H. Bender, William Winterberg and Henry Durst represented the local unit at the meeting of the county association at Oakland Monday night.

At this meeting the Grantsville petition for the Grantsville unit was approved. The uait will have jurisdiction over a twelve mile radius which includes Grantsville and R. D. 1 and 2; Jennings and Star

Sports Problems Under Discussion At Grantsville

Association Hears Talk By Dr. G. Frank Malin, of Cumberland

Grantsvilel, Nov. 15.—The meeting of the Grantsville unit of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association was well attended last night at Firemen's Hall. A number of matters of interest were brought up for discussion, among them being the Youghiogheny river question.

It is said this stream, the headwaters of which is in Garrett county, has possibilities of being the greatest trout stream in the east. Some years ago, however, acid waste from coal mines so polluted the water that not only fish, but all other aquatic life and vegetation as well, disappeared.

The matter was brought before government and state officials of Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and as a consequence all abandoned mines in the district were ordered sealed. When the work of sealing these mines had been in progress for some time, it was announced that eighty-six per cent of the acid had disappeared, but a recent survey made by Albert Powell, State Fish Culturist, and compared with a similar one made before the work was done, is said to have showed that, with the exception of Snowy Creek, the condition was not greatly improved.

Active mines along Laurel Run are said to be responsible for much of the acid at present. On the contrary it has also been reported that nice size fish have been caught in this stream as far up as Somerfield. As more than thirty miles of splendid trout waters are involved, the matter was referred to the Pollution Committee to check on the authenticity of the report that fish cannot survive in the Youghiogheny waters.

Another matter which has caused considerable comment here is the killing of red squirrel. The question was brought up as to whether or not this animal should be classified as vermin. At present it is protected by the state game laws, according to officials, the reason being that anyone hunting squirrel will be tempted to shoot any of the varieties.

The general contention, however, is that this animal is exceedingly destructive and should be eliminated. It was proposed at the meeting that any of the laws, or changes in the laws, desired by the members, be turned over to the legislative committee as early as possible.

Dr. G. Frank Malin, Cumberland prominent in sporting activities in Allegany county, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke on the Square Circle Club in comparison with the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association. He was the first speaker to touch upon the cost of protecting wild life.

The following estimates of the cost of feeding and protecting game for a year, was made to give a general idea of what the violator takes out of the woods from a standpoint of conservation. Deer, $50 to $100 per pair; turkeys, $22 each; rabbits, 50 cents; birds, about $2; raccoon $5 to $8 each.

William Reichner, president of the Salisbury Sportsmen's Association and NYA promoter, spoke on what the sportsmen's organizations could do with NYA labor. George H. Clapham, Silver Springs, professional trapper, also talked to the group on trapping and answered questions in regard to the subject.

Daniel W. Hershberger, Harry C. Edwards, Byron H. Bender, William Winterberg and Henry Durst represented the local unit at the meeting of the county association at Oakland Monday night.

At this meeting the Grantsville petition for the Grantsville unit was approved. The unit will have jurisdiction over a twelve mile radius which includes Grantsville and R. D. 1 and 2; Jennings and Star

Work On Hatchery To Start Nov. 12

Work will begin Monday, Nov. 27, on the proposed bass hatchery at Old Fields, according to information received here Monday from representatives of the Bureau of Fisheries. Notification came to officials of the South Branch Valley Game and Fish Association who have been working on the project for the past two years.

A WPA project for $6,500 has been approved and will be under the direction of the Romney office of that agency. The men will be under the direction of Eugene C. Surber, aquabiologist at the Leetown Hatchery, Kearneysville.

Next Thursday, November 23, a trail builder, a scarifier, a roller and other heavy building equipment will be moved in to the Old Fields site on the Gilkeson property.

The bass hatchery, which will really be a bass nursery, a series of rearing ponds for small mouth black bass, is the result of the efforts of sportsmen in Pendleton Grant, Hardy and Hampshire counties who have been working on the project for the past two years. The sportsmen purchased the site and gave it to the government for the hatchery. A meeting of the association will be called in the near future to discuss further plans.

This marks the fourth casualty for Hardy county this year from motor accidents. Schell was returning to Moorefield and Harvey was on his way home when the accident occurred on the high fill in the road.

A coroner's inquest was conducted Monday morning with Justice J. Harry Dolan acting as coroner. The jury, composed of Clele Wilson, C. W. Whetzel, Grover Zirk, Parran Helmick, A. C. Mayhew and Willard Williams, returned a verdict only as to the cause of the death but did not fix responsibility.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel — And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Refuse anything else. At all drug stores. 10¢ and 25¢.

Man 'Called by God' Hangs Self in Home

Takes Own Life After Despairing Of Health Again

William McLucas, a former employe of the city street department, was found dead in his bedroom at the home of his son, Harry, in Bowman's Addition.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner, stated that McLucas made a noose of the belt which he placed around his neck and then tied to the bedpost. The man apparently pitched himself to the floor and strangled, Dr. Corson said.

"Called by God"

Ruth Hockenberry, a domestic at the McLucas home, told officers that Mr. McLucas told her that "God is going to call me away tonight," just before she left at 2:30 p. m.

She left McLucas alone, since his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McLucas, were away for the afternoon.

Son Discovers Body

Sensing something amiss, Rhodheaver went to Miss Hockenberry's home and brought her back to the McLucas home. They arrived about the same time Harry McLucas did.

They found Mr. McLucas on the floor in his bedroom. His son removed the belt, the buckle of which had bit deep into the victim's neck.

State Police, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe, Dr. Corson, and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle were called to the McLucas home.

Worked for City

A neighbor, Alonzo Dicken, told officers he saw Mr. McLucas walking about in the yard around 3:30 p. m.

Mr. McLucas was born and grew up near Hancock. He had lived in Cumberland for many years and had formerly been employed by the city street department.

He had been in poor health for some time, officers reported.

Surviving are his son, Harry, with whom he lived, two other sons, Claude R., of Cumberland, and Charles R., of Englewood, Cal.; and two daughters, Miss Lillian Mae McLucas, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Bessie Lynch, of Mineral City, O.

Also slated to speak are I. Duke Avnet, labor attorney, who represented the Celanese union in compensation hearings, Congressman Thomas D'Alesandro, and Eli Oliver, executive vice-president of Labor's Non-Partisan League.

Several hundred delegates are expected. A mass meeting is planned for one night and a social gathering for the second night. Sessions will be open to the public. They will be held in Moose Hall, 410 West Fayette street.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

All this good weather over here is going to waste. Yesterday would have been a dandy day for bombing raids. It's unfortunate that we haven't anybody to bomb. All we poor, dumb, backward Americans can do is go rabbit hunting.

Meanwhile, fog and rain over the enlightened nations of Europe hinders the spread of bomb culture.

Many of the things he said naturally wouldn't appeal to a Cumberland forum audience, but he did set people to talking and thinking, which, as we see it, is the purpose of a forum.

We've been meaning to include this in the column for a week or so, now. It's a bit of wisdom which the Rev. Lewis B. Browne, of Frostburg, wrote to President Dunkle, of the State Teachers college, congratulating him on his recent birthday.

As we remember them, the wise words were:

"A man is young as long as a woman can make him either happy or unhappy. A man is middle-aged if a woman can make him happy, but can no longer make him unhappy. And a man has definitely grown old when a woman can no longer make him either happy or unhappy."

Yes, they still announce the time as 9:31 as the wheels of Uncle Sam's government turn ever so slowly in an effort to have new batteries installed.

It happened that it was just 9:31, but he was a little embarrassed to learn that the clock had shown the same time for nearly two months.

(The clocks in the postoffice lobby on the first floor are hiding their faces to prevent such things from happening to the general public.)

Salvation Army Completes Work On New Garage

The Citizens Advisory Board of the Salvation Army yesterday inspected the new two-car garage built in the rear of the Citadel on North Mechanic street and also looked over the extensive basement repairs.

Brigadier B. L. Phillipson reported that he and the board were well pleased with the work that had been accomplished.

His report for the month of October showed that lodgings arranged for twelve persons, 135 meals were supplied, eight women and 118 individual transients assisted, and twenty-four persons turned down.

Twenty grocery orders were given, eighty-five garments, and twenty-two pairs of shoes. Office interviews totaled 205. Religious services, music classes, kindergarten, and social gatherings were reported as well attended.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nave, 312 Polk street, announce the birth of a daughter last night at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Phillips, 21 Potomac street, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

No Date Set Yet For Off-Delayed Crash Hearing

Mrs. Dudek Arrested Back in September; 'Conference' Today

No hearing has yet been scheduled for Mrs. Dorothy Dudek, of Frostburg, who was charged with reckless driving and driving without a license after the car she was allegedly driving was involved in a spectacular three-way crash on Greene street nearly two months ago, police and the state's attorney's office said last night.

Assistant Police Chief John Treiber said a "conference" is due today to set the date for a hearing.

The crash out of which the charges grew occurred late on the night of Sept. 21. Five persons were injured, one seriously.

Often Postponed

The trial was originally postponed because Mrs. Dudek was in the hospital for treatment of minor injuries received in the crash. Later, police said it was pending recovery of Grover Kinzy, 52-year-old U. S. forestry department employe, of Catonsville, who was reportedly an occupant of the Dudek car and who was seriously injured.

Mr. Kinzy was released from the hospital several weeks ago and presumably returned to his home.

Policeman Well

Trial was postponed again when one of the investigating officers became ill, but he returned to duty more than a week ago.

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Dudek, admitting she had no driver's license, vigorously denied being the driver of the car, claiming it was a man whose name she could not remember. Police never located this "mystery man," and two other occupants of the car named Mrs. Dudek as the driver, as did several witnesses to the crash.

Employment Increase Leaves Rural Sections Unaffected

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—The sharp increase in employment which has affected most of the state's industrial counties has not yet been felt in the rural sections, the Department of Public Assistance said today.

Administrative J. N. Blackburn announced 593 cases had been added to the general relief rolls last month, virtually all of them in rural counties.

The rural increase, expected with the approach of winter, more than offset a decrease in the industrial centers, said Blackburn, and gave the state a total general relief case load of 10,956 for the month.

One Divorce Granted, Two Others Sought

A Cumberland woman was granted an absolute divorce yesterday in Circuit court as two new suits were filed.

Mrs. Alice R. Babb, of 106 Columbia street, was divorced from George M. Babb in a decree signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

Meanwhile, two wives docketed suits for divorce from their husbands, and an answer was filed to another suit.

The bill of complaint says that the couple was married in Bedford, Pa., March 17, 1934, and lived together here until April 15, 1934, when Waltonman allegedly deserted his wife.

Mrs. Ethel Leona Fleegle sought an absolute divorce from Lloyd Earl Fleegle and asked payment of allmony and counsel fees.

The suit, filed by Attorney Morgan C. Harris, says that the couple was married here Aug. 1, 1933, and lived together until Feb. 14, 1937.

Mine Deaths Decrease

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 15. (AP)—Chief N. P. Rhinehart of the State Department of Mines announced today that coal fatalities, which rose sharply during October as production went up, were 25 per cent lower so far this month.

Including the four victims of a local gas explosion in Wyoming county, Rhinehart said mine deaths so far in November have shown a sharp decrease, compared with the previous month.

To date, 14 men have been killed.

Dentist's Wife Fails To Appear In Court; Arrest Is Ordered

Mrs. Hilda Hedrick, wife of a Baltimore avenue dentist, was ordered arrested yesterday by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris after she failed to appear for trial in Trial Magistrates court on a charge of advertising false teeth manufacturing.

Sheriff's deputies, dispatched to the home-and-office, found the doors locked and were unable to get an answer to their knocking, they said.

Subsequent attempts to reach Mrs. Hedrick by telephone and in person failed, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe said last night.

Mrs. Hedrick had sent a doctor's certificate to court stating that she was "weak and nervous and not fully recovered from a recent illness," but the state's attorney noted that she had not been too ill a few days ago to aid in the prosecution of a dental laboratory owner on a charge of practicing dentistry without a license.

Mr. Harris obtained, too, a telephone statement from the physician that appearance in court would not materially affect Mrs. Hedrick's health. It was then that he ordered her arrest to face the charge.

Her trial, originally set for Aug. 22, was postponed then because of her illness.

IN CONCERT MONDAY—Miss Ruth Dicken, violin, Mrs. Thomas P. Richards, piano, and Mrs. Harmon Howorth, cello, will be heard in the annual Music and Arts club concert Monday at 8:15 p. m. These three musicians have been playing together since 1933, but unfortunately the trio will be broken up shortly by Mr. Howorth's transfer to Pearisburg, Va. Also on Monday's program is Miss Betty Hocker, Baltimore soprano.—News Staff Photo.

Police Continue Drive On Truckers Operating Without City Licenses

City police yesterday conducted a second raid on truck drivers and apprehended five more men on a charge of failing to obtain a city license for commercial hauling.

Those arrested were Ralph G. Davis, of Cumberland; C. L. Wilhelm, 538 Fort avenue; V. M. Barnes, 214 Charles street; C. C. Bender, 12 Smith street, and a driver for the Twigg Transfer Company.

All five truckers were charged with violating City Ordinance 1361, Section 16. They were released after being booked at headquarters.

Tuesday, J. Henry Wolfe, 306 Beall street; L. B. Crites, 114 North Mechanic street; L. L. Charrey, 710 Elm street, and D. E. Grapes, 408 Cedar street, were taken into custody on the same charge. They, too, were released.

All nine men are scheduled to be given a hearing Friday in Police court. Officers R. C. Cassen and J. H. Newhouse will prefer the charges.

Another Man Fined On Dental Charge

A second Cumberland man was fined yesterday in Trial Magistrates court by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce Jr. after he waived a jury trial on a charge of practicing dental work without a license.

Robert W. Rice, 456 Baltimore avenue, was fined $100 and costs on the charge, but his attorney, Edward J. Ryan, filed notice of an appeal to Circuit court after the hearing. He was released under $200 bond.

Mrs. Emma P. Smith, 302 Springdale street, testified against Rice. She said the defendant made her some false teeth in April.

Tuesday, Raymond Whitman, 27 North Liberty street, was also fined $100 and costs by Magistrate Bruce for engaging in the dentistry business without a license. He, too, filed notice of an appeal.

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris conducted the prosecution in both cases.

Wife Won't Cook Or Wash for Him, Is Man's Answer

An answer was filed yesterday by Thornton E. Poole to the suit docketed by his wife, Mrs. Margaret A. Poole, asking a partial divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Denying his wife's charges, Poole declares that "he has at all times been a kind and loving husband" and goes on to give his version of their "trouble."

The answer, filed by Attorney Clarence Shutter, charges that Mrs. Poole "has refused and still refuses to prepare her husband's meals for him or to do his laundry, and has forced him to live in a separate part of the house from her."

"The trouble caused in this case," the reply continues, "is due to the fact that the plaintiff insists on maintaining in the home six children who are of legal age, and several of whom are married, and who refused to contribute to the maintenance of the home."

The couple has been wed for nearly forty years and has eleven children.

Poole asks that the case be dismissed and protests, too, the court order directing payment of temporary alimony and counsel fees, claiming his wife has sufficient income of her own.

A feature of the meeting was a talk given by Richard P. Amy, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who told of radio club activities in the metropolitan area and made suggestions for the local operators to follow in planning their club program.

The Brooklyn man was invited to address the local club by President McKenzie after the two had struck up a friendship through the air.

Lions Entertain Visiting Clubs At Zone Dinner

G-Man McIntyre Declares Crime Begins at Home

More than 100 Western Maryland Lions and their wives gathered at Central YMCA last night for the first in a series of zone meetings and heard FBI Agent Fred T. McIntyre Jr., urge them to cooperate in preventing crime.

"It's better to start at the high chair than at the electric chair," he said as he stressed the increase in juvenile delinquency in recent years.

Crime Begins at Home

Other agencies such as the Boy Scouts, the church, and boys' clubs go a long way toward solving the problem, he said, but the responsibility still remains in the home.

Mr. McIntyre also urged the Lions to have their finger-prints taken to be placed in the civil identification files of the FBI—separate from the criminal identification division.

The identification unit of the Cumberland police department was praised by the speaker as "one of the best of its size in the country." Mayor Harry Irvine, a guest of honor at the dinner-meeting, beamed.

Mr. McIntyre was introduced by Thomas L. Richards of Cumberland, zone chairman. John Park, president of the host club, presided.

Musical Program

Also on the program were musical numbers by Jack Platt, instructor of music at Allegany high school, and a group of Allegany students. Vocal selections were presented by Freda Thompson, who also danced, and a trio consisting of Josephine Williams, Clara Lee Moore, and Doris Brant.

Wilton Sykes played two violin solos, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. S. Lua Sykes, while Mr. Platt offered several numbers on the vibra celeste.

Mrs. Louise Coulehan urged support of the Red Cross drive.

Crime Figures Quoted

Mr. McIntyre quoted official FBI statistics for 1938 to show the extent of crime in the United States. The U. S. crime bill last year was fifteen billion dollars—or $120 per capita, he pointed out, and 4,600,000 persons committed a crime every twenty-two seconds.

Other statistics showed there was a burglary every 1¾ minutes; an auto theft every 2½ minutes; a robbery every nine minutes, and a murder every 38 minutes. Eighteen per cent of the persons arrested last year were under 21 years of age, and a high proportion of the more serious crimes were committed by persons under 25, he said.

Central Y.M.C.A. Plans Membership Campaign

Fire Warden Asks Hunters To Aid As Woods Blazes Threaten Here

A dangerous forest fire blazed on the east side of Dan's mountain near Cresaptown last night, the worst in a series of blazes started by hunters in the dry woods.

Urner Wigfield, district fire warden, said the blaze was apparently under control after burning thirty acres, but because of the high wind there was danger the fire might break out over the lines and sweep a large acre.

Mr. Wigfield made a plea for hunters to be more careful, because the woods have become extremely dry since the recent snow.

Practically all of the recent fires have been traced to hunters, he said.

Recent fires include one of two acres west of Mt. Savage on Nov. 10; one acre on Westernport hill and one acre on Jackson's hill east of Lonaconing on Nov. 12; and two acres east of Spring Gap; half-acre on Martin's mountain along Rt. 40, and two acres on the west side of Green Ridge, all on Nov. 14.

Man 'Called by God' Hangs Self in Home

Takes Own Life After Despairing Of Health Again

Informed by a physician that "he never would be well again," a 73-year-old Cumberland man yesterday strangled himself with his belt.

William McLucas, a former employe of the city street department, was found dead in his bedroom at the home of his son, Harry, in Bowman's Addition.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner, stated that McLucas made a noose of the belt which he placed around his neck and then tied to the bedpost. The man apparently pitched himself to the floor and strangled, Dr. Corson said.

"Called by God"

Ruth Hockenberry, a domestic at the McLucas home, told officers that Mr. McLucas told her that "God is going to call me away tonight," just before she left at 2:30 p. m.

She left McLucas alone, since his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McLucas, were away for the afternoon.

Son Discovers Body

Sensing something amiss, Rhodheaver went to Miss Hockenberry's home and brought her back to the McLucas home. They arrived about the same time Harry McLucas did.

They found Mr. McLucas on the floor in his bedroom. His son removed the belt, the buckle of which had bit deep into the victim's neck.

State Police, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe, Dr. Corson, and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle were called to the McLucas home.

Worked for City

A neighbor, Alonzo Dicken, told officers he saw Mr. McLucas walking about in the yard around 3:30 p. m.

Mr. McLucas was born and grew up near Hancock. He had lived in Cumberland for many years and had formerly been employed by the city street department.

He had been in poor health for some time, officers reported.

Surviving are his son, Harry, with whom he lived, two other sons, Claude R., of Cumberland, and Charles R., of Englewood, Cal.; and two daughters, Miss Lillian Mae McLucas, of Cumberland, and Mrs. Bessie Lynch, of Mineral City, O.

All this good weather over here is going to waste. Yesterday would have been a dandy day for bombing raids. It's unfortunate that we haven't anybody to bomb. All we poor, dumb, backward Americans can do is go rabbit hunting.

Meanwhile, fog and rain over the enlightened nations of Europe hinders the spread of bomb culture.

Harry Elmer Barnes was swinging wildly and landing some sharp jabs, too, in his Forum lecture Tuesday night.

Many of the things he said naturally wouldn't appeal to a Cumberland forum audience, but he did set people to talking and thinking, which, as we see it, is the purpose of a forum.

A good forum is also agin 'em.

We've been meaning to include this in the column for a week or so, now. It's a bit of wisdom which the Rev. Lewis B. Browne, of Frostburg, wrote to President Dunkle, of the State Teachers college, congratulating him on his recent birthday.

As we remember them, the wise words were:

"A man is young as long as a woman can make him either happy or unhappy. A man is middle-aged if a woman can make him happy, but can no longer make him unhappy. And a man has definitely grown old when a woman can no longer make him either happy or unhappy."

Yes, they still announce the time as 9:31 as the wheels of Uncle Sam's government turn ever so slowly in an effort to have new batteries installed.

(He was one of those fellows who, given Naval observatory time, would check it with his watch and pronounce it correct.)

It happened that it was just 9:31, but he was a little embarrassed to learn that the clock had shown the same time for nearly two months.

(The clocks in the postoffice lobby on the first floor are hiding their faces to prevent such things from happening to the general public.)

No Date Set Yet For Oft-Delayed Crash Hearing

Mrs. Dudek Arrested Back in September; 'Conference' Today

No hearing has yet been scheduled for Mrs. Dorothy Dudek, of Frostburg, who was charged with reckless driving and driving without a license after the car she was allegedly driving was involved in a spectacular three-way crash on Greene street nearly two months ago, police and the state's attorney's office said last night.

Assistant Police Chief John Treiber said a "conference" is due today to set the date for a hearing.

The crash out of which the charges grew occurred late on the night of Sept. 21. Five persons were injured, one seriously.

Often Postponed

The trial was originally postponed because Mrs. Dudek was in the hospital for treatment of minor injuries received in the crash. Later, police said it was pending recovery of Grover Kinzy, 52-year-old U. S. forestry department employe, of Catonsville, who was reportedly an occupant of the Dudek car and who was seriously injured.

Mr. Kinzy was released from the hospital several weeks ago and presumably returned to his home.

Policeman Well

Trial was postponed again when one of the investigating officers became ill, but he returned to duty more than a week ago.

At the time of her arrest, Mrs. Dudek, admitting she had no driver's license, vigorously denied being the driver of the car, claiming it was a man whose name she could not remember. Police never located this "mystery man," and two other occupants of the car named Mrs. Dudek as the driver, as did several witnesses to the crash.

The Brooklyn man was invited to address the local club by President McKenzie after the two had struck up a friendship through the air.

Lions Entertain Visiting Clubs At Zone Dinner

G-Man McIntyre Declares Crime Begins at Home

More than 100 Western Maryland Lions and their wives gathered at Central YMCA last night for the first in a series of zone meetings and heard FBI Agent Fred T. McIntyre Jr., urge them to cooperate in preventing crime.

"It's better to start at the high chair than at the electric chair," he said as he stressed the increase in juvenile delinquency in recent years.

Crime Begins at Home

Other agencies such as the Boy Scouts, the church, and boys' clubs go a long way toward solving the problem, he said, but the responsibility still remains in the home.

Mr. McIntyre also urged the Lions to have their finger-prints taken to be placed in the civil identification files of the FBI—separate from the criminal identification division.

The identification unit of the Cumberland police department was praised by the speaker as "one of the best of its size in the country." Mayor Harry Irvine, a guest of honor at the dinner-meeting, beamed.

Mr. McIntyre was introduced by Thomas L. Richards of Cumberland, zone chairman. John Park, president of the host club, presided.

Musical Program

Also on the program were musical numbers by Jack Platt, instructor of music at Allegany high school, and a group of Allegany students. Vocal selections were presented by Freda Thompson, who also danced, and a trio consisting of Josephine Williams, Clara Lee Moore, and Doris Brant.

Wilton Sykes played two violin solos, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. S. Lua Sykes, while Mr. Platt offered several numbers on the vibra celeste.

Mrs. Louise Coulehan urged support of the Red Cross drive.

Clubs represented at last night's affair were Cumberland, Lonaconing, Hancock and Hagerstown comprising the zone and also Frederick.

Crime Figures Quoted

Mr. McIntyre quoted official FBI statistics for 1938 to show the extent of crime in the United States. The U. S. crime bill last year was fifteen billion dollars—or $120 per capita, he pointed out, and 4,600,000 persons committed a crime every twenty-two seconds.

Other statistics showed there was a burglary every 1¾ minutes; an auto theft every 2½ minutes; a robbery every nine minutes, and a murder every 38 minutes. Eighteen per cent of the persons arrested last year were under 21 years of age, and a high proportion of the more serious crimes were committed by persons under 25, he said.

Wife Won't Cook Or Wash for Him, Is Man's Answer

An answer was filed yesterday by Thornton E. Poole to the suit docketed by his wife, Mrs. Margaret A. Poole, asking a partial divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Denying his wife's charges, Poole declares that "he has at all times been a kind and loving husband" and goes on to give his version of their "trouble."

The answer, filed by Attorney Clarence Shutter, charges that Mrs. Poole "has refused and still refuses to prepare her husband's meals for him or to do his laundry, and has forced him to live in a separate part of the house from her."

"The trouble caused in this case," the reply continues, "is due to the fact that the plaintiff insists on maintaining in the home six children who are of legal age, and several of whom are married, and who refused to contribute to the maintenance of the home."

The couple has been wed for nearly forty years and has eleven children.

Poole asks that the case be dismissed and protests, too, the court order directing payment of temporary alimony and counsel fees, claiming his wife has sufficient income of her own.

Employment Increase Leaves Rural Sections Unaffected

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP)—The sharp increase in employment which has affected most of the state's industrial counties has not yet been felt in the rural sections, the Department of Public Assistance said today.

Administrative J. N. Blackburn announced 593 cases had been added to the general relief rolls last month, virtually all of them in rural counties.

The rural increase, expected with the approach of winter, more than offset a decrease in the industrial centers, said Blackburn, and gave the state a total general relief case load of 10,956 for the month.

One Divorce Granted, Two Others Sought

A Cumberland woman was granted an absolute divorce yesterday in Circuit court as two new suits were filed.

Mrs. Alice R. Babb, of 106 Columbia street, was divorced from George M. Babb in a decree signed by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

Meanwhile, two wives docketed suits for divorce from their husbands, and an answer was filed to another suit.

The bill of complaint says that the couple was married in Bedford, Pa., March 17, 1934, and lived together here until April 15, 1934, when Waltonman allegedly deserted his wife.

Mrs. Ethel Leona Fleegle sought an absolute divorce from Lloyd Earl Fleegle and asked payment of alimony and counsel fees.

Dentist's Wife Fails To Appear In Court; Arrest Is Ordered

Mrs. Hilda Hedrick, wife of a Baltimore avenue dentist, was ordered arrested yesterday by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris after she failed to appear for trial in Trial Magistrates court on a charge of advertising false teeth manufacturing.

Sheriff's deputies, dispatched to the home-and-office, found the doors locked and were unable to get an answer to their knocking, they said.

Subsequent attempts to reach Mrs. Hedrick by telephone and in person failed, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe said last night.

Mrs. Hedrick had sent a doctor's certificate to court stating that she was "weak and nervous and not fully recovered from a recent illness," but the state's attorney noted that she had not been too ill a few days ago to aid in the prosecution of a dental laboratory owner on a charge of practicing dentistry without a license.

Mr. Harris obtained, too, a telephone statement from the physician that appearance in court would not materially affect Mrs. Hedrick's health. It was then that he ordered her arrest to face the charge.

Her trial, originally set for Aug. 22, was postponed then because of her illness.

Fire Warden Asks Hunters To Aid As Woods Blazes Threaten Here

A dangerous forest fire blazed on the east side of Dan's mountain near Cresaptown last night, the worst in a series of blazes started by hunters in the dry woods.

Urner Wigfield, district fire warden, said the blaze was apparently under control after burning thirty acres, but because of the high wind there was danger the fire might break out over the lines and sweep a large acre.

Mr. Wigfield made a plea for hunters to be more careful, because the woods have become extremely dry since the recent snow.

Practically all of the recent fires have been traced to hunters, he said.

Recent fires include one of two acres west of Mt. Savage on Nov. 10; one acre on Westernport hill and one acre on Jackson's hill east of Lonaconing on Nov. 12; and two acres east of Spring Gap; half-acre on Martin's mountain along Rt. 40, and two acres on the west side of Green Ridge, all on Nov. 14.
